BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The Massachusetts public service commission today handed down a decision in which it absolves the Bay State street railway for the time being at least, and probably until after the war, from the necessity of extending the Varnum avenue line.

SEVIGNY BLAMELESS IN CHILD'S DEATH

Arthur L. Sevigny of this city, was arraigned before Judge Bright at this morning's session of the police court on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mary E. Brown, which occurred Aug. 3, after the child was struck and run over by an automobile operated by Sevigny. The case was dismissed after the court was informed that the finding in the inquest, which was held before Judge Fleckman, was to the effect that the death of the child was not caused through criminal negligence on the part of the automobile driver.

The accident occurred in Merrimack street in front of the Bon Marche on Saturday evening, August 3, and according to testimony offered at the inquest, the Brown girl left the sidewalk and ran into the path of the oncoming automobile, which was being operated by Sevigny, and received injuries that soon afterwards resulted in her death.

19 and 20 To Go to Army
Training Camps—Calls to
Begin in October

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Provost Marshal General Crowder announces that the first call to the colors of men who register Thursday will include men in the 19 and 20 year old classes and in the classes from 32 to 36 years inclusive. Questionnaires will go first to registrants within these specified age limits and local boards will be ordered to classify them first in readiness for calls beginning in October.

Young men in the 19 and 20 year classes will be accepted for induction into the students' army training corps, but Gen. Crowder points out that the authorized strength of this corps is only 150,000 men whereas the total number of registrants below 20, will be over 3,000,000.

of Seven Brave Uncles

Philip P. Tibbets, son of Mrs. Mary E. Tibbets of 26 Sawtelle place, has sent word to his mother from France that he has sustained gunshot wounds in his left thigh and is at present a patient in a hospital in France, called the South African hospital.

Tibbets has been attached to the 72d Battalion, Canadian army. He joined the Canadian army, June 15, 1917. He is now 24 years old and when he was about 16 years old served a three-year enlistment in the U. S. navy. His reason for joining the Canadian army instead of the U. S. forces, was probably due in some part to the fact that his mother is a Canadian woman, although Philip was born and reared here in Lowell.

Mrs. Tibbets has also received a letter from her son, Herbert W. Tibbets, a Lowell boy, who at the present time is in the U. S. navy attached to the U. S. S. steamship Von Steuben, an army transport. He wrote from New York and said his vessel was busy going back and forth to Europe and had had wonderfully good luck so far. Herbert W. Tibbets is a man 30 years old and has a wife and two children living at 25 Sawtelle place. He served three years with the U. S. army in the Philippines and three years with the army at different posts in this country.

These two sons of Mrs. Tibbets come of sturdy old fighting stock for Mrs. Tibbets tells The Sun that seven uncles of these boys lost their lives in the Civil war and all seven served under Gen. B. F. Butler.

Important German Bases Along Southern Hem of Hindenburg Line Near Capture

French Within Two Miles of La Fere, Which Is in Flames—Three and a Half Miles From St. Quentin and but One Mile From Town of St. Gobain—French Capture Many Towns Beyond Crozat Canal—Americans Gain

(By the Associated Press.)
Fast progress has been made by the French in closing in upon both St. Quentin and La Fere, important German strongholds along the southern hem of the Hindenburg line. They are within two miles of La Fere and within three and a half miles of St. Quentin.

In the region of La Fere the French are pushing toward the north of the formidable St. Gobain bastion, defending Laon. They have made a considerable impression on this powerful position by direct pressure, in the Servais sector to the south of La Fere.

The Servais station was captured yesterday. By taking Briquettay, further south, General Petain's troops have advanced to within little more than a mile of the town of St. Gobain, on one of the highest points of the bastion.

Near Ladouar, around the bend in the line to the south of the bastion, the French made some further progress to the north of the town.

Push on Toward Laon

The headway thus made in entering the St. Gobain positions constituted the most important feature of yesterday's operations because the objective in this sector is unquestionably field unless the national commission rendered an immediate decision to their demand for readjustment of the World's Series division of the money receipts apportioned to the players.

A committee of the ball players had met the national commission earlier in the day. The players then came to the park and held a meeting in their dressing rooms. After a long talk they decided to call the commission at once and say that they would not go upon the field until a decision was rendered. At 1:55 o'clock not a player had appeared upon the field, and there were reports that if the commission's decision was against a readjustment of the players' share in the game, the Red Sox and Cubs would not go on with today's game.

proved by Park Dept.

At the regular meeting of the municipal council held this morning it was formally voted to award contracts for the installation of two new 72-inch boilers at city hall and also for the corollary steam fitting and setting-up work.

The Scannell Boiler Works was awarded the contract for the boilers to be delivered to the rear of city hall. The price was $4000 each. Farrell & Conaton were awarded the contract for steam fitting, the figure being $3755. D. H. Walker was given the contract for putting the boilers in the cellar. The cost will be $2955.

This means that work of installing the new boilers in the basement of city hall can be started at once. It is

LOWELL WILL MOURN OFFICER ABBOTT

The many friends of Patrolman George S. Abbott will be grieved to learn of his death, which occurred last evening at the Blanchard hospital in Dracut after a lingering illness. He was 48 years of age and was regarded as one of the best police officers of this city. He is survived by his wife, Jennie L., a son, William, a daughter, Mrs. John Lane and his father, William Abbott. The body was removed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sarre, 84 Wilder street, by Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

George Samson Abbott was born in England, July 4, 1869 and came to this city while a young man. On June 15, 1895, he was appointed to the supernumerary force and on October 23, 1899 he was promoted to the regular force.

PATROLMAN GEORGE S. ABBOTT

PATROLMAN GEORGE S. ABBOTT

As an officer he was popular with his associates and fellow officers and his superiors found him a careful and dutiful servant in the exercise of his official work, and on several occasions he was commended for efficient work. Chief of Police Redmond Welch, commenting on the death of Patrolman Abbott this morning said he was a very efficient and capable officer. He said he was a steady worker and took great pains in the performance of his duties. He was lenient in some cases and always used the best of judgment in making arrests, and his death will be a great loss to the department.

Mr. Abbott for a great many years and up to the time of his illness several months ago, covered the upper Merrimack street route, where he made a host of friends, for he was of a genial disposition and kind to everybody. He was very fond of children and it was a common occurrence to see Patrolman Abbott patrolling his beat accompanied by two or three youngsters.

CHARTER CASE

Plan B Case Virtually at End Unless Petitioners Go to Highest Court

Judge Carroll Doubts if Matter Can Reach Voters
This Fall

(Special to The Sun)

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Sept. 10.—Judge Carroll of the supreme judicial court today dismissed the petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the city clerk of Lowell to treat as a single petition, all the papers filed with him asking that Plan B charter be placed on the ballot at the coming state election.

Announcing his decision, however, the judge stated that the question was one which ought to go to the full court at once. He requested both parties to agree to submit briefs on or before Sept. 20 in order that the court may consider the matter when it sits Oct. 7.

He expressed grave doubt, however, whether there would be time for the court to act as the law requires that the city clerk must have notice 30 days before the election.

Judge Carroll in giving his decision, said: "It is inconceivable that this court would or should require the city clerk to surrender papers after they have once been filed with him. It is essential for the protection of the city and for the protection of the petitioners that such papers should be kept in custody of properly constituted city authorities."

With reference to the contention of Attorney Murphy for the petitioners that all papers should be construed as a single petition, although filed at different times, the court said:

"It is equally imperative for the proper conduct of city affairs that petitions of this sort should be filed as one paper and at one time. The law passed by the legislature clearly contemplates that procedure."

"Petitions may be circulated by 50 or even a larger number of men but before they are filed they should be brought together and filed as one."

William D. Regan, city solicitor, appeared for the Lowell municipal government officials and James Stuart Murphy for the petitioners. HOYT.

COMMENT ON CASE BY CITY SOLICITOR WILLIAM G. REGAN

Judge Carroll's decision is a virtual victory for City Solicitor Regan and it is doubtful that further action will be taken in the matter by the petitioners.

Following Judge Carroll's decision, Mr. Regan said:

"The petitioners were given the right to file a brief to be presented at a special sitting of the court on September 20."

"The court said it was inconceivable that the court should be asked to compel the city clerk to give up papers, once they had been filed with him. He also said that the papers of various petitions should be confined to one petition."

For several years he made his home in Moody street, Pawtucketville. He was a member of the Lowell Police Relief association.

TO QUIT CABINET

Report McAdoo to Devote Entire Time to the Managing of Railroads

John Skelton Williams Slated to Head the Treasury Department

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—William G. McAdoo is expected to step out of the office of secretary of the treasury and John Skelton Williams is expected to step into the cabinet office thus vacated. There has been no announcement of the projected change, official or otherwise, but men who are in position to know believe that this first shift in the war cabinet will come with the new Liberty Loan.

The business of the railroads has developed to such magnitude and calls for such attention even to details by the director general that it is deemed more than any man can do adequately to fill both great offices.

The effort to accomplish this was responsible for the breaking of Mr. McAdoo's health in the spring, and there was dismay in the national capital at the danger, happily averted, that another man would have to be found to take over the tremendous responsibilities. Nobody was able to suggest even a probable successor for the dual job.

Railroads Present Huge Problem
It was recognized then that if McAdoo dropped out two men would have to be chosen to fill his shoes. The anticipated change simply amounts to doing this same thing without losing McAdoo.

Of the two jobs the directorship of the railroads is comparatively the more exacting, and, under existing conditions, the more important. The treasury runs more or less according to routine. The railroads present a constant succession of new problems.

The treasury specialists can determine on policies and decision according to precedent, there are no precedents for the verdicts of the director of railroads.

Transportation is such an intimate element in our war-making that the director has to have his hand on the throttle every moment, so, according to the information on which the opening paragraph of this article is based, McAdoo has elected to stay with the railroad job and pass up the other.

Naturally the report that the director of railroads is to separate himself from the treasury has given rise to the idea that there would be a new cabinet office shortly, that of secretary of transportation, and that, too, seems probable.

For days there have been reports of impending cabinet changes. These dealt mainly with Secretary of War Baker's post. The story was told that Mr. Baker would be the successor of Ambassador Page at London and that McAdoo would be given the place of secretary of war. That is not going to happen.

Whenever Secretary Baker has gone abroad some such report has been floated. Mr. Baker will be back at his old desk in a month or two and will remain there until it is time for another visit to the fighting army, when a recurrence of the reports may be looked for.

McAdoo Constantly on Move

If McAdoo were the sort of executive who could sit with his feet under a desk, or on a desk, the necessity for the change would not have arisen, but he insists on attending to all manner of details, such as the wording of tickets, the rates on pullmans, the re-routing of trains. Last night, for instance, though the director general is off on an inspection of railroads and coal mines, in preparation for the winter campaign against fuel shortage, he is out with the change of the dining-car service from a la carte to table d'hôte.

While he was in Washington between his western trip and his present journey he worked over menus until he had found what he could supply for $1 and $1.25, the prices for lunches and dinners on the dining cars after Oct. 1. While he was at this, he worked out a plan for pooling the eating equipment of various railroads, so that after the first of the month passengers are likely to find themselves patronizing an Illinois Central traveling restaurant on a New York Central run, if that will make for service.

Many persons are wondering what sort of reception the name of John Skelton Williams will get in the senate when it is presented for confirmation. Senators fought him when he was named assistant secretary of treasury and they fought him harder when he was named controller of currency. That was back in the days when the national city clerk, who had been supplying advance statements of the condition of national banks throughout the country, he ordered out of the department.

FOE HAS SPENT EFFORT

We Have Passed Through Dark Days—They Will Never Return, Says Haig

LONDON, Sept. 10.—"We have passed through many dark days. Please God these will never return," says Field Marshal Haig, commander-in-chief of the British forces in France, in an order of the day. The commander then says:

"The enemy has now spent his effort."

rectly south of St. Quentin and but three and a half miles distant. To the north, beyond the Somme, Etrelles and Roupy were taken, while in closing in on La Fere the French captured the Liez fort, northeast of Liez and important wooded land within two miles of La Fere.

Franco-American Gain

On the Franco-American front, just to the south of the Aisne, there was an improvement in the allied position, in the Glenne region. Field Marshal Haig's troops made headway in their turning movement south of Havrincourt, where the left flank of the German positions behind the canal du Nord defending Cambrai on the west is being assailed. A German counter-attack southeast of Havrincourt, was repulsed.

British Move Forward in Flanders

In Flanders the British are continuing their pressure in the direction of Arras and last night they achieved advances north and west of that town. Northeast of Neuve Chapelle, they also moved forward.

Increased Hun Resistance

Increased resistance by the Germans and weather conditions unfavorable to the swift movement of troops have tended to slow down the allied offensive along that stretch of the battle line from St. Quentin to Cambrai. Here the British in fighting of a local character, have carried their lines to Havrincourt wood and Peziere to the south and have taken Verdun and Vendelles. Verdun is about five miles from St. Quentin.

La Fere in Flames

At Liez, the French crossed the Crozat canal and their patrols are nearing La Fere, which is reported to be burning. With the fall of La Fere only a question of time, the French also command all of the region west of the Oise river and are tightening their line around St. Quentin and in the valley to the east through which they must pass to take Laon.

Hun Artillery Fire Increases

From La Fere south, German artillery fire has increased in violence and numerous counter attacks indicate further progress by the French would be contested vigorously. Failure to stop the allied advance at other strong positions and the burning of La Fere furnish evidence of the weakness of the Germans' line and of their ultimate inability to stop the turning movement against the St. Gobain forest, the keystone of their positions holding the further movement eastward of the allied armies. Reinforcements have been rushed into the St. Gobain forest and to the defense of the lines east of Rheims.

The resumption of artillery duels between the opposing forces further strengthens the opinion that for the present at least, the rapid advance has settled down to a bitter struggle for the possession of the strong points in the line—Cambrai, St. Gobain forest and the Chemin-des-Dames.

TIGHTEN LINES AROUND ST. QUENTIN AND LA FERRE

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Sept. 9.—(By The Associated Press.)—French troops forced the crossing of the Crozat canal today, overcoming strong opposition and occupying important positions in the triangle formed by the two branches of the canal and the road from La Fere and St. Quentin. They also advanced north of the Oise, taking the Liez fort and north of the Oise capturing Etrelles and Roupy. Though these were operations of detail, they tightened the lines around both St. Quentin and La Fere, greatly facilitating further operations against both towns.

General Humbert's forces now command the entire region west of the river and the canal from La Fere north beyond a single track railroad that crosses the river at Mezieres. They command all of the approaches to St. Quentin from the north, west and south and are within five miles of the town.

General Mangin's forces south of the Oise took Servais, closing in on La Fere from the south while they improved their position north of La Fere. Both the third and tenth French armies are now practically on the line where the pursuit of the Germans stopped in the spring of 1917. German prisoners say that orders recently issued are to fight to the last man to hold the present positions. There are indications, however, that the Germans have less confidence than last year in the inviolability of their line.

The Hindenburg line, however, comprises a wide system of defenses having a total depth in some places of nearly 10 miles and the fall of its pillars does not mean a breach in the position.

WAR NOW ENTERS A PERIOD OF PRECAUTION

PARIS, Sept. 10.—The allies are now almost back to the lines they occupied before the German offensive after six weeks of unbroken victory, and the war has entered a period, not of calm but of precaution, with a promise of just as wonderful things to follow. The dry and on the whole fine weather which helped Marshal Foch to turn the tables on the Germans so fast has now ended and a wet stormy spell has set in.

IMPORTANT PROGRESS FOR FRENCH ANNOUNCED

PARIS, Monday, Sept. 9.—Important progress towards the southern end of the Hindenburg line in the neighborhood of La Fere, north of the St. Gobain massif, was made by the French forces today. The war office tonight announced the capture of the Liez fort, northeast of the town of Liez and of wooded regions to the east and south-east of Liez, within two miles of La Fere.

Additional ground was gained in the St. Gobain region south of the Oise, where the Servais station was taken as well as a wooded area about a mile and a half to the south.

North of the La Fere region, the French pressed in far, capturing the towns of Remigny, Montecourt-Livrolles, Clastres, Seracourt-le-Grand, Roupy and Etrelles, the last two towns being within three and a half miles of St. Quentin.

Improvements were effected in the French positions north of La Fere, opposite the end of the Chemin-des-Dames. There was also improvement of the position in the region of Glenne south of Aisne, where Franco-American forces are operating. The statement reads:

"New progress realized today by our troops at various points on the battlefield."

"North of the Somme, we captured the villages of Etrelles and Roupy. Beyond the Crozat canal, we have taken Seracourt-le-Grand, Montecourt-Livrolles and Remigny. Our advance elements occupied hill 103, south of Contescourt station, Essigny-le-Grand and hill 117."

"North of the Oise we took the fort of Liez, the wood northwest of the Caniers farm and the Rouge farm."

"South of the Oise, we have taken Briguitay and the Servais station. Elsewhere, we improved our positions north of La Fere and also between the Aisne and the Vesle in the region of Glenne."

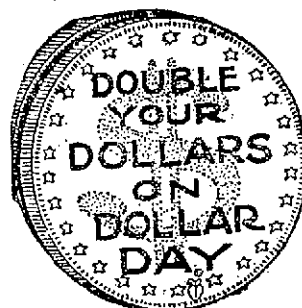

"Army of the east (Sept. 7.) There was activity along the entire front, particularly west of the Verdun, in the bend of the German, in the region of Monastir and between the lakes, where the enemy attempted a raid which failed with losses. In Albania, there were patrol encounters."

"The report from the army of the east under date of Sept. 8, reads:

STRIKE ENDED

Middlesex and Boston Street
Railway Men are Granted
Wage Increase

Service Resumed Today—En-
dicott Announces Award—
Cars Run Through Lowell

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Though the Middlesex & Boston Street railway is operated at a loss, according to Henry B. Endicott, executive chairman of the Massachusetts committee of public safety, acting as arbitrator in the controversy between the company and its striking employees, he has awarded all employees a substantial increase, thus ending the strike. Cars will be run by the company on the old schedule today, and as it is agreed that there shall be no discrimination against any of the men on strike all the old men probably will be back in their usual places. An important feature of the settlement is that both sides to the dispute have agreed with Mr. Endicott that during the continuance of the war there will be no strike or lockouts on the property and that if any differences arise they shall be submitted, either to the national war labor board or to Mr. Endicott, as the company may elect.

Endicott Hears Both Sides
Mr. Endicott passed the whole day yesterday listening to the presentation of the case, James H. Vahey, attorney for the carmen, and Pres. Pitt F. Dow of the company having agreed earlier in the day to accept Mr. Endicott as arbitrator.

The question referred to him solely affected the wages of the so-called blue uniform men and the miscellaneous employees. The blue uniform men are motormen and conductors; the miscellaneous employees are carmen, trackmen, track layers, crossing tenders, watchmen and others.

The agreement is to hold until July 1, 1919.

"I find that the company is running at a loss," Mr. Endicott declares in his report, "but that the wages of the men must be fixed notwithstanding that fact, because there is no question in my mind, and none was raised before me, about the increase in the cost of living."

"I therefore find that the blue-uniform men shall receive the following wages: For the first year of service, 35 cents an hour; for the second year of service, 37 cents an hour; for the third year of service, 39 cents an hour; for the fourth year of service, 41 cents an hour; for the fifth year of service, 42 cents an hour."

Award Retroactive to July
"Concerning the miscellaneous employees, I find that the wages should be fixed as follows: The four men who are now doing car control work, running cars in barns and cleaning cars, shall receive 35 cents an hour; all other miscellaneous employees receiving 30 cents an hour, or less, shall receive 38½ cents an hour; all those receiving from 30 to 35 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 40 cents an hour; those receiving from 35 to 39½ cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 41 cents an hour; those receiving 40 cents an hour shall receive, hereafter, 42 cents an hour; those receiving 41 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 43 cents an hour."

"It has been agreed between the company and the men that this award, so far as all employees are concerned, shall be effective as of July 1, 1918."

Men Accept Award

WALTHAM, Sept. 10.—A meeting of the Middlesex & Boston employees and representatives of other trolley lines in Massachusetts took place last night in Hibernian hall, at which the striking employees unanimously voted to accept the award of Henry B. Endicott.

The announcement of Mr. Endicott's findings was made by James H. Vahey. The meeting last night was originally called to discuss a state-wide strike, but in view of the award, the matter was not taken up.

NO EXTENSION

necessity of making an extension of its Varnum avenue line in Lowell.

Two years ago the public service commission ordered the Bay State to make this extension for the general good of the community.

The ruling as handed down today by the commission rescinds the order it gave the trolley company two years ago. The commission in its announcement today points out that even two years ago the trolley company was not in a good financial condition and that in the interim its financial condition has not improved, that it has in fact gone into the hands of a receiver, and an increase in its income due to its being allowed to increase its price for its service, in the form of increased fares and shortened fare zones, has not materialized to the amount that it was expected to.

The commission says that while there is no doubt but that the extension of the line in Varnum avenue would be a much desired convenience for Lowell people, it is manifestly inexpedient to expect the company to try to build this line at the present time in view of its financial condition and the commission does not view the extension of the Varnum avenue line at this time as being in the nature of a public nature. It is for this reason, the commission says, it has decided not to hold the Bay State company to observance of the order the commission made in this case two years ago. HOYT.

MANY YEARS' AGITATION PRECEDED WHAT WAS THOUGHT TO BE VICTORY

The agitation for the extension of the Varnum avenue line from Lexington avenue, where it now stops, as far as Tormen road, has been going on for several years. A considerable number of people would be inconvenienced by the proposed extension and the residents have fought steadily for the improvement.

It was thought that victory had been finally attained two years ago when the public service commission ordered the railway company to make the requested extension, but evidently this victory is to be withheld.

In opposition to the idea of the proposed extension is the argument that the Varnum avenue line has never paid heavy dividends and for that reason the Bay State people were loath to make further investments there.

BOY IS KILLED

Charles McMahon Falls Down Elevator Shaft

Charles McMahon, aged 14 years, son of Mrs. Anastasia McMahon, 1375 Middlesex street, fell down a freight elevator well at the plant of the D. L. Page Co. in Merrimack street last evening and sustained injuries, which caused his death a few minutes later.

Just how the accident happened is not known, and is a source of no little wonder to those who worked with him, inasmuch as the elevator was not running at the time of the accident, and the doors being of a type which seemingly would make such a mishap impossible.

There were no witnesses to the accident and when the boy was found he was lying at the bottom of the pit suffering from severe injuries to the head. The ambulance was called, but the boy passed away before reaching the hospital. The body was removed to the funeral parlor of M. H. McDonough Sons.

LOWELL REPRESENTED AT BOSTON MEETING

John J. O'Rourke, of the local board of trade, attended a meeting of commercial executives of the state last Friday at the Boston City club. About 22 cities were represented. The meeting was called to order by Frank Wither of Taunton, president of the state board of trade, at 1 o'clock and it proved to be one of the most important meetings ever held by this organization.

It was pointed out, in a most convincing manner, that if Massachusetts was to hold her own in the industrial lines, steps should be taken immediately to safeguard her manufacturing business. Facts and figures were stated showing that while Massachusetts progressed to some extent, its progress was not nearly as much as other states, particularly the surrounding ones. This was caused, to a great extent, by the increasing taxation, particularly of manufacturing machinery, that is being yearly added to the burden of the manufacturer.

The surrounding states have not adopted this method of taxation with the result that they are showing anywhere from 100 to 250 per cent industrial business than Massachusetts can show in the same time.

It was pointed out that our state board of trade could be made much more effective by the co-operation of every board of trade, or chamber of commerce throughout the state. Plans were discussed at length and a complete re-organization of the state board is about to be established whereby it is hoped that by the united action of every city and town in the state the vital interests of Massachusetts may be safeguarded and her future assured.

THE "Y" HUSTLED AND KEPT UP WITH ARMY

PARIS, Sept. 10.—When Franco-American forces gave the boche that memorable licking on the Chateau Thierry front, the Y.M.C.A. canteen department was put to a test few organizations of similar character ever faced. The battle moved swiftly. The Red Triangle had to move with equal celerity or get left. Getting left is one thing that the "Y" objects to. It never has happened since the overseas work began.

So swiftly did the scene of action shift during the progress of the fight that the armies' ration carts couldn't always keep up. Conditions were such that it was not humanly possible to give the men the food that normally is issued to them. In some cases, it was impossible to give them any. The Y.M.C.A. supplies, ordinarily classed as something to supplement the rations, became the means actually of sustaining some of the fighters.

ENGLISH PASTOR HERE SEPT. 17.
DR. A. T. Guttery of Liverpool, Eng., one of the special missionaries appointed by the premier of Great Britain, Hon. Lloyd George, to present the question of "The Churches and the Moral Aims of the War," to the American people, will speak at the Gorham St. P. M. church on the evening of Sept. 17, his services having been secured through the efforts of the pastor, Rev. N. W. Matthews.

"RODDY" STARTS OVERSEAS TO PLEASE THE BUDDIES WITH BOOM! BOOM! HORN

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Homer Roddeheaver has gone to teach Pershing's men how to sing "Brighten the Corner Where You Are." Escorting his celebrated trombone, Billy Sunday's old chorus master left in the Y.M.C.A. overseas service uniform to be a soldier song leader for the duration of the war. "Roddy" is to specialize in the song he made famous, but incidentally will dispense other tunes outside the evangelistic line, such as "The Last Long Mile" and "Good Morning, Mr. Zip-Zip-Zip."

REGISTRATION AIDS ARE READY FOR DAY

Lowell men who have volunteered as assistant draft registrars for the registration to be held here Thursday, not last evening in city hall and disorganized plans for their work. James J. Gallagher presided at the meeting. The fact that men must register in the precinct where they live was emphasized. The Lowell Greek community offered the use of the basement of the Greek church for the registration of men in that district and the offer was accepted.

Registrars were assigned to the various precincts, the basis of allotment, in most instances, being the location of the registrars' home.

The central registration committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at city hall to make final arrangements.

MISS NASH STARTS FOR CAMP MERRITT

Miss Annie M. Nash, a graduate of St. John's hospital and one of the best known nurses in Lowell, left today for Camp Merritt, New Jersey, to serve as an army Red Cross nurse. Miss Nash has been stationed at the North Reading sanitarium for some time past. She has served for two years as president of the Nurses' Alumnae association of St. John's.

DENTISTS NOT EXEMPT

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—A ruling from Provost Marshal General Crowder has been made public by the Preparedness League of American Dentists, composed of 17,000 dentists, who for almost a year have been doing free work to prepare drafted men for camp. General Crowder has stated that officials and members of the Preparedness League shall not be exempt from the draft even though they are members of Medical Advisory boards and giving their service gratis to the soldiers.

When John Elbridge Mitchell of Winthrop, Me., went into the service, his sister, Miss Thelma, promptly went to work in her father's garage. He says that on certain kinds of work she is as good as any man he knows. With the assistance of another helper, Miss Mitchell put into running order an automobile 10 years old that had been cast aside as worthless.

DRACUT'S NEW MILL

Merrimack Woolen Company's Addition May Be Done Before Winter

The addition to the factory owned by the Merrimack Woolen Co. at the Navy Yard, Dracut, is fast materializing. The walls are mounting higher and higher every day and it is expected that the structure will be finished in a short time. The new building will alleviate the crowded condition of the factory and incidentally will cost a tidy sum—between $30,000 and $25,000.

Chicken thieves are reported as operating in the vicinity of Dracut. Several residents of the Collinsville section have had their hen houses visited during the night and in one case at least, the thieves got away with a lot of valuable chickens. It behooves the police of the town to make some attempt to put a stop to the depredations.

David Sorenson and family have changed their place of residence from Dracut street to Riverside street. Mrs. Margaret Dinley of Dinley st. is seriously ill at her home. Andrew J. McGarry, proprietor of the Ideal market, is at his place of business again after an enforced absence caused by a bad cut which he received when a tonic bottle which he held in his hand, exploded.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE

DURHAM, N. H., Sept. 10.—President R. D. Hetzel of New Hampshire college announced today that college would open this year for men Sept. 25, and for women, Oct. 1. The delay in resuming the women's classes is caused by the fact that the college has accepted the offer of the war department to establish here at once a unit of the students' army training corps.

100 SAILORS SUFFER FROM INFLUENZA

BROOKLINE, Sept. 10.—Nearly 100 sailors of the merchant marine suffering from influenza, who have been stationed aboard training vessels in Boston harbor, were removed for treatment today to tents pitched on the summit of Corey Hill, which forms a part of the grounds of Brooks hospital. Strenuous efforts are being made to prevent the further spread of the disease. Many cases have been reported from men in the navy stationed in this vicinity.

TO LIMIT OUTPUT OF WHITE THREAD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Manufacturers of cotton thread were directed by the war industries board to limit output of white thread to 14 sizes, of black to seven and of colored to one, with all spools of the smallest practical diameter for 200 yards.

N. E. BOOKMEN WILL GET SOLDIERS' BOOKS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—New England library leaders interested in the raising of $3,500,000, the quota of the American Library association in the united war work campaign, met yesterday in the Boston public library. J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., appointed by Secretary Baker a member of the war work council, presided.

Mr. Coolidge referred briefly to the second library war fund campaign and the satisfaction among librarians that this is to be a united campaign of welfare associations, including the six New England states. The campaign will open Nov. 1.

Wickes Wambolt, national campaign director, briefly outlined the plan for organization. Edward M. Huntress, who will direct the campaign in New England, emphasized the need of concerted action. He said the organization would be represented in every town and city by teams.

Dr. M. L. Ranney, in charge of the overseas services of the American Library association, spoke of services established abroad, and of the need for enlargement.

Dr. Ranney said England has spent $10,000,000 for books for war service. France is also active in providing books for soldiers in the trenches and Germany has provided traveling libraries. In the past 10 months 43 military camps here have been equipped with American library buildings, each containing 30,000 volumes.

Books have been sent to 234 small units. Even foresters in a remote place in Northern Scotland have been provided with books. There has been a great demand, he said, for technical books.

WILLIAM J. KILLOY IS NOW ARMY SERGEANT

Friends of William J. Killoy, son of Patrolman William H. Killoy, 23 Rockdale avenue, will be interested to learn that the young man, now serving overseas with the army in France, has recently been promoted to sergeant.

He went to Camp Devens, Oct. 12, 1917 and later to Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga. While at Camp Gordon he attended the school for non-commissioned officers and was later assigned to the commanders detail which consisted of ten men. Before leaving for France he was stationed for a time at Camp Mills, Long Island. When living in Lowell Sergt. Killoy had many friends who will be glad to learn of his promotion.

ENVELOPE INDUSTRY IS PLACED AT DISPOSAL OF THE GOVERNMENT

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Fifty leading manufacturers, representing 50 per cent of the envelope industry of the country, at a special meeting of the American Envelope Manufacturers' association and the bureau of envelope manufacturers here yesterday placed their resources at the disposal of the government.

ARTHUR E. HOLDER

Machinist Who Is Helping to Put Uncle Sam's Labor on Sound Footing

BY ROGER W. BABSON
(Famous Writer on Labor and Economics)

If you step in at the Washington office of the federal board of vocational education and ask for Arthur E. Holder, you will see a man a bit over 60 years of age, who is looked up to by 180,000 machinists as the best type of man which the International Machinists' union can contribute to the nation.

Holder has had his present job for just about a year, for he was appointed by President Wilson in July, 1917.

This is not, however, his first experience in Washington. Since 1904 he has spent most of his time here: first as associate editor of the Machinists' Journal, and since 1906 as a member of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor.

His record in this work was remarkable. During ten years he helped secure the passage of 118 separate pieces of legislation favorable to labor, to defeat six unfavorable laws and to bring it to pass that not one unfavorable law was enacted. When it is remembered that this work was accomplished in the face of the most strenuous activity on the part of the National Association of Manufacturers and of the railroad companies, the performance becomes noteworthy.

Of course Holder went to Washington with previous experience which trained him for his Washington successes. In Iowa he was active in politics, was deputy commissioner of labor, was the state's first factory inspector, and soon after coming to Washington he was sent by the United States bureau of labor statistics to Europe to make a thorough study of compensation, education, conciliation and arbitration laws in England and on the continent.

Who is this man and what are his antecedents?

Well, he is just an ordinary working man. He was born in 1860, left an orphan in 1867, apprenticed at the age of fourteen after but eight years of elementary schooling, and from that into work.

But he did more than work. He went to night school to round out his education. In two years he was certified as a journeyman machinist and went to work on ship board, both in the naval and merchant marine service, as an engineer. After this he was on shore, at work in ship yards, locomotive repair work and in general machinist work. He gained much knowledge by going from place to place and getting contact with different men and various conditions.

His labor union membership covers forty-three consecutive years. He was in the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the Knights of Labor and for the past twenty years in the great International Machinists' union, with its 180,000 members—one of the largest and best of the trade unions affiliated with the A. F. of L.

He was for three years president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor. During this time he went up and down the state speaking and organizing unions, largely at his own expense, and succeeded in forming over 300 new locals.

He is a man who would have made his mark in any calling he might have chosen. He has a discriminating and judicial type of mind. In the past eight years he has been a member of the legal committee of the machinists' union, most of the times chairman. The laws of the union were completely rewritten during his term of office, and they are now taken as model trade union laws by many unions seeking new bases of organization.

This is the type of labor men that President Wilson is choosing to assist in putting the labor work of the United States on a sound and just footing. The Machinists' International feels a just pride in the fact that they have made this contribution of Arthur E. Holder to the common cause of labor, and the country itself is fortunate in that men of this type are being developed—men who see labor's side and who have in addition sufficient mental grasp to take hold of large matters in a large way.

"Is Mr. Littlefield in?" asked a man who rang a doorbell at 67 Eastern av. August 1, 1918. In another moment James Alexander of Camden and Otis W. Littlefield of Augusta, two old naval cronies of the Civil war, met for the first time in 53 years. They were both sailors on the monitor Monitor, which took part in the battle of Fort Fisher, and they sat down and talked over for two hours the naval incidents of 1864. Both are 73 years of age.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Michael Sabo of Goshen, Mass., and Miss Ruth Woodbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Woodbury of 44 Os-good street, were married last evening at the home of the bride, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Walter E. Woodbury, a brother of the bride and pastor of the Worthen Street Baptist church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ida Woodbury as bridesmaid and Mrs. Norris E. Woodbury as maid of honor. The best man was a brother of the bride, Mr. Norris E. Woodbury. The happy couple will make their home at Goshen, Mass.

How About Your Danger Zone?

YOU'VE got it—every human being is born with it—your large intestine, or colon. It is a large tube—a reservoir or sewer—intended to collect waste matter and remove it from the body.

Plug it up with waste, neglect it, and you're sick on your feet. The waste matter stagnates, undergoes decay, fermentation and germ action. Dangerous poisons are produced, that can easily be absorbed and carried all over the body.

Allow constipation to become established, and you are liable to become definitely and miserably sick—and not on your feet either. You have broken Nature's laws.

Better be kind to her. Keep the danger zone clean, with a regular bowel movement, and Nature will thank you, and pay you back in gold coin—health, good nature, and a feeling of eagerness for your daily task.

A large proportion of almost every form of sickness is caused or made worse by the poisons produced as a result of constipation.

Nujol has the approval of established medical practice, because it does not upset the system as do pills, castor oil and purgative mineral waters, salts, etc. It softens the contents of the colon, making them easy for the intestinal muscles to move at regular hours. Don't fight Nature. Help her. Nujol is health insurance for tens of thousands of American families today. Sold at drug stores everywhere.

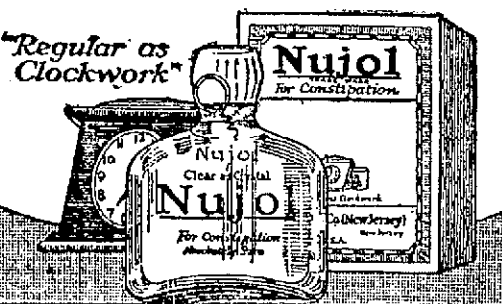

Warning:

NUJOL is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. Insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

LAND OF CONFUSION AND MANY GOVERNMENTS

(Staff Correspondent, Newspaper Enterprise Association.)
HARBIN, Manchuria, August 16.—
"Go to Siberia! Write full particulars of situation there!"
In Mukden, Manchuria, I got that cable from my home office in the United States. I had been on my way to Peking. But—people ordered to Siberia always go. I went! Out of contentment into chaos.
All day I traveled northward over the fertile Manchurian plain in one of the world's finest trains, the South Manchurian express, pride of Japan's colonial railway management. Under the bright sun the Chinese farmers worked—six, eight, ten to a field. How peaceful that pastoral scene was!
American Outpost in Siberia.
By evening confusion and haze began. At Chang-Chun, half way to Harbin, the rain was a flood. Through it I grasped at a straw, a man in khaki, outpost of America, lieutenant in the American railway engineers corps serving in Russia.
At midnight I was on "Russian soil"—Russian railway coach under Russian sovereignty. The lieutenant had fought a way for us through the noisy, twisting mass of Chinese, Russians and Japanese jamming the dimly-lit Chang-Chun station platform. In the coach he had seized a compartment for us—fought for it.
It was almost pitch dark inside the coach. We couldn't see the lieutenant's face as we bade him goodby. A tallow candle, high in a lantern frame, cast just enough light to reveal two bare bunks. No pillows! No bedding! Plenty of dirt!
Russian Anarchy Begins
We locked the door, folded our wet raincoats into pillows, wrapped in blankets the lieutenant had given us and lay down. Japanese and Korean trains had never been even a minute late. This train, made up here, was starting more than an hour behind time.
Japanese order had ended. Here began the Russian-run Chinese Eastern railroad, link in the Trans-Siberian. The coach was Russian, and Russia was anarchy.
Pounding at the door awakened us three times. Twice it was passport examination. Heavily-bearded Russian officials scowled over our papers. Something was wrong. They spoke no English, I no Russian. We would be arrested? Or just thrown off? They handed back the passport. Safe again!
Then other passengers tried to force their way into the compartment. We pushed them out by force, locked the door against them, and kept it locked no matter who pounded.

Work of the Chinese.
By dawn the train had crossed the Sungari river and was stopping ten minutes to half an hour at every wayside station. At each stop most of the passengers got out and walked up and down in groups, talking like conspirators.
Fine forests bordered wide valleys, wet but now sparkling in the sun, where big herds of cattle grazed. The Chinese farmers were still busy. I have since seen them work between the rifles of opposing forces. But a strip each side of the track was Russia, which is not working, and hours late we dropped down on Harbin—Russian city in the heart of the Chinese province of Manchuria. Then the only quiet spot in Russia or Siberia, then the only haven for soviet rule and therefore crowded with refugees.
Now Harbin is more than a "safe port" in the storm of revolution. It is a military base, today. Here intervening troops of the allies are starting their operations against Bolshevik and armed German prisoners. Most of the trains just now, from Chang-Chun to Harbin, are troop trains, carrying Chinese or Japanese troops the first stage of their journey to aid the Czech-Slavs wipe out Germanism in Siberia.
Harbin the Fighting Center
In Harbin today diplomats agree on and military staffs plan army campaigns in Siberia. Orders for military stores are being sent, and arrangements made to receive and forward them. Here General Horvath governs of these Russian acres through his position as head of the Chinese eastern railway, proclaimed himself provisional ruler of Siberia, and from here he sent his army to Grodovsk, on the Manchurian-Siberian border, half way to Vladivostok, to link up with the Czech army which captured Nikolai after taking over Vladivostok.
It has been hard to keep track of the different "Siberian governments" I have seen arise in the last few weeks.

It is still hard to determine just what will be the scope and who the head of the new order in Siberia now forming out of these various factors.
At times there have seemed to be five of them:
1—The Horvath government.
2—The autonomous Siberian Government, or "Derber government," named after its first premier.
3—The Vladivostok government, which for a while claimed the support of the allied consuls at Vladivostok.
4—The western Siberian provisional government, first announced to have chosen General Alexieff as its generalissimo.
5—The Czech-Slavs, on whose sensational military successes, one of the most electrifying campaigns of the present war, which I am describing in a later story, all the new Siberian units have been built up.
But it is my judgment that, when all the rumors in this hotbed of rumors are sifted, things simmered down, with allied intervention, to the Horvath group, accused of being so-called reactionaries, and the autonomous Siberian government group, accused by Horvath of being too radical and socialist.
So great and so general was Russia's disorganization, even here in comparatively settled Siberia, that without allied intervention these two factions would probably have remained at sixes and sevens, pulling in opposite directions, until the results of the Czech military successes, the actual, factual basis of the hope for a new Siberia, had fallen down in the crack between them and been lost. Even today full Siberian unity has not been achieved. But—
Intervention is Timely
The chief timeliness of allied intervention lay in this:
It came at the psychological moment to summon the Horvath crowd and the autonomous Siberia faction to unite with the intervening allied troops and the Czechs, and present a single front to the Bolsheviks and armed German prisoners who are the mutual enemy of all these Siberian camps.
Only outside force could have amalgamated Siberians, even when the Czech-Slavs presented them their release from Bolshevism on a silver platter. On that basis and toward that end the present campaign is being conducted.
The Czech-Slovaks
They come from Bohemia, Slovakia and adjoining provinces in the heart of the central empires, between Austria proper and Germany.
In the middle ages they were a powerful independent nation.
For almost 300 years they have been Austrian subjects against their will.
When the world war started they made up a part of the Austro-Hungarian army because they had to. The Austrians executed hundreds of the more rebellious.
At the first opportunity they deserted or surrendered to the Russians and became either nominal Russian prisoners or units in the Russian army.
When the Germans advanced into Russia after Trotsky and Lenin signed the peace treaty they faced execution as deserters, and started 60,000 strong, through Siberia towards the Pacific, intending to sail for America and from there to the French fighting front.
Attached by armed German-Austrian prisoners, they postponed their French trip to clean up Siberia.
Fifteen thousand of them, already in Vladivostok, took the city from the Bolsheviks and are now fighting their way back towards Russia to rescue their comrades, 45,000 of whom are still in the interior. The latter have taken two-thirds of the Trans-Siberian railroad from the Bolsheviks, and are now fighting eastward through Siberia toward Vladivostok.
Allied military investigators in Siberia call them the finest soldiers in the world today.
Kept from the French front, they may be the creators of a new western front, an infinitely greater war service.

petite and chic vaudeville ladies have displayed the same mannerisms as Corrine Sales, but she is unique among them all.
Therein lies the principal reason for the success of the pair. They are different. Last evening Dooley had a lot to say about registration day next Thursday and when Miss Sales complained in her very best Parisian that she had a sprained wrist, Dooley came back strong with the remark that she was attempting to "claim exemption." Then the couple sang—and either of them can sing—or told jokes that one never heard before and finally brought "Billy" Gilmore into the argument. Running through it all was an unmistakable vein of personality which made you feel that you had known the couple for years. That lovable, reticent phrase of Miss Sales, which has given the act its title, "Will yer, Jim?" is pronounced at the appropriate moment a number of times while the couple are on the stage and each preoccupation draws forth a bigger laugh. If you've seen Dooley & Sales, you know what they are; if not, get busy.
The Boyer company of Russian dancers is another high light on the week's program. There are four men and three women in the company and they present one of the best Russian dancing acts that Lowell has seen for some time. Vigorous, speedy and at times approaching the seemingly impossible, the various numbers are gone through with the skill and precision that denote real artists. The native garb and appropriate scenery play no small part in the success of the affair. Incidentally the introductory singing of the septette is exceptionally well done.
Russell Mack and Blanche Vincent are somewhat along the Dooley-Sales type, but not unpleasantly so. Mack is very young and slender, has a good voice and most prominent of all, is a real "character" man. Without doubt he has made a study of those whom he imitates and happily, he has confined himself almost wholly to their lighter sides.
His Hebrew impersonations are excellent and last evening he brought the house down with his monologue about a colored soldier about to go overseas. A little bit of pathos was introduced, but merely a sprinkling. Comedy is predominant in his every move. Miss Vincent plays the piano well and makes an excellent partner for Mack.

Moran and Wisner present a comedy hat-throwing act in which the people in the audience take almost as active a part as do the men themselves. They were more than enjoyed last evening.
Magic with its funny side uppermost forms the nucleus of the offering of the Mystic Hanson Trio, a man and two women. The men does the magic, talks volubly and makes himself generally lovable. The girls sing and dance.
Neta Johnson is a light-haired, slender little girl who has an excellent voice and knows how to use it. She sings classics and popular war songs and does it in a winning manner.
Gervais & White provide an excellent opening act. Chester Conkili in "His First False Step," is the comedy picture and the B. K. Keith pictorial of current events is filled with timely views.

present day events, to unfold its theme would be taking away much of its entertaining power for those who anticipate a visit to the theatre. Be it said, however, that the play is a very interesting one and one that is sure to please everyone.
In addition to these highly entertaining plays there is also the Pathe Weekly, which contains pictures of the newest phases of army and navy life. The allied war pictures show actual scenes taken on the battle front in France, Belgium and Italy, and they give an inkling of the good work accomplished by the allies during the recent drive. The American soldiers are also shown to advantage.
The comedy is one of the side-splitting kind. Miss Ethel Walcott Rose is the soloist for the week and her singing is very pleasing. The bill is one of exceptional value and must be taken in to be enjoyed.

AMUSEMENT NOTES
B. K. KEITH'S THEATRE
Dooley & Sales, that intangible pair, are back in Lowell again with all their fascinating spirit of fun and whimsicality and they easily lead an excellent comedy bill being presented at B. K. Keith's theatre this week.
Even the casual patron of local vaudeville is quite familiar with Dooley & Sales. They are old-timers in the sense that they have been here before, but the appellation applies no further. Every line of their "stuff" is bright and new and present with wit that is really unique. Many comedy men have said the same things, acted in seemingly the same manner as J. B. Francis Dooley, but not one has attained the results that Dooley has. Many

THE STRAND THEATRE
The big events at the Strand theatre for the first three days of the week are two of the latest film offerings by the Metro and World Film corporations. "Tether Dear Charming" and "In Judgment Of." Louise Huff is being featured in the former, while the stellar roles in the latter are being sustained by Anna Nilsson and Franklin Parnell.
The story of "Tether Dear Charming" deals with a young woman who has become interested in Red Cross work and a young American aviator, who is back home recovering from wounds. The young man falls in love with the young woman, who masquerades as a young French maid in order to meet the aviator. The aviator falls in love with the French maid and she encourages his advances without once letting him know her true identity. The complications that follow are highly interesting, and of course all ends well.
"In Judgment Of" tells a story of

RULES OF EXEMPTIONS IN INDUSTRIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The new priorities classification of industry announced yesterday by the war industries board will not bind district draft boards in determining deferred classification on occupation grounds of men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, who are to register Thursday.

The boards may determine that other industries are necessary, but in granting deferred classification they must satisfy themselves that the industry is necessary, and further, that the individual registrant is essential to the industry.

These facts were disclosed by Provost Marshal General Crowder's plans for applying a more liberal occupational exemption scheme in classifying the new registrants, which was made yesterday, with the complete text of the amended draft regulations and a supplement to the questionnaire explaining to registrants the sections in which facts relating to their classification should be noted.

The regulations provide that the advisory committee of three to each district board, one to be named by the department of labor, one by the department of agriculture, and the third by the board itself, may introduce at hearings on deferred classification, the war industries board priorities list, but adds:

"Such lists shall not be regarded as binding upon the district board in its conclusions as to whether or not any particular industry, occupation or employment, including agriculture, is a necessary industry, occupation or employment within the meaning of the law and regulations, nor shall such lists prevent the district board from holding as necessary any industry, occupation or employment, including agriculture, not contained therein. Such preference lists and other facts and information in the possession of such advisers will supplement the information in possession of the district boards, and will also be used to assist the district boards in dealing with specific cases."

Detailing the method boards are to follow, the regulations say a registrant shall be considered entitled to exemption only when "completely engaged" in an occupation the boards class as essential; when his removal would result in substantial damage to the enterprise, and when "the available supply of persons competent in the capacity is such that the registrant cannot be replaced without direct, substantial, material loss and detriment to the effective operation of the enterprise."

New Boilers

believed that the work can be completed within a month.

It was also voted to transfer the little plot of land at the junction of Nesmith and Rogers street which belongs to the city from the department of public property to the park department. It is planned to improve the appearance of the land.

Meeting in Detail

The meeting was called at 10.13. Commissioners Morse and Warnock were absent.

The petitions of J. E. Conant & Co. to store gasoline at 332 Central street, and that of Mary E. Renaud for gasoline at Marshall and Grand streets, were held over for a hearing Oct. 1.

Mayor Thompson then announced the lowest bidders for the installation of new boilers in the basement of city hall and said that Commissioner Warnock had drawn up contracts as he had been previously instructed. The Scannell boiler works was awarded the contract for two 72-inch boilers. A complete set of castings, fittings, etc., will be provided and the boilers will be delivered in the rear of city hall.

Ferrell & Conant were awarded the contract for steam fitting work, taking down old pipes and putting up all new pipes. The cost will be $3795.

D. H. Walker was awarded the contract for taking down the old brick work surrounding the old boilers, getting the new boilers in the cellar, removing the old ones and repairing whatever damage may be done. The cost will be $2955.

Old Bartlett School

Commissioner Warnock was granted permission to call for bids for the selling and tearing down of the old Bartlett school which was recently burned. The land is to remain the property of the city.

It was voted to transfer the plot of land at Nesmith and Rogers street from the department of public property to the park department. The mayor explained that at present the land is ill-kept and is more or less of a dumping ground. Supt. Korman of the park department said that inasmuch as his department had men employed at Port Hill park which is near the land in question, it would be an easy matter to have them keep it in condition.

Upon recommendation of the city solicitor and after investigation by the mayor, it was voted to pay the sum of $100 to Thomas G. Beckford of Chelmsford for personal injuries sustained Sept. 12, 1916, when he tripped over railroad ties in Chelmsford street as he was about to board a car. The ties were placed there by the city and it is claimed that there were no lights near them.

An order introduced by Commissioner Donnelly calling a meeting of voters for primaries Sept. 24, for the purpose of nominating state officials was passed. The polls are to be open from noon until 5 p. m.

The petition of John Palos to store gasoline at 5 and 7 Sargent street was not granted and on recommendation of Commissioner Brown, was he was given leave to withdraw.

The report of Commissioner Morse on the petition of Max L. Carz that a sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Highland avenue was accepted and the accompanying order adopted.

Reports from Commissioner Brown on the following petitions for garage or gasoline licenses were accepted and the licenses granted: Thompson Hardware Co., Clapp Stable & Garage Co., 500 Middlesex street; Louis Poissant, 138 Dalton street; William H. Saunders, 138 Methuen street; Alphonse Elbeault, 21 Wilder avenue; Emil C. Pearson, 234 Stevens street; Charles E. Cooke, 248 Pine street.

The claim of Arthur J. Herbert for injuries sustained by his son, Arthur J. Herbert, at the Lincoln school playground Aug. 13, was referred to the law department.

Upon recommendation of Commissioner Brown, the petition of Green & Silverblatt for garage and gasoline at 755 Westford street was given leave to withdraw.

The petition of Arthur Phornari of 68 Swift street for garage which had previously been given leave to withdraw, was brought up again and granted. A mistake in the address was the cause of the original petition being given leave to withdraw. Adjourned at 10.15 until next Tuesday at 10 a. m.

SEVEN ARRESTED AT THE DEBS TRIAL

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10.—The speed with which a jury was selected and the arrest of seven persons in the court room for applauding the peroration of Seymour Stedman, attorney for the defense, were features of the opening of the trial of Eugene V. Debs yesterday on five counts of an indictment charging violation of the espionage act.

Rose Pastor Stokes was among those who admitted applauding, and was arrested on orders from the bench by Judge D. C. Westenhaver. The others were J. S. Basisto, Max Shogren, Margaret Prevey of Akron, O., who is on Debs' bond, Frank Wells, Edgar Delaney and J. J. Fried.

The offenders apparently were carried off their feet by the eloquence of Stedman's opening, which in all occupied only 30 minutes.

Judge Westenhaver, however, exceedingly wrath, saw in it only a deliberate contempt of court, remarking that in all his experience he had never known so flagrant a case. Later he said that perhaps he had been unduly excited, but even then only allowed the prisoners their liberty on their personal recognizance instead of on bail. He ordered them to appear before him a half hour in advance of the resumption of the trial.

E. B. Kavanagh, for the prosecution, observed in his opening that the jury should judge Debs "by his works." Stedman accepted the def., saying: "The defense accepts the challenge. You shall know him by his works—by the works of his whole life." He sat down amid applause.

The judge was a full minute in grasping the incident. Then, recovering, he addressed the jury in a voice that quivered with anger: "Bring that man in the brown coat standing to the left of the doorway to the bench. Bring any others that you saw clapping their hands."

In a moment the seven were before the bar, among them Mrs. Stokes, the factory girl who became the wife of the millionaire socialist of New York, J. G. Phelps Stokes. She answered quietly when questioned: "Yes, I applauded." The others made various excuses.

Stedman and W. K. Cunnep argued earnestly against holding the culprits. It took only 3 hours and 15 minutes to obtain a jury, all old men and mostly men of property. Mr. Stedman said it was not the kind of jury he would have chosen, but the judge's instructions admitted of little latitude in challenging for cause. Only two men were dismissed in this manner, both confessing that it would be difficult to dislodge their prejudice against anyone opposing the government, however slightly, in any of its war measures.

In the government opening Debs was said to have held the army, the navy and the uniform up to ridicule and made remarks calculated to promote insubordination and attempted to propagate obstruction to the draft.

The case may go to the jury in a week or 10 days, as two days, it is believed, will suffice for the government witnesses. The first witnesses today will be two stenographers who took down Debs' remarks at Canton.

Seven Persons Fined

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 10.—Judge D. C. Westenhaver administered fines at the opening of the Debs trial today to the seven persons who applauded in court yesterday. Rose Pastor Stokes, Mrs. Margaret Prevey and J. J. Fried were fined $25 and the others $15. Mrs. Stokes and Mrs. Prevey at first insisted they would go to jail as a matter of principle, but friends argued them out of it.

The government then began the introduction of evidence in its attempt to prove that Eugene V. Debs violated the espionage act in a speech at Canton, Ohio, June 16.

SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

Republican leaders are out to elect a majority of their party to the national house and senate in the fall campaign. Their claim is, that the republican party can conduct the war and serve the interests of the country much better than can the democratic party. The republicans lay claim to a monopoly in men of calibre and patriotism, although there is nothing in the action of their officials at Washington to support any such claim. They are still posing as the only genuinely patriotic party on account of their record in the Civil war. Most of the men who figured in the Civil war are now either dead or too old for active duty, but why not take the Spanish-American war which is more recent and the features of which are still fresh in the minds of people throughout this country.

It appears that the Spanish-American war is not put forward by the republicans as offering anything to their credit and for very good reasons. The war was won. It is true, but why should not the United States easily conquer such an impotent foe. It has not been forgotten that severe and well founded criticism was given nation wide publicity during that war. One of the things most notably complained of was the lack of sanitation which caused the death of a great many more soldiers than were killed in battle. The "embalmed beef" episode also showed the character of the policies adopted by the republican administration of that day. There was unquestionable proof of extravagance, of defective ammunition, of scarcity of equipment, want of coordination and many other evils discussed in the press at the time.

If the republican administration of that day did not cover itself with glory, why should it be expected to do so now?

So far as the Wilson administration has gone it has a record of wonderful achievement, not only since the war started but before. If the administration had not enacted many reform measures before this nation entered the war, we should never have been able to do what we have done without panics and economic upheavals of the very worst type. Thanks to the federal reserve banking law, the shipping bill which republicans opposed, and other measures of a very important character, the government has been able to command the entire resources of the nation in conducting the war. Starting without any previous preparation the progress made has astonished the world.

When Secretary Baker told the United States senate that he would have half a million men in France early last summer he was laughed at and told that he was trying to kill the country to sleep. But Mr. Baker more than made good his word and before the end of the summer he had three times that number of men in France. He got his army to France in time to meet the Germans at the Marne and to turn the tide of battle which they did in driving the enemy back at Chateau-Thierry. The achievements of the Americans since July 18 have reflected lustre upon the nation they represent and we predict that in the near future the men of the American army will bring even greater glory to themselves and the United States.

During the Spanish-American war there was a cry in favor of supporting the president and the administration. That was a patriotic cry and if applicable then it should certainly be more so in the present case, while we are involved in a war immeasurably greater than our little affair with Spain.

"Support the president" is a campaign slogan that should be given effect in all the congressional elections to take place this fall. President Wilson has proved most worthy of the nation's support and he can be safely entrusted to use the resources of the nation to the best advantage in winning the war, overthrowing the German menace and reasserting our rights upon the high seas which were so flagrantly violated by Germany.

We believe that the people of this nation are thoroughly in accord with President Wilson and that they will uphold his policies and his administration by electing members of congress who will give him their loyal support in conducting the war to a glorious finish. To do anything else, especially to send men to congress who would obstruct and offer aid and comfort to the enemy by unfair criticism, would, in our judgment, serve only to prolong the war, to weaken our efforts and make us ridiculous in the eyes of the world.

MR. McADOO'S VISIT

The flying visit of Secretary McAdoo on Saturday was rather a surprise to the people of New England. He came to get a bird's eye view of the improvements being made on the N.Y., N.H. and Hartford R.R., to inspect the Cape Cod canal and judge of its possibilities and the improvements needed, as well as to give attention to the needs of the Boston and Maine system. His announcement that the government would spend $20,000,000 for the rehabilitation of the R. & M. was welcome news to the people of New England and especially to some cities such as Lowell where industries have been hampered by excessive freight rates and inadequate terminal facilities.

We are not prepared to state whether

Mr. McAdoo's plan of financing the improvements will be satisfactory to the stockholders, but upon the face of it, it seems to be all that could be expected at this time. In the first place it has been evident for a considerable time that the state measures provided with a view to putting the Boston & Maine upon a prosperous basis were wholly inadequate. That being so, the offer of Mr. McAdoo may well be welcomed as the only available means of getting the road back to something like what it was before it was wrecked financially and perhaps making it a great deal more efficient from a business standpoint.

REVIEW OF THE WAR

In his review of the four years of war, Frank J. Simonds, the well known war correspondent, gives a keen and logical analysis of the military blunders and errors of judgment by which Germany plunged from one disaster to another.

The first battle of the Marne saved civilization from German domination, but after its consequences were fully known to Germany she repeated the blunder with the result that she met with a more crushing defeat in the second battle of the Marne.

The series of events leading up to the second battle of the Marne and in which the German machine was blocked was due to French prowess and French military genius. That is the view of Mr. Simonds and it is one in which the unbiased will cordially agree with him.

In all the major details, according to this critic, the second battle of the Marne repeated the first. German strategy was again based upon German psychological decisions and again the German flank was exposed along the river Ourcq, and again the French counter stroke ruined the German strategy.

"The Germans could understand a machine," says Mr. Simonds, "but not a man and in the final hour the man mastered the machine. That this should have twice happened at the Marne is one of the rarest of all the coincidences of written history."

As to the outcome of the present drive in which the allies maintain the initiative, Mr. Simonds says that while there is no suggestion of the capture of German armies and no prospect of a general rout the German machine seems unable to bring Foch's offensive to a halt and hold it.

But more briefly the situation is thus summed up:

"The German, after his defeat of Aug. 8, hoped to stand on the old Somme line. Two weeks later, after his defeat between Bapaume and Arras he hoped to stand at the Hindenburg line. His defeat this week destroys this hope. His next stand must be at the frontier."

It must be expected that unfavorable weather will interfere with the allied offensive; but in spite of this, it may be assumed that the drive against the enemy will continue and that before the cold weather sets in, the Germans will have been driven from all the principal strongholds yet in their possession in France, while they may also be forced to abandon part of the territory held along the Belgian coast and now utilized for naval bases. Moreover, it is predicted that a drive of large proportions will be made by the Americans under General Pershing. Just what form or direction that will take is uncertain; but with the large army now available and all made up of fresh men eager for the fray, some great achievement is expected of them in the near future.

It is not too much to expect that the Germans will have to defend their own territory before the depth of winter.

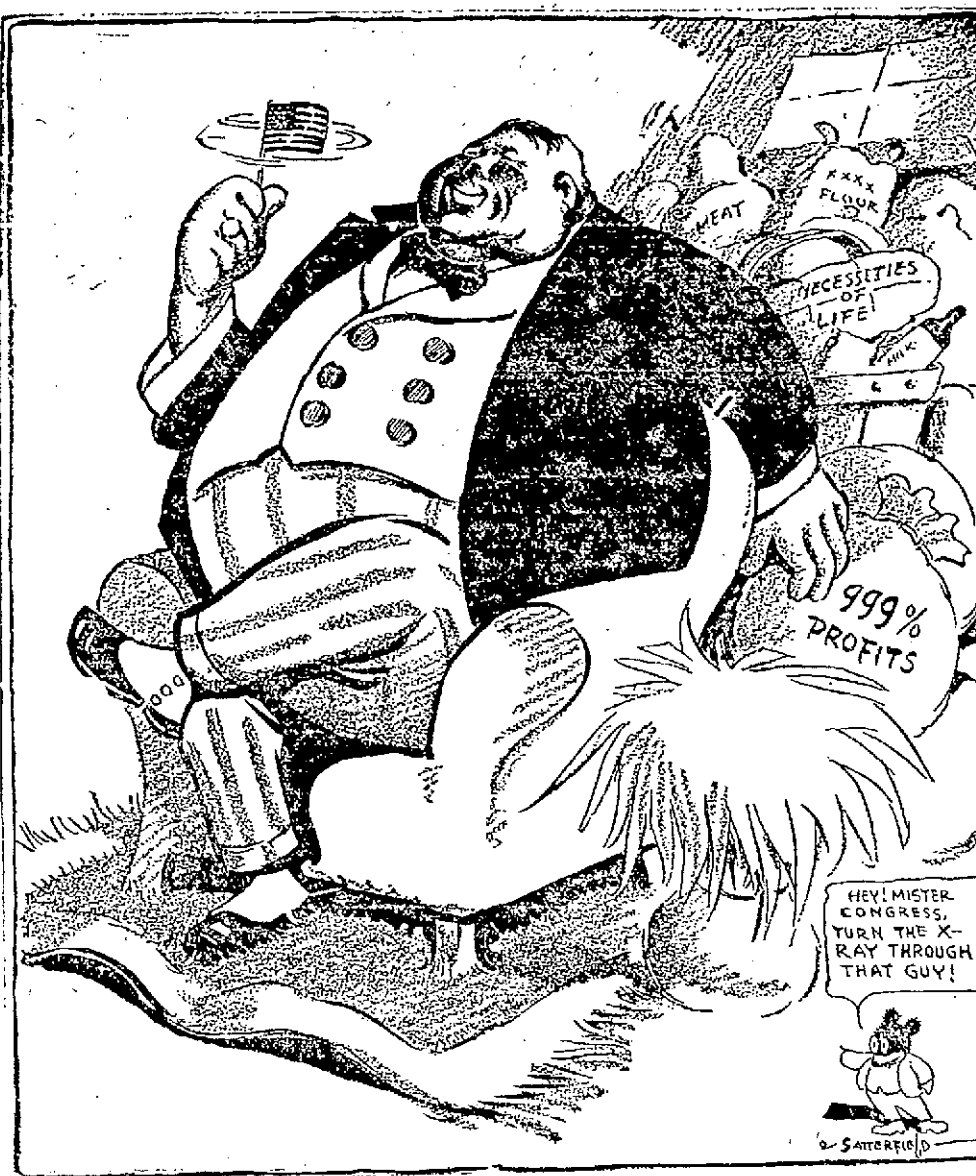

VICTORY FLOUR

"Victory Flour" is the title of the flour prepared under the government formula providing for the 20 per cent substitutes for wheat flour. Under the old arrangement, it has been found that some who did not consider the expense, used only wheat flour for bread and hoarded their substitutes. After the war they should have a large assortment of such substitutes; but the food administrators are getting wise to these slackers and for their benefit the Victory Flour has been provided. It is still permissible to buy the wheat flour and substitutes separately and mix them at home; but those who buy the Victory Flour will be saved the trouble of mixing and will never be suspected of cheating the government or the war stricken people whom we have promised to supply with bread.

SAVING GASOLINE

The conservation of gasoline has practically cleared the highways of motor traffic on the last two Sundays and those who have been accustomed to horse drawn carriages are looking around to find where such are now available. There is no prohibition upon Sunday drives behind a good old family horse or even a spirited pair such as E. B. Conant and some other prominent citizens used to bring out upon public streets.

Some of the automobile men feel that they are under unfair discrimination in losing their Sunday business while at the same time having to pay heavy taxes with still heavier in prospect. They are willing to comply with any reasonable request but hope that there will be an equitable distribution of burdens in the line of conservation as well as in the matter of taxation.

WAR FATTENED

The motormen come forward with an argument in their own defense to the effect that by abandoning motor traffic on Sunday, the people will resort to the street railways and the steam railroads, thus making a much greater draft upon the supply of coal, used to produce electricity and steam. There is a point here whose importance it is not easy to determine. It is not likely, however, that the people who have been accustomed to ride in automobiles on Sundays will deny themselves the pleasure of the modes of conveyance on which there is no interdiction. These are the various electric lines and railroads. It is possible that in this way the government might lose nearly as much as it gained by putting a stop to Sunday motoring.

THE LUDENDORFF LINE

The Hindenburg line has been crossed and the next halt for the Germans will be the "Ludendorff line." Where will that be located? Will it be at the frontier or back at the Rhine? Joshua prayed that the sun might stand until he should conquer in battle and so the allies might well pray that summer would last until they conquer the Germans. Seldom in history has an offensive been so long continued as that now in progress by the allies under the direction of General Foch. If the weather holds out long enough the allies may be able to drive the enemy to the Rhine before he can make a successful stand.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is the charitable remark if you "lay off" making any remark intended to be humorous, because one of your friends still wears his straw hat. It's not that he loves a felt hat the less but his $5 bill the more.

Now the question is whether, in the light of registration day coming upon this week Thursday, will some of us due to be tagged by Uncle Sam, if the business of making wills for men will perk up.

It is coolish weather, so to speak, but our foliage is still green and the Germanic hand of man, old Jack Frost has not yet descended on the trees and outdoor plants although the thrifty woman, I notice, covers her beloved plants these nights.

What is one man's poison is another man's meat was never probably better exemplified than in the case of the U.S. Cartridge workers getting that 27 per cent increase which recently was granted them and is many weeks retroactive.

You want to remember, and you can take it as advice coming from all who have had experience, that when you ask a Bay State street railroad man the time of arrival or departure of some of the company's cars, his answer, although he may think of it as being so, in reality, is in the nature of a guess.

Packages for Soldiers Abroad

No packages for United States soldiers overseas are accepted except upon an order from an officer of the rank of major or above connected with the particular unit with which the soldier is serving. In order to send a package to your son in France he would have to secure such an order as referred to and have it transmitted to you. The demand for cargo space on United States transports is so great that the government has been obliged to place this restriction on packages for soldiers abroad.

If you think you are beaten, you are,
If you think that you dare not, you
If you think you'll lose, you will,
If you think you can't, you won't.
You've got to be sure of yourself
Before you can win a prize.
Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or the faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the fellow who thinks he can.

Remember the Sabbath

Virginia and Eldridge are being brought up to regard the Sabbath as different from other days. Boisterous, everyday games are taboo, and their activities are restricted to their own lawn and garden. Recently, however, their mother yielded to the pleadings of the children of a friend and allowed them to spend a Sunday afternoon away from home.

The friend's children were evidently not hampered by any Sabbatharian restrictions, and when playtime was over two much disheveled but radiant children rushed breathlessly home. Virginia announced as they came up the path: "O, mother dear, Eldridge and I have had a beautifully sinful time!"—Harper's Weekly.

She Builds Ships

Mrs. G. Underwood of Vancouver, Wash., has two sons in the army. Realizing the nation's great need of ships to supply the soldiers in France, she entered a shipyard and is working there every weekday as a calker.

She is head of a group of five and directs them very efficiently. One day when her four assistants failed to put in an appearance, Mrs. Underwood operated the calking machinery alone and did so well that she almost proved her assistants to be non-essential. Rather than take another chance, they are appearing promptly every day to aid her in the work for the boys abroad.

A Very Old Alibi

Lawyers, bankers and brokers have long laughed and chuckled over the many curious and ingenious excuses given for disclaiming responsibility for notes of hand by those signing them. The excuse that one's signature was obtained through ignorance and by unlawful methods is not in any sense unique, as the following notice published in the Haverhill Gazette of July 11, 1909, proves:

Whereas
My son-in-law, Mr. Peter Whitaker, did on Friday last, obtain from me in an unlawful and unprecedented manner, a Note of Hand, with my mark thereon, for Two Hundred Dollars (as he said), for I can neither read or write; nor was at that time sound in mind, which he well knew. The said Note was for no value received—I therefore am constrained in this public manner to forewarn all persons from purchasing the said Note, or having anything to do with it as I am determined never to pay it, or any part thereof.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

I know a young woman employed in one of the plants in this city engaged in war orders, whose pay is $30 a week. She works a nine hour day. Her husband is a drafted man at Camp Devens and gets his pay once in three months. Far from giving any of his pay to his wife, he is now dependent upon her for his spending money, no inconsiderable item owing to the fact that he is consuming, at every opportunity, copious quantities of rum.

Probably between now and Thanksgiving or Christmas our government will ship this young woman's husband over to France and if a shell comes toward him with his name and address on it, this young husband will never come back to Massachusetts or to his old boyhood home in a neighboring state. The two children of this couple, two fine, healthy children, now being boarded out with their board paid for entirely by the mother, will not see their daddy again. "It is war," the French say, but to my mind, blame poor satisfaction to dismiss something sad and unfortunate by crediting its inevitableness to the fact that it is a condition of war.

I congratulated the young woman that in a time when there was so much stress in her family she could earn as excellent a salary as $30 a week as a mechanical worker. "Now," I said, "This war may end as suddenly as it began, in fact there is every reason to suppose it will be so and when it does, blewey! Away will go all the $30 a week jobs for women and many of them that men now hold down. Are you sitting down any of this money you work so hard to earn now? Can you accumulate it and against the time when your husband may come back maimed or blind and there will be four persons dependent on just what one little woman like you can earn?"

Here is her answer: "No, I can't save anything even on the $30.00 week I earn. It takes all I can earn to support the children and keep my husband in spending money. And, besides, if I am able to save something this fall I have got to get myself some new clothes. In particular I want a nice set of furs and I am going to get them." Ah well, here you are. The eternal feminine. Wars may come into the world and men shall freely give their blood and their lives. But Al-lady must have her furs and egad, she will have them if you let her earn money and there are shops where they will exchange faked rabbit skins for munition workers' money. But that is not war. No, that is the eternal feminine for you.

To my mind the best little story we have had in The Sun for quite some time in connection with what Lowell boys are doing overseas is that letter received from Miss Mary Fitts Frazier, printed Saturday. She had been working hard all night in the base hospital, I suppose, waiting on and caring for sick and wounded soldiers. The dawn broke and that part of France stirred to life again, outside the hospital. Probably the Lowell nurse was tired, perhaps homesick and lonesome. Then, as her letter tells her mother, she went to the entrance of the hospital for a breath of fresh morning air and lo and behold, who should she see there, sitting on the doorstep, waiting for the hospital to open its doors, but her brave and sturdy brother, George Frazier, come a visiting her for two days, having obtained a furlough. To my mind even the war correspondents do not send back articles containing more human interest appeal than this letter from the good Lowell nurse.

Its coffee, three big packages of it, is supposed to be on the way here from Bridgeport, headquarters of this chain of restaurants. Presumably the coffee is bought in Bridgeport. Well, the restaurant had no coffee early this morning and many customers went away to some other luncheon because at that early hour the stores where coffee could be bought are not open. This entire paragraph might serve as an object lesson to point out the very old adage that to trade at home is best in the long run. But you can't expect a chain restaurant to do anything as regular as that, though.

MESSAGE BROUGHT BY
RETURNED SOLDIER

Over in France the soldiers of the United States army are known as the smiling Yanks. They have a wonderful spirit of confidence. They accept the fortunes of war with a gay whistle. They sing as they march forth to battle.

It is the consciousness that back home the volunteers of industry are working at full strength to supply every need that imbues the Americans with the splendid courage that makes victory certain. This is the message brought back by Private Charles C. McGonagall, who for seven months has been at the front, where he saw the hardest kind of service. Private McGonagall, Company B, 15th Infantry, which is known as General Pershing's "own," had a chance to find out just what the industrial army means to the army that bears arms. He was a mechanic before he volunteered from North Dakota. In June, 1917, and so he is fitted to pass judgment on the relation of the two armies.

Sitting on the porch of the workshop of Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., Private McGonagall talked with J. F. Hodgson, first class mechanic at the Washington navy yard. It happened that the two men, who represent combatant and non-combatant service in the war, met at the hospital, because Private McGonagall lost both hands, February 3, when he was on duty at an outpost on the French line of defense. German machine gunners made an attack, which was "unlucky," Private McGonagall thinks, for it cut short his service before he had a chance to do more than make a beginning at the machine. But he is still cheerful; he has brought back with him the Yank spirit for which the workers of the country are so largely responsible. And he will soon be able to return to the ranks of the workers—why, he drove a Red Cross ambulance for three weeks before he sailed for home!

"The main idea is that American pluck has put a new slant on the war for the British, French and even the Germans," said Private McGonagall. "Those fellows over there have been in the war so long they had begun to think it wasn't ever going to end. Then our troops landed and it all looked different. The thing that made it look so promising was the way we were equipped. We had everything. Our regiments gave them the impression that we had endless stores to draw on and boundless supplies coming right along. Of course, we were proud to have such a welcome as they gave us, but after all it was the workers at home that made us look so good to them. They had been in the war game long enough to know just what labor means to the fighting forces.

The French soldiers talked a great deal about what the men and women are doing in the shops and factories here in the United States. They had read about volunteers who were working for nothing as regular employees who were taking half-pay and working overtime. Why, those Frenchmen couldn't do enough for us and they would have taken the coats off their backs if any of us had needed them. But we didn't need anything—that was the point. We hadn't thought much about what the hands at the looms, for instance, were doing for us, but the foreign fighters made us realize what we owe to the workers."

Private McGonagall paused to take a lighted cigarette offered by the man from the navy yard, who unconsciously drew his stalwart body to its full height with a sudden access of pride as he said:

"I'm glad to hear you talk that way, for I can tell you the fellow who sticks to his job hasn't an easy time. It takes nerve to stand the gaff when everyone is wondering why you're not in uniform. There doesn't seem to be much glory in just making guns for warships and transports—making guns instead of using them! But from what you say I feel better about it already."

"Why, if you'd been where I've been, you would know you can't lie down on your job for a minute," declared the young soldier. "It seems to me there is something wrong if everyone can't see this as it really is. While every man, woman and child in the United States is doing all that can be done the boys fighting in France can just go on feeling care-free and sure."

Private McGonagall emphasized the "sure" by a stamp of the foot. He is a tall, well-made, good-looking young man with the western freedom of manner. Since that day in February when he fell at the post of duty, he has had plenty of time to think. His frank face shows that he has formed definite opinions.

"That sounds all right," Hodgson rose and looked out at the soldiers who were limping back and forth between the workshop and the convalescent wards. "But I would be willing to lose a leg if I could have my chance to go to France. I volunteered, of course, but they sent me back to my work."

"That is as it should be and it shows your work must be of some account. What is it?" asked Private McGonagall.

Then the mechanic first-class from the navy yard, a man well educated, with the love of his special line of work that proves he has found his right place, explained how he worked in the gun shops—where the men were bending their best energies to produce the most possible in a given time. They all understood that time on some of the gun lathes was worth $100 an hour and that the man who looted was losing much for the government. Generally, there was no trouble with slackers, although now and then a "greaser" or a "nut-splitter" would try to break in to keep out of the service at the front for which most of the skilled workers were so anxious. Then men in the navy yard, who are not permitted to fight, were saving their money to buy Liberty Bonds and War Saving Stamps. One young fellow in the tool shop had subscribed for $1500 in Liberty Bonds and had paid up the entire amount.

"Making a good gun, it seems to me, measures up to more than one man's usefulness in handling it," commented Private McGonagall. "That's skilled labor of the highest quality."

Mechanic Hodgson agreed that there were delicate operations connected with gun-making when nickel steel was so susceptible to changes of temperature that one degree of change could produce an appreciable expansion, when they measured down to tenths of an inch.

"When I enlisted I was offered $100 a month and my expenses as an automobile mechanic," said the soldier, "and when I volunteered I hoped I might get into the mechanical line or drive a truck, but I was needed in the infantry, even though for entirely too short a time." He smiled. "It is up to the United States to use us men as it seems best and so I have no kick coming."

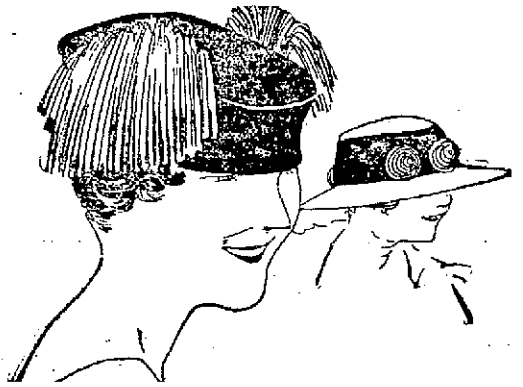

There was the lesson for the man who had to stick to his job. Private McGonagall, who had given both his hands in the cause of liberty, was satisfied that his country knew best about where he was needed. Mechanic Hodgson saw the point. Not only should the soldier go where he is sent, but the worker should stay where he is of the most use.

"But still I think there should be some way to show that we want to fight," he said. "It isn't right that we should be subjected to insult, or at least misjudgment, because we are not in uniform."

"When a lot more of us return wounded, the public will know where the workers get off," Private McGonagall said. "There's not a man of us on the other side who will not hurrah for labor's part in the war. You ought to see the men who are busy behind the lines. Say, the non-combatants have some dangers to face and some work to do. Right here on this side, too, the boys who are found unfit for foreign service have their chance to be heroes. They are working in munition factories and delivering the goods. Over at American University the other day a boy was making a fuss because he could not go over on account of physical disability, but he was filling gas shells and I think he was about as useful as he would be in the trenches."

It was time for mess. The convalescents, who were learning new vocations, left the shop, hastening as rapidly as was possible for men who had returned from war, because they had done their parts on the battlefields. Some of them whistled. The Yank spirit still ruled them. They had come back to work, to join the industrial army at home and the message they all brought was Private McGonagall's message—that upon the workers the soldiers rely with an abiding confidence. It is the stroke of hammer and whirl of machinery that play the necessary accompaniment to the songs the boys sing as they go forth to victory.

If Germany is boycotted after the way it will not be the first country so treated. In 1895 the British boycotted Bolivia. The then president of the South American republic ill-treated the British minister by tying him on a mule, face to tail, and parading him around the capital. For this offence official England blotted Bolivia off the map and for 35 years it remained ostracized. From a commercial point of view Bolivia was almost ruined.

CONLEY SOME LIAR,
NO DIAMOND THIEF

It was learned today that the grand jury at its recent session in this city found a no bill in the case of Fred Conley, who had been connected with the diamond theft at the restaurant of the D. L. Page Co. in this city a couple of months ago, despite the fact that Conley had confessed to the police that he had stolen the diamonds and had disposed of a part of them in Albany.

It will be remembered that the diamonds were stolen from Page's restaurant in broad daylight, while the salesman in charge of the precious stones was partaking of his dinner. Shortly after the theft, Conley wrote a letter to Supt. Welch, stating that he had the diamonds and that they might get him but they would never recover the goods.

Conley was later arrested in Boston on another charge and confessed to the larceny of the diamonds, but after conducting an investigation the district attorney came to the conclusion that Conley had nothing to do with the theft of the diamonds. Conley who is wanted in Syracuse, N. Y., on a charge of breaking and entering, was sent to that city.

To all who call on him at the New American Hotel, Wed., Sept. 11, Dr. Naughton will give his Consultation, Remarkable Diagnosis of Disease, Wonderful "X-Ray" Examinations, all medical services, surgical and office treatment, Absolutely Free of Charge.

Never before has such an opportunity been given the sick of this vicinity, and if you are suffering, you should not fail to take advantage of it. Those wishing to see him should remember the Days, Dates and Office Hours of his visits and call early to avoid the crowded last hours.

For nearly 15 years I have been studying the Chemistry of food and the Chemistry of the human body. I have put these two sciences together and formulated the science of Applied Food Chemistry. By the application of this knowledge I cure all forms of stomach and intestinal diseases, and all other disorders that result from wrong eating and drinking. This method cannot fail because it conforms to the laws of Nature.

It is estimated that ninety-two per cent. of all diseases are caused by errors in eating. These errors are made by wrong selections, wrong combinations, and wrong proportions of food. I teach you how to correct these, how to select, how to combine and how to proportion your food according to your age and your occupation. This cures by removing causes. It gives Nature a chance. This is the true science of human nutrition, and it is governed by laws as inflexible as the laws of gravitation. If you obey them you cannot be sick. If you do not obey them you cannot be well.

You have no idea what your body is capable of, until you have it perfectly nourished. You have no idea what your mind is capable of, until it lives in a perfectly nourished body.

You have no idea of the joy of living until every bone, tissue, muscle and organ of the body is brought up to 100% efficiency, which my system does.

If you are sick or have any kind of stomach or intestinal trouble it will require a short term of curative feeding—then I balance the diet so as to give to the body all the elements of nourishment it requires according to your age and your occupation.

If medicine is needed in any case I prescribe only such remedies that do not conflict with the proper diet.

I get results and this ends all argument.

Dr. Naughton will positively be at the New American Hotel, Wednesday, Sept. 11th, 1918, from 10.00 o'clock in the morning until 7.00 o'clock in the evening, to consult with and examine all cases personally.

BELGIANS GET NEWS

Grapevine Telegraph of Civil War Days Has Found Its Counterpart in Belgium

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The grapevine telegraph of civil war days seems to have found its counterpart in Belgium, where through mysterious agencies, the people obtain news from the battlefield even before it reaches German officials, who use the most severe repressive measures to prevent the truth being known.

An official report received here shows that the people of Brussels learned in three days of important events on the French front and from that point the news spreads among the provincial towns with marvelous speed. The allied victories cause great joy through occupied Belgium and the German troops there are disconcerted over the prospect of another winter campaign.

ALLOTMENTS

Dependents of Soldiers to Receive Allowance Until Men Officially Reported Dead

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Dependents of soldiers reported missing in action will continue to receive government remittances for allowances and allowances but until the men are officially reported dead, no payments of voluntary insurance, or government compensation will be made. So far the war department has not certified any of the missing, which include prisoners taken by the enemy and those killed whose bodies are not recovered, as to be considered dead.

If the mother, father, or other dependent of a wounded or slain soldier lives in Germany, Austria, Turkey or Bulgaria, payment is made to the alien property custodian, to be held until the end of the war, when it will be forwarded.

BOLSHEVIKI IGNORANT OF IDENTITY OF OPPONENTS

ARCHANGEL, Thursday, Sept. 6.—(By the Associated Press).—Many Bolsheviks engaged against the allies in the north are ignorant as to the identity of forces they are fighting, according to an American official who has returned from the front. Some of the captured Bolsheviks declared their commanders claimed that the soldiers dressed in the uniforms of the allied powers, were only Russian White Guards masquerading. Another prisoner thought he was fighting against the Germans.

At one place the Bolsheviks sent a force of mere boys, 14 to 15 years old to the front under threat of death, unless they fought against the Russian-allied forces.

Fugitives arriving from Vologda after a lengthy, round-about journey brought reports that a reign of terror had been instituted by the Bolsheviks in Vologda and that many persons of the Bourgeoisie class were being executed daily. There is no confirmation of this, however.

Mrs. M. D. Callahan of Pleasant street and her little granddaughter have returned from Salisbury beach.

U. S. SOLDIERS ARE FOND OF PICKLES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The soldier's fondness for pickles was made known today by the war department, which announced that while 230,000 gallons were required for shipment overseas, it had received bids of less than 100,000. There is a shortage in the sizes specified and to meet this, large pickles will be bought, pending delivery of the new crop.

Because of the vinegar shortage, the quartermaster's corps is studying the advisability of using vinegar made from watermelons, the cost of which is less than the elder brand.

WILLIAM MEEHAN'S FRIENDS GIVE PARTY IN HONOR OF HIS LEAVING FOR ARMY

A farewell party was held last Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Mary Toye, 7 Pike street, in honor of William F. Meehan who left the next day for Camp Upton, Long Island. During the evening Mr. Meehan was presented a wrist watch and a purse of money. The presentation speech was made by Thomas Conley. Mr. Meehan made a fitting reply.

There was a general good time at the party with musical selections by Miss Claire Sammy, Mary Toye and Fred Wright of Dover, N. H. and Mr. Joseph Basset. At the end of the party all the guests sang the national anthem and shook hands with the guest of honor, wishing him the best of luck.

WILSON PEACE PROGRAM

Head of Hungarian Party Endorses President's Plan as Basis for Negotiation

BASZEL, Monday, Sept. 9.—President Wilson's program as a basis for the negotiations for peace, is endorsed by Count Michael Karolyi, president of the Hungarian independent party. A despatch from Budapest, quoting from an open letter written by him to his electors to whom he recommends an early peace, says:

"A decisive military victory, despite its successes, is a dream for which it is useless to pursue. The prime condition of peace negotiations is the abandonment of imperialist theories. A second condition is that we should not become slaves to the idea of a middle Europe, either military economically or politically, and that we should not strengthen our alliance with Germany which would form the first step towards the realization of this central Europe."

"We ought to accept as a basis for negotiations President Wilson's program."

SHEA AND REDDY ARE TRAINING FOR BOUT

Tommy Shea of New Haven and Battling Reddy of Brooklyn are training hard for their 12-round bout at the Crescent A.A. on Friday night, and both promise to be in the best of condition when the bell rings for the opening round. Shea and Reddy are fine boxers, and each is qualified to deliver a sleep-producer at any moment. Shea is extremely popular all over New England, while Reddy's popularity extends throughout the United States. Reddy has tackled all the good ones, and among his victims is Frankie Britt, the speed merchant from New Bedford. Reddy has two decisions over Britt to his credit, which is some little accomplishment.

Three other good bouts will also be on the card.

Billy Woods of Manchester, who appeared at the local club recently, added another victory to his list at Boston the other night, when he won the decision from Young Strona in a 10-round bout.

Those desiring to attend the next meeting of the C.A.A., who are not on the membership rolls may do so by applying for application blanks at the club quarters on Hurd street before Thursday night.

YOUNG MONTREAL WINS FROM OWENS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Young Montreal of Providence defeated Paddy Owens of Cambridge in a 12-round bout at the re-opening of the Trinity A. C. East Cambridge, last night. There was a good crowd on hand and they were treated to one of the best fights between bantamweights decided in this part of the country in many a day.

Tony Vatan, substituting for Young Strona against Dummy Burns, defeated the latter in 10 rounds. Charley Parker added Johnny Gray to his list of victims, defeating the Chelsea lightweight in a hard-fought eight-round bout. Joe Sousa got as far as the third round with Young Marks, who was altogether too fast and hit too hard for Sousa.

Montreal recently saw the first Chinaman appointed a commissioner of the superior court, Sung Foo's petition to Justice Tuillier for this privilege being granted him. Sung Foo therefore has power now to administer oaths.

WAR TIME PROHIBITION

House Committee Favors

Bill to Make Prohibition Effective July 1, 1919

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—War time prohibition moved a step nearer today when the house agricultural committee decided to report favorably the amendment added by the senate making prohibition effective July 1, 1919.

The committee inserted a provision permitting the importation of Italian wine until May 1, 1919, as requested yesterday by the Italian government through the state department. As passed by the senate the bill would stop importation immediately.

Baker at Pershing's Home

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Newton D. Baker, American secretary of war, has arrived in Paris. The secretary was conducted to the city home of Gen. John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, where he will remain and hold conferences during the next few days.

It is expected his visit will permit conferences between the American and allied officials. He will visit American headquarters and the principal centers of American activities.

FEELING IS STRONG AGAINST

CONTROLLED TERRITORY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Consul General Poole at Moscow in a belated dispatch received at the state department today, says he sent his staff and American civilians there out of Russia because feeling is strong in Bolshevick-controlled territory against Americans, threatening them with "dangerous reprisals" which might embarrass allied military commanders operating in Russia.

PLAN FOOTBALL GAMES

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—A. A. Stagg, University of Chicago football coach, announced today that while assurance had not been given by the war department that football would be permitted, as every college student of draft age would be under the war department's jurisdiction, the "Big Ten" conference directors were going forward with their plans although they are counting on shorter practice sessions than in former years. Practice will begin next Monday.

POWER PLANT FIRE STOP

TRAFFIC

The only available big generator at the power house of the Bay State Street Railway Co. in Middlesex street, was badly damaged by fire last evening and as a result street car traffic throughout the city was suspended between the hours of 7 and 8. Later through the courtesy of the Lowell Electric Light Corp., which connected its current to the wires of the Bay State, traffic was resumed and the street cars will operate by using the "juice" of the Electric Light Corp. until the generator is repaired.

The fire started in the pit beneath the generator in the main engine room but its cause has not yet been determined. An alarm was rung in from the private box of the company, box 419, and the department quickly responded. There was no damage to the building.

POLICE COURT DOES QUICK WORK TODAY

Judge Enright quickly disposed of the few cases that were brought to his attention this morning's session of the police court. Jeremiah Llanahan for drunkenness was fined $10, while Maurice Spillane who takes pleasure in disturbing the neighbors when he is under the influence of liquor, was given a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction. Joseph Baron, who imbibed a little too freely yesterday, was sent to the common jail to recuperate during the next three months.

Joseph Tessier pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping an unlicensed dog and was fined $5. William C. Smith, who was charged with drunkenness and larceny of a pipe and some money from Sam Scott, had his case continued to Sept. 16. Stanley Kulinski, who had been notified to appear in court to answer to a complaint charging him with violation of the milk laws, failed to show up and he was defaulted.

Ellen Martin, who yesterday appeared from a two-months' sentence to the common jail, changed her mind this morning and she was allowed to withdraw her appeal. Henry Winn, for violating the automobile laws was ordered to pay a fine of $10. George Donabue admitted his guilt to a complaint charging him with assault and battery upon a barber and he was fined $10. There were seven releases by the probation officer.

AUTO TURNS OVER

Arthur Hamel Injured Steering From Falling Tree

Arthur Hamel of this city, who operates a Ford truck, was injured in the hips and back this morning when his car turned turtle in Chelmsford St. The young man was operating his car through Chelmsford street at about 7:45 o'clock and when he reached a point near the hospital, where the employees of the park department were cutting down a tree, he feared the tree would fall on his car and he swung to the right into the gutter, his car turning turtle.

The ambulance was called and Hamel was removed to St. John's hospital. The automobile was damaged slightly.

HUNS FEAR NEGROES IN

AMERICAN ARMY

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Sept. 9 (By the Associated Press).—The enemy heavily shelled towns in the Woivre sector behind our lines this morning. One of his patrols attacked the American outposts, but was easily driven off.

There was considerable patrol activity in the Vosges district last night. One encounter took place, the enemy retiring with one wounded man. Colored troops have occupied Vosges villages. Frenchmen on coming through to the American lines declared that the Germans were considerably excited at finding themselves opposed by negroes, of whom they are said to be afraid because of reports that the American colored troops cut off the ears of their prisoners. The negro soldiers in this sector had an example of German treachery when a German patrol attacked after shouting "Kamerad." They are now thoroughly determined to have their revenge.

TRANSPORT MT. VERNON CARRIED WOUNDED

PARIS, Sunday, Sept. 10.—The American transport Mt. Vernon, formerly the German steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which though torpedoed by a German submarine last Thursday off the coast of France, was able to make port, was carrying wounded and sick soldiers back to the United States.

Senator James H. Lewis of Chicago, Ill., who was among the passengers, all of whom were saved, is suffering from a chill resulting from exposure while carrying wounded men from their bunks. Thirty-five engine room hands lost their lives when the torpedo struck the vessel.

Congressman Thomas D. Schall and Attorney John D. Cross of Providence were among those on board. Mrs. Schall, the wife of the blind representative of Minnesota, led her husband up on deck and across the ship to their lifeboat. Both were calm and acted as though they were in no peril.

The officers and crew of the Mt. Vernon showed perfect discipline and efficiency. Most of the seamen were young, and for many it was their first trip, but they acted like old hands. In short space of time they had all the bulkheads closed and the steamcocks shut off. Sometimes they were compelled to swim through rising water in order to get at the valves.

AVIATORS KILLED

Two Fall to Death at Fort Worth, Texas

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 11.—Lieuts. A. D. Stenhouse of Bristol, Conn., and W. D. Keeling of Dallas, Tex., were killed this morning when their airplane fell north of Fort Worth. Both were attached to Carpenters field.

CONSIDER LA FOLLETTE CASE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Senator Pomeroy of Ohio announced today that a meeting of the senate elections committee will be held next Thursday to resume consideration of the alleged disloyal speech delivered by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin in St. Paul last September. Sentiment in the senate favors disposition of the case without further delay.

REVENUE BILL

Debate on Huge War Tax Measure Resumed in the House Today

Cong. Longworth Sounds Warning—Wealth to Be Taxed to Straining Point

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Wealth would be taxed to about the straining point by the new war revenue bill, Representative Longworth of Ohio declared in the house today when debate on the huge tax measure was resumed. He warned his hearers that any additional taxes levied hereafter must be borne by people purchasing articles of daily necessity and said that as the cost of the war mounted a greater proportion of it must be borne by future generations.

Pointing out that congress was about to exact from the American people a sum which would have more than paid the entire cost of the Civil war, both to the Union and the Confederacy, he said the tax of 50 per cent. on war profits and the maxima of 70 per cent. on excess profits and 77 per cent. on incomes, were "mighty near the danger mark."

"Just as surely as you impose a tax which amounts to plunder," he said, "just so surely do you overshoot the mark and render difficult if not impossible the financing necessary to effectively prosecute the war."

Most of the coming issue of Liberty bonds, he said, would be purchased by individuals and their purchasing power would be affected directly by the taxes on their incomes.

Big Loss By Ban on Making Beer

Containing that the president's order stopping the manufacture of beer after next December 1, would cause a loss of $500,000,000 in revenue under the new war tax bill, Mr. Longworth said congress might be forced to impose consumption taxes sooner than had been expected. In that connection he suggested a tax of seven cents a pound on coffee, 25 cents on tea, 10 per cent. on rubber, 20 per cent. on wool, 15 per cent. on hides and one cent on sugar. He estimated these would yield $240,000,000 annually.

He warned that the proposed wartime national prohibition legislation would reduce the estimated revenue returns from beverages by $1,500,000,000 which with the lost revenue on beer on Dec. 1, until the national prohibition measure became effective, would reduce the estimated revenue under the bill to $6,000,000,000.

He commended the bill as a whole, as a vast improvement over the old law.

In concluding, the speaker portrayed the condition under which the German people "gagged and bound, pay bloody tribute to the insatiable ambition of the house of Hohenzollern," and said that "no citizen of the embattled nations not even the son of the great pacifist, Henry Ford, is more surely immune from bodily harm," than are the German emperor's six sons, "who would be preserved undamaged for posterity."

"Last of all the Wilhelms in Germany to give his life for the Vaterland," Mr. Longworth continued, "will be Wilhelm, the kronprinz, Axelbert, the August Wilhelms, the Oscars and the Joachims."

Sons of a former president of the United States, he said by comparison, had been less timorous. Without mentioning by name his father-in-law, Col. Roosevelt, Mr. Longworth said: "All four sons of a former president have been at the real front, three of them married men with children, upon whom there was no possible legal obligation. One has perished gloriously on the field of honor, two have been wounded, one so seriously that he has been invalided home; the only who has escaped injury has been decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action."

He added that a son of the only other living ex-president referring to Mr. Taft was at the front and that if President Wilson had been blessed with sons of fighting age, they, too, would have been at the firing line. "Let patriotism," Mr. Longworth said, "continue to banish all selfish and partisan spirit from our deliberations and make us brothers in the cause so that we may stand shoulder to shoulder, northern and southern, Republican and Democrat, united in insurmountable during this war by the passionate resolve that government of the Kaiser, by the Kaiser and for the Kaiser shall perish from the earth."

TO FIX LOWER PRICE FOR

GASOLINE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Fuel Administrator Garfield announced yesterday that he expects soon to fix a price for gasoline for domestic consumers, as well as the government and the allies, at a figure lower than the present market price. He is awaiting further reports on the situation before taking definite action.

No intimation was made as to what the fixed price will be. Dr. Garfield's announcement disclosed that for some time consideration had been given the problem of bringing the price of gasoline to a lower level. Several reports already have been made to Mark L. Requa, director of the oil division of the fuel administration. It was intimated that upon completion of the investigation now being conducted immediate action would be taken.

The disclosure of Dr. Garfield's purpose came during an informal talk with newspaper correspondents in which the stocks of gasoline in the country and the stated shortage east of the Mississippi river, which caused the administration to request that no passenger automobiles be operated Sundays in that section were discussed.

Dr. Garfield would not discuss reports that this request was based on information furnished the administration by the oil industry for the alleged purpose of maintaining the present price of gasoline in the face of a reported large supply in the country.

The senate yesterday displayed its interest in the auto-less Sunday request by adopting a resolution offered by Senator Lodge asking the administration for information as to the country's production, consumption and exportation of gasoline, with separate figures on the amount used by passenger cars.

PARTY FOR NEW GIRLS AT Y.M.C.A. HOME

A house-warming party was held last night at the Y.M.C.A. to welcome the new girls who have come to this city to study or work during the coming winter. The affair was in charge of Miss Marion Sawyer, social secretary, assisted by Miss Frances E. MacNair, general secretary and Miss Florence Foster, physical director.

The new comers were introduced to the older girls, then all proceeded to join in the games which followed. Later they enjoyed music in Kilson hall, where they could have plenty of floor space and could join "all hands around" for an old fashioned "Virginia Reel."

Refreshments were served, and when the party broke up the young women whose homes are perhaps many miles away from Lowell, felt that they had received a real hearty welcome. There are more girls living at the Y.W.C.A. than ever before, and it would seem that the large number of newcomers are mostly business school pupils, who have come here to study, although some are employed in the ammunition plants.

TO CARRY AMERICAN WAR PRISONERS ON COMMERCIAL SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Tentative plans are being made so American war prisoners in Germany, who because of their geographical location would be exchanged through Sweden, may be brought back home on commercial ships having safe conducts outside the war zone instead of being shipped on transports taking the risk of submarine destruction.

Some American war prisoners in Germany will be exchanged through Switzerland but many others can be relieved of long railroad journeys and perilous ocean passage. The Berne conference this month, which is to discuss the handling of American and German prisoners probably will take up the subject.

"HELL, HEAVEN OR HOME

BY XMAS," SAY TROOPS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—"Hell, Heaven, or Home by Christmas" is the motto of the boys of the 101st Regiment, according to Capt. J. J. O'Brien of E. Company, who returned from the front yesterday and held a reception during the day at the banking rooms of Richardson, Hill & Co., 50 Congress street, where he was employed for 20 years up to the time he went to the Mexican border with his command.

"The 25th division," he said, "is regarded by the French as the premier division in France." Capt. O'Brien left France two weeks ago, and will be assigned to a new division being organized, and will be promoted to a higher rank in recognition of his valiant services.

"The regiment is now at a rest camp back of the line," he said, "and the boys are being given their first furlough (seven days) since they went to France. Co. E of the 101st is composed of Co. E of the old 9th of Boston and Co. E, the Lawrence Light Guards, of the old 5th of Medford."

"Col. Logan is in great spirits and has handled the regiment in a very efficient manner," said Capt. O'Brien. "He has just taken his first furlough (five days) since he arrived in France and he spent that going about visiting the sick and wounded of his regiment in the hospitals. All the officers and men greatly admire and respect Gen. Edwards."

"The losses by the 101st were the lightest of any regiment in the division. We were in the fighting in the big drive from July 18 to 25 inclusive. My company has lost only three men in the year of service. All the remaining boys are fine, with the exception of a few who are in hospitals with slight illnesses. All the boys are anxious to 'clean up the fight,' as they call it, and to get back home and to business again."

"The weather in France has been fine, but the rainy season is due about now. The boys have been getting good food and they are all in high spirits. Until the mail service was pretty prompt and the letters and newspapers from home brought great cheer to all of us, but since then the service has been a little slow."

"However, everybody is happy and feeling fine, and I want the parents and friends of the boys of Co. E to rest assured all are being well cared for."

DEPUTY DUMESNIL, RECENTLY

DECORATED BY FRANCE,

IS DEAD

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 10 (Havas).—Gaston Dumesnil, member of the French chamber of deputies, died early today in a hospital near the front. Shortly before his death he was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by Premier Clemenceau.

Deputy Dumesnil was 40 years old. He had been wounded twice and was cited in orders six times. He is the 13th deputy to be killed at the front.

Loan to Officials

Commissioner Charles J. Morse, of the department of streets and highways, appeared before the committee on capital issues at the Federal Reserve bank in Boston today to present papers and documents concerning the construction of sewers in Belvidere under government auspices. The municipal council recently voted to borrow $25,000 for sewer construction work but as the city has already borrowed more than $100,000 this year, permission must be obtained from the committee in question before additional money can be borrowed.

City Treasurer Fred H. Rourke was in Boston yesterday and Mr. Morse's presence was required today. Mr. Rourke feels that the money will be given eventually but the federal officials are compelled to make the necessary investigation beforehand.

Poll Taxes

The annual poll tax bills will be sent out next week. Several extra clerks are working on the job. The names of 1500 men who would ordinarily pay a poll tax but who are exempt on account of being in the service, have been taken off the assessors' books and this means just so many less bills to send out.

The assessors say that there are about 4000 Lowell men whose taxes might be abated on account of their being in the national service, but relatives of the men failed to notify the assessors, so the tax bills will have to be sent out.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Provost Marshal General Crowder announces that the first call to the colors of men who register Thursday will include men in the 19 and 20 year old classes and in the classes from 32 to 36 years inclusive. Questionnaires will go first to registrants within these specified age limits and local boards will be ordered to classify them first in readiness for calls beginning in October.

Young men in the 19 and 20 year classes will be accepted for induction into the students' army training corps, but Gen. Crowder points out that the authorized strength of this corps is only 150,000 men whereas the total number of registrants below 28 will be over 3,000,000.

Important German Bases Along Southern Hem of Hindenburg Line Near Capture

French Within Two Miles of La Fere, Which Is in Flames
—Three and a Half Miles From St. Quentin and but
One Mile From Town of St. Gobain—French Capture
Many Towns Beyond Crozat Canal—Americans Gain

Fast progress has been made by the French in closing in upon both St. Quentin and La Fere, important German strongholds along the southern hem of the Hindenburg line. They are within two miles of La Fere and within three and a half miles of St. Quentin.

In the region of La Fere the French are pushing toward the north of the formidable St. Gobain bastion, defending Laon. They have made a considerable impression on this powerful position by direct pressure, in the Serres sector to the south of La Fere.

The Serres station was captured yesterday. By taking Briguey, further south, General Pétain's troops have advanced to within little more than a mile of the town of St. Gobain, on one of the highest points of the bastion.

Near Laffaux, around the bend in the line to the south of the bastion, the French made some further progress to the north of the town.

Push on Toward Laon

The headway thus made in encircling the St. Gobain positions constituted the most important feature of yesterday's operations because the objective in this sector is unquestionably the German base at Laon, the keystone of the whole German defensive system. A more spectacular advance by the French armies, however, was effected further north.

French Take Five Towns

Having forced on Sunday a passage of the Crozat canal on the line opposite the La Fere-St. Quentin front, the French developed the forward push rapidly yesterday, until by evening advances of well towards five miles beyond the canal had been scored at some points.

Five towns were taken in this region, including Esigny-le-Grand, d-

Ball Players' Strike Delays Start of Fifth Game of World's Series

Members of Both Teams Remained Off Field Until After 3 O'Clock in Futile Attempt to Get More Money—Request Turned Down

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Sept. 10.—After a two hour strike by the Boston Red Sox and the Chicago Cubs for readjustment of the players' share of the World Series receipts that met a fat refusal by the national commission the players of the two contending teams agreed that they would contest the remaining games if it was publicly announced that they were playing "for the sake of the public; the good name of baseball and the soldiers and sailors present."

The decision to play was not made until 3 o'clock when after a stormy session with the players with the members of the national commission in the clubhouse, Harry Hooper, the Red Sox rightfielder, who headed the committee of players said: "We will play the game for the sake of baseball. We know we have not been given a square deal."

There were probably over 20,000 persons present when the players finally came upon the field for practice. The national commission indicated very clearly that they could not change the rule, having no authority to do so. The Red Sox needed but one more game to capture the "World" Series, while the hapless Cubs were fighting in their last line of defense.

Wounded Soldiers Cheered
The crowd had something to cheer for when a large detachment of wounded soldiers brought to this country from overseas last Saturday arrived in the grandstand and took box seats. The entire grandstand and the bleachers rose en masse, while the band played "Over There" and gave the heroes three lusty cheers, the loudest and the most heartfelt that have yet been given in the series.

During the continued absence of the players from the field, the band made gallant efforts to entertain the crowd which was showing remarkable patience.

The hand played "The Star Spangled Banner" while the players and spectators stood with bared heads. Hendrix and Vaughn warmed up for the Cubs, while Sam Jones, Boston's right hander, worked out for the Red Sox.

It was announced that O'Day would give the decisions behind the plate; Hitzelbrand at first; Klein and Owens at third base.

The batteries for Boston: Jones and Agnew; for Chicago: Vaughn and Kil-

COACH? COACH? WHO KNOWS A COACH?
Do you know of a good football coach?

If so, you can obtain the good graces of Headmaster Herbert D. Bixby, of the high school by sending your man to him at once.

The high school is without a coach and the football season is about to begin. James D. Conway, coach for the past several years, has entered the artillery service and as yet nobody has been secured to replace him.

Mr. Bixby says that unless a coach is forthcoming within a week or so it will mean that there will be no football at the school for 1918. Most of the young fellows who would ordinarily be available for the job are in the service and a man who has been out of the game for any length of time finds himself sadly inadequate when it comes to teaching the up-to-date methods of pigskin.

Mr. Bixby says that the applicant must be thoroughly qualified in every respect because if the school is to have a team, it must have a real leader.

Therefore, one week will determine whether the high school is to live up to its traditions and have football or else have it called off, "on account of the war." Applicants should see Mr. Bixby at the high school office.

POPULAR CONFIDENCE IS TOTTERING IN GERMANY

LONDON, Sept. 10.—"Popular confidence is tottering," and, "We may win" are significant phrases made in a speech at Dresden on Monday, by Count von Vitzthum d'Eckstadt, the foreign minister of Saxony, according to a despatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

"The more we speak of peace, the further away it is," he said. "The enemy's means of success have plunged him into a kind of warlike folly which makes conciliation impossible. We can trust the army and the high command, but popular confidence is tottering."

"We must deal more energetically with enemy agents in our midst, put forth all our strength into the war and forget our differences. Then we may win."

LABOR TO WORK AND FIGHT TO WIN WAR

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The immediate task before organized labor is to "work and fight to win the war" George N. Wrenn, president of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, told delegates to the annual convention of that body today. "It is our solemn duty," he said, "to put our whole weight into the scale in behalf of the government and civilization. This is no time for delay."

Gas In the Stomach Is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bismarck Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloating right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bismarck Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion. For sale at Liggett's Riker-Jaynes' drug store and leading druggists. Adv.

LABOR SUPPORTS DRAFT

Resolve Adopted by Massachusetts Branch of American Federation of Labor

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—When the 33d annual convention of the Massachusetts state branch, American Federation of Labor, opened in Convention hall, St. Botolph street, yesterday, 350 delegates were there, representing 235,000 men and women wage earners throughout the commonwealth. It is expected that the proceedings of the convention will occupy three or four days.

The assistance of organized labor in the new draft registration of men between the ages of 18 and 45 was pledged in a resolution adopted unanimously. A committee was appointed by President George H. Wrenn of Springfield to act with a committee from the Boston Central Labor union and confer with the local representatives of the war and navy departments for the purpose of requesting modifications of the program to establish dry zones in Boston.

Gov. McCall welcomed the delegates in behalf of the state and was given a fine reception.

Eight state branch bills before the legislature of 1919 were recommended by the committee, together with such other measures as may be added by the convention. These were bills for an 8-hour day for women in manufacturing and mercantile establishments; cities and towns to provide home-steads; a state fund to which all employers coming under the workmen's compensation act must subscribe; less hours of labor for young children—not over five per day—three hours of work of eight hours each for four workers in paper mills; one day's rest in seven for hotel and restaurant employees and other workers; non-contributory old age pensions for deserving and needy citizens; a free state university.

Secretary Treasurer Martin T. Joyce in his annual report states that during the past year 29 new unions affiliated with the state branch and there were also eight reaffiliations. The receipts for the year amounted to $11,229.64 and the expenses were $8222.13, leaving on hand Aug. 1 $3007.51.

The executive council in its report to the convention stated that six meetings of the council had been held since the last convention, all in joint session with the legislative committee.

It was also reported that the council sent a telegram to President Wilson offering him, and through him the nation, their heartiest co-operation in assisting to solve the great problem of the rehabilitation and vocational re-education of the disabled soldiers and sailors after the war. It was pointed out that the trades unions of the country have given freely of their membership to help win the war.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.

Fighting Back of the Lines

Inferior, low-grade gasoline costs most in the long run. You count the cost in low mileage, weak power and excess carbon deposits.

SO-CO-NY is the Quality gasoline. It reduces the operating cost of your car by delivering more miles per gallon. It saves.

Look for the Red, White and Blue SO-CO-NY Sign.

Save with SO-CO-NY. Save wisely. Save well.

TO QUIT CABINET

Report McAdoo to Devote Entire Time to the Managing of Railroads

John Skelton Williams Slated to Head the Treasury Department

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—William G. McAdoo is expected to step out of the office of secretary of the treasury and John Skelton Williams is expected to step into the cabinet office thus vacated. There has been no announcement of the projected change, official or otherwise, but men who are in position to know believe that this first shift in the war cabinet will come with the new Liberty loan.

The business of the railroads has developed to such magnitude and calls for such attention even to details, by the director general that it is deemed more than any man can do adequately to fill both great offices.

The effort to accomplish this was responsible for the breaking of Mr. McAdoo's health in the spring, and there was dismay in the national capital at the danger, happily averted, that another man would have to be found to take over the tremendous responsibilities. Nobody was able to suggest even a probable successor for the dual job.

Railroads Present Huge Problem

It was recognized then that if McAdoo dropped out two men would have to be chosen to fill his shoes. The anticipated change simply amounts to doing this same thing without losing McAdoo.

Of the two jobs the directorship of the railroads is comparatively the more exacting, and under existing conditions, the more important. The treasury runs more or less according to routine. The railroads present a constant succession of new problems.

The treasury specialists can determine on policies and decision according to precedent; there are no precedents for the verdicts of the director of railroads.

Transportation is such an intimate element in our war-making that the director has to have his hand on the throttle every moment, so, according to the information on which the opening paragraph of this article is based, McAdoo has elected to stay with the railroad job and pass up the other.

Naturally the report that the director of railroads is to separate himself from the treasury has given rise to the idea that there would be a new cabinet office shortly, that of secretary of transportation, and that, too, seems probable. Ten days there have been reports of impending cabinet changes. These dealt mainly with Secretary of War Baker's post. The story was told that Mr. Baker would be the successor of Ambassador Page at London and that McAdoo would be given the place of secretary of war. That is not going to happen.

Whenever Secretary Baker has gone abroad some such report has been floated. Mr. Baker will be back at his desk in a month or two and will remain there until it is time for another visit to the fighting army, when a recrudescence of the reports may be looked for.

McAdoo Constantly on Move

If McAdoo were the sort of executive who could sit with his feet under a desk, or on a desk, the necessity for the change would not have arisen, but he insists on attending to all manner of details, such as the wording of tickets, the rates on pullmans, the routing of trains. Last night, for instance, though the director general is off on an inspection of railroads and coal mines, in preparation for the winter campaign against fuel shortage, he is out with the change of the dining-car service from a la carte to table d'hôte.

While he was in Washington between his western trip and his present journey he worked over menus until he had found what he could supply for $1 and $1.25, the prices for lunches and dinners on the dining cars after Oct. 1. While he was at this, he worked out a plan for pooling the eating equipment of various railroads, so that after the first of the month passengers are likely to find themselves patronizing an Illinois Central traveling restaurant on a New York Central run, if that will make for service.

Many persons are wondering what sort of reception the name of John Skelton Williams will get in the senate when it is presented for confirmation. Senators fought him when he was named assistant secretary of treasury and they fought him harder when he was named controller of currency. That was back in the days when the national city clerk, who had been supplying advance statements of the condition of national banks throughout the country, he ordered out of the department.

FOE HAS SPENT EFFORT

We Have Passed Through Dark Days—They Will Never Return, Says Haig

LONDON, Sept. 10.—"We have passed through many dark days. Please God these will never return," says Field Marshal Haig, commander-in-chief of the British forces in France, in an order of the day. The commander then says: "The enemy has now spent his effort."

rectly south of St. Quentin and but three and a half miles distant. To the north, beyond the Somme, Etrepillers and Roupy were taken, while in closing in on La Fere the French captured the Liex fort, northeast of Liex and important wooded land within two miles of La Fere.

France-American Gains

On the Franco-American front, just to the south of the Aisne, there was an improvement in the allied position, in the Glennes region. Field Marshal Haig's troops made headway in their turning movement south of Havrincourt, where the left flank of the German positions behind the canal du Nord defending Cambrai on the west, is being assailed. A German counter attack southeast of Havrincourt, was repulsed.

British Move Forward in Flanders

In Flanders the British are continuing their pressure in the direction of Armentieres and last night they achieved advances north and west of that town. Northeast of Neuve Chapelle, they also moved forward.

Increased Hun Resistance

Increased resistance by the Germans and weather conditions unfavorable to the swift movement of troops have tended to slow down the allied offensive along that stretch of the battle line from St. Quentin to Cambrai. Here the British in fighting of a local character, have carried their lines to Havrincourt wood and Peizerie to the south and have taken Verdun and Vendelles. Verdun is about five miles from St. Quentin.

La Fere in Flames

At Liex, the French crossed the Crozat canal and their patrols are nearing La Fere, which is reported to be burning. With the fall of La Fere only a question of time, the French also command all of the region west of the Oise river and are lightening their line around St. Quentin and in the valley to the east through which they must pass to take Laon.

Hun Artillery Fire Increases

From La Fere south, German artillery fire has increased in violence and numerous counter attacks indicate further progress by the French would be contested vigorously. Failure to stop the allied advance at other strong positions and the burning of La Fere furnish evidence of the weakness of the Germans' line and of their ultimate inability to stop the turning movement against the St. Gobain forest, the keystone of their positions barring the further movement eastward of the allied armies. Reinforcements have been rushed into the St. Gobain forest and to the defense of the lines east of Rheims.

The resumption of artillery duels between the opposing forces further strengthens the opinion that for the present at least, the rapid advance has settled down to a bitter struggle for the possession of the strong points in the line—Cambrai, St. Gobain forest and the Chemin-des-Dames.

TIGHTEN LINES AROUND ST. QUENTIN AND LA FERRE

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Sept. 9.—(By The Associated Press).—French troops forced the crossing of the Crozat canal to-day, overcoming strong opposition and occupying important positions in the triangle formed by the two branches of the canal and the road from La Fere and St. Quentin. They also advanced north of the Oise, taking the Liex fort and north of the Oise capturing Etrepillers and Roupy. Though these were operations of detail, they tightened the lines around both St. Quentin and La Fere, greatly facilitating further operations against both towns.

General Humbert's forces now command the entire region west of the river and the canal from La Fere north beyond a single track railroad that crosses the river at Mexieres. They command all of the approaches to St. Quentin from the north, west and south and are within five miles of the town.

General Mangin's forces south of the Oise took Servais, closing in on La Fere from the south while they improved their position north of Laffaux. Both the third and tenth French armies are now practically on the line where the pursuit of the Germans stopped in the spring of 1917. German prisoners say that orders recently issued are to fight to the last man to hold the present positions. There are indications, however, that the Germans have less confidence than last year in the inviolability of their line.

The Hindenburg line, however, comprises a wide system of defenses having a total depth in some places of nearly 10 miles and the fall of its pillars does not mean a breach in the position.

WAR NOW ENTERS A PERIOD OF PRECAUTION

PARIS, Sept. 10.—The allies are now almost back to the lines they occupied before the German offensive after six weeks of unbroken victory, and the war has entered a period, not of calm but of precaution, with a promise of just as wonderful things to follow. The dry and on the whole fine weather which helped Marshal Foch to turn the tables on the Germans so fast has now ended and a wet stormy spell has set in.

IMPORTANT PROGRESS FOR FRENCH ANNOUNCED

PARIS, Monday, Sept. 9.—Important progress towards the southern end of the Hindenburg line in the neighborhood of La Fere, north of the St. Gobain massif, was made by the French forces today. The war office tonight announced the capture of the Liex fort, northeast of the town of Liex, and of wooded regions to the east and south-east of Liex, within two miles of La Fere.

Additional ground was gained in the St. Gobain region south of the Oise, where the Servais station was taken as well as a wooded area about a mile and a half to the south.

North of the La Fere region, the French pressed in far, capturing the towns of Remigny, Montescourt-Livrolles, Clastres, Seracourt-le-Grand, Roupy and Etrepillers, the last two towns being within three and a half miles of St. Quentin.

Improvements were effected in the French positions north of Laffaux, opposite the end of the Chemin-des-Dames. There was also improvement of the position in the region of Glennes, south of Aisne, where Franco-American forces are operating. The statement reads:

"New progress realized today by our troops at various points on the battlefield."

"North of the Somme, we captured the villages of Etrepillers and Roupy. Beyond the Crozat canal, we have taken Seracourt-le-Grand, Montescourt-Livrolles and Remigny. Our advance elements occupied hill 105, south of Couescourt station, Essigny-le-Grand and hill 117."

"North of the Oise we took the fort of Liex, the wood northwest of the Caniers farm and the Rouge farm. South of the Oise, we have taken Briquetay and the Servais station. Elsewhere, we improved our positions north of Laffaux and also between the Aisne and the Vesle in the region of Glennes."

"Army of the east (Sept. 7.) There was activity along the entire front, particularly west of the Vardar, in the head of the Cerna, in the region of Monastir and between the lakes, where the enemy attempted a raid which failed with losses. In Albania, there were patrol encounters."

The report from the army of the east under date of Sept. 8 reads: "There was activity by the artillery and the aviators along the greater part of the front."

INTERESTING LETTERS FROM LOWELL SOLDIERS IN THE WAR ZONE

Mrs. G. W. Faneuf of 1131 Middlesex street has received a most interesting letter from her son, Corp. George J. Faneuf, who is in France with Battery C of the 102d Field Artillery:

Corp. George J. Faneuf

France, Aug. 2, 1918.

Dear Mother: This is my second day of rest at the hotel here. I will return to the guns in about two more days. You no doubt have read in the papers of our big drive. Our division is the best in the world. They say that the crown prince's best opposed us. We certainly have the Germans on the run and we are by no means thinking of letting up on them either. We had to move our guns forward every night to keep in touch with the retreating Boche.

We had a novel and exciting experience just before I left the guns to come back for a rest. In a town of fair size directly in the path of our doughboys was a church steeple which commanded a view of all the valley and the hills on either side.

Our infantry officers discovered the fact that the steeple contained several German machine guns. It was so high that it would be impossible to capture the town without great loss to the infantry. The major of the 1st regiment immediately ordered his men to our brigade and regimental commanders who decided that a sniper from our regiment would serve their purpose.

Lieut. Johnson of our battery was chosen to see that the job was done. Even if he had to bring the gun to the edge of the town he picked my gun, so that at 8 o'clock in the morning with six horses pulling it, as well as six men pulling our caisson filled with ammunition, we started on our journey. As we drew near our infantry line the woods suddenly ended, leaving us to continue toward our destination across the open fields in plain sight of the Germans, but out of range of rifle and machine gun fire.

We skirted the woods and leisurely selected a favorable location for our 75. Then after bucking the piece into the woods a few feet so that only the muzzle protruded, we prepared our place to action. Our drivers, horses and limbers pulled away from the piece in silence, leaving us at the disposal of the Boche artillery. To our surprise, no whistling shells greeted us, their attention being drawn, perhaps, by a heavy barrage.

Then our artillery was directed to ward a town on our left. Our guns ready to fire, Lieut. Johnson showed me my target and explained that as this was the first time to his knowledge that any gun of our regiment had been used in direct fire on the enemy, that is, when you can see and be seen by the enemy. He hoped that I would take advantage of the opportunity to add another line of glory to Battery F's already well filled book.

I sighted the gun on the steeple and after several trial shots during which I was able to correct my range and deflection, allowing for windage, a shell was planted through the front of the building.

The lieutenant was pleased and suggested that the elevation be increased slightly. When this was done, the next six shots were direct hits on the steeple, tearing huge gaps in the masonry.

After ten minutes' firing we observed a white flag displayed from the tower. Our gun had belched forth at that same instant and a few seconds later another shell had struck home. When the smoke had cleared away no flag was to be seen. A ragged hole had been torn where the flag had been put out. Several minutes more and then a Red Cross flag hit the breeze. Knowing this to be a hoax we continued to shell until we were certain that we had made the building untenable. A message was sent to our colonel informing him we had attained our objective and were waiting further orders. The colonel was greatly pleased and told the lieutenant to stay in position, firing at any suspicious looking object until our battery again was then to report to our battery again.

This suited us and we directed our attention to a new target. This time it was a substantial looking clump of trees very prominently grouped in a favorable place for a machine gun nest on the side of the opposite hill. We turned our gun on these trees and the third shot scored a direct hit. We poured 12 rods rapid fire into the trees and soon observed several German soldiers running as if possessed over the crest of the hill, one following in his haste and rolling over and over.

The lieutenant thinks it likely that we blew up either a machine gun nest or a sniper's engaged perhaps in some what similar work to our own. Whatever it was we were saluted with a rain of shells coming from Boche land. We took instant refuge, however, in a convenient trench nearby (which was by the way, of German origin), and waited for the storm to abate.

This it soon did and we had by this time used up our ammunition, we called up our limbers and hitching up them, stealthily crept away from the lines. This time we went through woods over a newly discovered road to safety.

We were highly elated, not only because of our work, but because we had been able to do it and get away with a whole hide. Our infantry have since taken the town with very little resistance.

My gun crew worked like Trojans, and I am indebted to them for their good work. Lieut. Johnson is already the possessor of the Croix de Guerre and certainly deserves another recognition of some kind for the way in which he handled the problem.

In order that he might obtain as much information as possible that morning he had gone "over the top" with our infantry, advancing within 500 metres of the machine gun nest, thus acquainting himself with all the necessary facts to make our part of the affair more simple.

I hope the story of my experiences will not fade by this time because your worry any. If it has this story would be better untold.

Your son,

GEORGE J.

Private Ernest Brown

Ernest Brown, formerly of the quartermaster's corps, Camp Hollabird, who was recently transferred to the Motor Transport corps, Water Tank Train, 301, has written the following interesting letter to his uncle, J. B. Pelnaut of Morrismack street, this city:

Dear Uncle: Received the cigarette and the dictionary for which I want to thank you. It is just the thing I wanted. Well, I'm real happy because I got the job I wanted. I have been transferred to the Motor Transport corps, a new branch of the service, in Water Tank Train 301 and if nothing happens, we should be sailing for France in about three weeks. This is the first outfit of its kind to make it the best. The purpose of this water tank train is to purify water from a hole or river and then carry it to the trenches. We have these large purifiers which we use to a river or any old water hole and it purifies the water. Then we fill our large tankers which carry the water to the boys. There are 535 men in our outfit and there are all real soldiers from Camp Meade. This is considered a fighting outfit and believe me I will be general clerk. My work is Q.M.C. and I am glad to say that I'm a soldier. This is going to be great because I'll have a chance to see something outside of Baltimore. I'm in the headquarters and there are nine of us in it. There are 15 officers in this unit.

I am going to speak French for the bunch, do stenography work and in fact I will be general clerk. My work is when we get over there will chiefly consist of going from one little town to another to receive or send despatches and I'm going to be a regular soldier with a motorcycle. I don't know what I will get out of it, but I'm sure to get something.

Now we can hardly take anything over and all we do take is issued and we must carry it on our backs so don't send anything because I will not be able to take it with me. Don't bother about a sweater because I had two good ones given to me by the Red Cross. I will send my diamond by express and insured.

I have to get my teeth fixed before I go and I decided to have it done by a regular dentist in Baltimore, because they say the camp dentist is an awful scrub. He was a plumber before he got into the army. Well, I can't think of anything more to write about, but if there is anything you like to know just ask me and I will be delighted to tell you.

ERNEST.

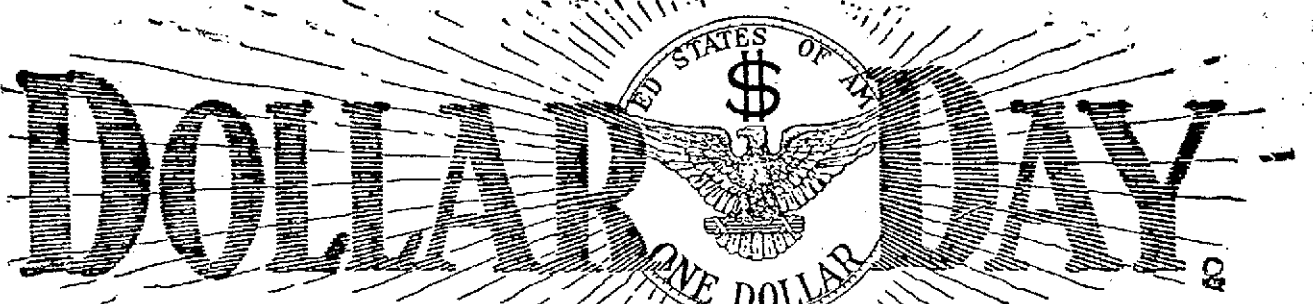

HERE LIES THE PATH TO FAME ON SCREEN!

The Owl theatre informed The Sun today that no expense will be spared in filming "A Romance of Lowell," and after showing the picture in Lowell, the film is going to be placed at the disposal of the contestants to assist them in securing a position in the movies.

There are thousands of young men and women throughout the country who write to film companies asking for an opportunity to take up moving picture work. Of course, being absolutely green at the work, without any previous experience, they do not employ them and whenever they do it is to give them an insignificant bit, which gives them absolutely no opportunity to show what they might be capable of doing if given a chance.

The plan the Owl theatre has is therefore an excellent one. They will lend the film to those who take part and they will be permitted to send the picture to the regular releasing companies who can run it off in their projecting room. In this way the moving picture companies can see what the young people can do with real parts, and who knows but that some boy or girl or child may attract the attention of these film companies.

There is no question but that "A Romance of Lowell" will be the all-absorbing topic of interest in our city for many days and, considering that the Hudris Film company of New York has at the head of it, Mr. William Harris, Jr., son of the late William Harris, of Rich, Harris and Frohman, and brother of the late Henry B. Harris, the New York theatrical manager who was lost on the Titanic, the public is assured that this production will have attending it all the dignity of the usual high class production.

TARGET PRACTICE ON CAMP'S 200 TARGETS DELIGHTS OLD AND NEW SOLDIERS

CAMP DEVENS, Sept. 9.—Under the critical eye of Maj. Gen. Henry P. McCain, commander of the 12th division his men yesterday took their first course on the rifle range. From early morning until late in the afternoon the surrounding country reverberated with the crash of rifles, and 200 targets bobbed up and down behind a barrier as the markers scored the shots.

There was some extremely fine shooting done. Many of the men had never fired a rifle before. Others, regular army men, complained they were unaccustomed to such a short range. They fired at 100 yards yesterday. Soldiers with years of service behind them were side by side with rookies, who imagined the targets before them were Germans.

Details of soldiers were placed on the Fitchburg road. They stopped all cars and warned the passengers that they passed at their own risk. This was done to prevent a repetition of an accident that occurred when a young woman was struck by a bullet while passing along the road. No accidents were reported. The Woodsville road was closed altogether.

Eight companies, two from each regiment, fired their course yesterday. All 200 targets were kept busy. When the 76th division started its course they had but 50 targets to work with, the others not then being completed.

Virginia Boy Good Shot

A number of perfect scores were made yesterday. One was made by Bradford Stewart, a Virginia boy, a member of Co. I, 78d Infantry. Before firing, he said he had never shot with an army rifle before, and promptly plunked 10 bulls-eyes, making a perfect score.

"Maybe you never handled an army rifle before," said a lieutenant, "but you can certainly shoot. Where did you learn?"

"Floyd Allen, the Virginia mountaineer, who was a member of the Allen gang of Hillville, Va., which shot up the court there in 1912, afterward escaping, was my teacher," was the reply of the "rookie."

"Some teacher," muttered the lieutenant as he turned away.

Even though they are far from their homes it was election day just the same for the Maine soldiers. Polls opened in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium at 7 o'clock and remained open until 6. It was the most picturesque election ever seen by any men in camp. The 16 ballot boxes for the 16 Maine counties consisted of packing cases. There are some 2000 Maine voters in camp and the officers in charge of the election estimated that there would be about 1500 votes cast.

The Maine men crowded the auditorium practically all day. At noon Lieut. Raymond W. Swift of Augusta, an officer of B company, 12th Military Police, who was in charge of the election, telegraphed Sec. of State Frank W. Ball of Maine and asked for authority to increase his staff to handle votes.

Five state guard officers and 10 non-commissioned officers arrived in camp yesterday to take a two weeks' course in machine gun work here. The officers are Lieuts. F. J. McMillan, N.

W. Lovejoy, W. M. Mosley, L. K. Jones and William Benninger.

Maj. Gen. McCain had a distinguished visitor yesterday when Gen. James Parker, U.S.A. (retired) arrived here from Newport, R. I. Gen. Parker was accompanied by his son, Lieut. Parker of the 4th United States Field Artillery. The visitors were entertained at luncheon and inspected the camp.

Lowell Bootleggers Held

Nineteen bootleggers, arrested Sunday by the provost guard, were brought before court at Ayer yesterday. Six were arrested in Fitchburg and 13 in Lowell. All were held in $300 for the federal grand jury. The apprehension of bootleggers in Lowell again focuses the attention of the authorities on that city, which for some time was closed to soldiers.

A big jitney bus operated by Adalard Brothers, containing 14 passengers, was in collision last night with a motor ambulance when the north road crosses the main road. The ambulance, was being driven down the north road from the K. of C. building and the bus was coming toward the main gate. The bus driver swung up the hill to the right in an effort to avoid collision with the ambulance. The effort was unsuccessful, however, and when the two machines came together the bus tipped over.

Three of the passengers were injured and they were taken to the Dase hospital. The injured are Private John Waldren of K company, 74th Infantry; Private Spaulding of the 20th company, Depot Brigade, and Miss Stella Brown of Schuylville, N. Y.

Miss Brown was the most severely injured. She sustained lacerations of the face and scalp. Private Herman W. Marlow of the 246th Ambulance company drove the ambulance, and after the collision he rushed the injured to the hospital.

Maj. Heliot For Devens

Maj. Julius Heliot of the French military mission reported yesterday that the northeastern department headquarters for a tour of six weeks' duty as an instructor in an important military sciences branch at Camp Devens.

The offices of the French offices for this district announced that Maj. L. Leonal, now here, will take charge of the work of the French officer-instructors in the northern section of the country upon the return to France, this week, of Lieut. Col. Paul Azan.

"War the Best Game"

Lieut. James Conroy of Worcester, at one time a shortstop for the Red Sox, but now of a company, 73d Infantry, has for a game that makes baseball look like a "Tuesday" evening meeting of the Young Men's marching club.

He had his men out on the rifle range this afternoon. Standing in his shirt sleeves, under the broiling sun, he watched them pumping steel at the targets.

"Gee," said he, "I'd like to see the Sox and Cubs playing this afternoon, but I wouldn't give this up for the show at Fenway park. This is far and away the bigger game."

There are others who think as Lieut. Conroy does.

Railway Men are Granted

Wage Increase

Service Resumed Today—En-

dicott Announces Award—

Cars Run Through Lowell

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Though the Middlesex & Boston Street railway is operated at a loss, according to Henry B. Endicott, executive chairman of the Massachusetts committee of public safety, acting as arbitrator in the controversy between the company and its striking employees, he has awarded all employees a substantial increase, thus ending the strike. Cars will be run by the company on the old schedule today, and as it is agreed that there shall be no discrimination against any of the men on strike all the old men probably will be back in their usual places. An important feature of the settlement is that both sides to the dispute have agreed with Mr. Endicott that during the continuance of the war there will be no strike or lockouts on the property and that if any differences arise they shall be submitted, either to the national war labor board or to Mr. Endicott, as the company may elect.

Endicott Hears Both Sides. Mr. Endicott passed the whole day yesterday listening to the presentation of the case, James H. Vahey, attorney for the carmen, and Pres. Pitt F. Dow for the company having agreed earlier in the day to accept Mr. Endicott as arbitrator.

The question referred to him solely affected the wages of the so-called blue uniform men and the miscellaneous employees. The blue uniform men are motormen and conductors; the miscellaneous employees are carmen men, trackmen, track layers, crossing tenders, watchmen and others.

The agreement is to hold until July 1, 1919.

"I find that the company is running at a loss," Mr. Endicott declares in his report, "but that the wages of the men must be fixed notwithstanding that fact, because there is no question in my mind, and none was raised before me, about the increase in the cost of living."

"I therefore find that the blue-uniform men shall receive the following wages: For the first year of service, 35 cents an hour; for the second year of service, 37 cents an hour; for the third year of service, 39 cents an hour; for the fourth year of service, 41 cents an hour; for the fifth year of service, 42 cents an hour."

Award Retroactive to July

"Concerning the miscellaneous employees, I find that the wages should be fixed as follows: The four men who are now doing car control work, shall receive 35 cents an hour; all other miscellaneous employees receiving 30 cents an hour, or less, shall receive 35 cents an hour; all those receiving from 30 to 38 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 40 cents an hour; those receiving from 38 to 39 1/2 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 41 cents an hour; those receiving 40 cents an hour shall receive, hereafter, 42 cents an hour; those receiving 41 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 43 cents an hour."

"It has been agreed between the company and the men that this award, so far as all employees are concerned, shall be effective as of July 1, 1918."

Men Accept Award

WALTHAM, Sept. 10.—A meeting of the Middlesex & Boston employees and representatives of other trolley lines in Massachusetts took place last night in the Hibernian hall, at which the striking employees unanimously voted to accept the award of Henry B. Endicott. The announcement of Mr. Endicott's findings was made by James H. Vahey. The meeting last night was originally called to discuss a state-wide strike, but in view of the award, the matter was not taken up.

necessity of making an extension of its Varnum avenue line in Lowell.

Two years ago the public service commission ordered the Bay State to make this extension for the general good of the community.

The ruling as handed down today by the commission rescinds the order it gave the trolley company two years ago. The commission in its announcement today points out that even two years ago the trolley company was not in a good financial condition and that in the interim its financial condition has not improved, that it has in fact gone into the hands of a receiver, and an increase in its income due to its being allowed to increase its price for its service, in the form of increased fares and shortened fare zones, has not materialized to the amount that it was expected to.

The commission says that while there is no doubt but that the extension of the line in Varnum avenue would be a much desired convenience for Lowell people, it is manifestly inexpedient to expect the company to try to build this line at the present time in view of its financial condition and the commission does not view the extension of the Varnum avenue line at this time as being in the nature of a public nature. It is for this reason, the commission says, it has decided not to hold the Bay State company to observance of the order the commission made in this case two years ago. HOYT.

MANY YEARS' AGITATION PRECEDED WHAT WAS THOUGHT TO BE VICTORY

The agitation for the extension of the Varnum avenue line from Lexington avenue, where it now stops, as far as Totman road, has been going on for several years. A considerable number of people would be inconvenienced by the proposed extension and the residents

Charles McMahon Falls Down Elevator Shaft

Charles McMahon, aged 14 years, son of Mrs. Anastasia McMahon, 1275 Middlesex street, fell down a freight elevator well at the plant of the D. L. Page Co. in Merrimack street last evening and sustained injuries, which caused his death a few minutes later.

Just how the accident happened is not known, and is a source of no little wonder to those who worked with him, inasmuch as the elevator was not running at the time of the accident, and the doors being of a type which seemingly would make such a mishap impossible.

There were no witnesses to the accident and when the boy was found he was lying at the bottom of the pit suffering from severe injuries to the head. The ambulance was called, but the boy passed away before reaching the hospital. The body was removed to the funeral parlor of M. H. McDonough Sons.

J. PAPA KAKOS DIES FROM AUTO INJURY

James Papakakos, aged 60 years, and residing at 10 Flood's alley, died this morning at the state infirmary, Tewksbury, as a result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile in Tewksbury Saturday.

Papakakos, who was employed by the Bay State Street Railway company, was at his work on the main thoroughfare in Tewksbury Saturday morning, when an automobile operated by a Mr. Smith of Boston came along. The man attempted to get out of the way of the machine but was struck and knocked to the ground. He was removed to the state infirmary, where he died this morning. The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker Napoleon Blodreau in this city.

LOWELL REPRESENTED AT BOSTON MEETING

John J. O'Rourke, of the local board of trade, attended a meeting of commercial executives of the state last Friday at the Boston City Club. About 25 cities were represented. The meeting was called to order by Frank Wither of Taunton, president of the state board of trade, at 1 o'clock and it proved to be one of the most important meetings ever held by this organization.

It was pointed out, in a most convincing manner, that if Massachusetts was to hold her own in the industrial lines, steps should be taken immediately to safeguard her manufacturing business. Facts and figures were stated showing that while Massachusetts progressed to some extent, its progress was not nearly as much as other states, particularly the surrounding ones. This was caused, to a great extent, by the increasing taxation, particularly of manufacturing machinery, that is being yearly added to the burden of the manufacturer.

The surrounding states have not adopted this method of taxation with the result that they are showing anywhere from 100 to 250% more industrial business than Massachusetts can show in the same time.

It was pointed out that our state board of trade could be made much more effective by the co-operation of every board of trade, or chamber of commerce throughout the state. Plans were discussed at length and a complete re-organization of the state board is about to be established whereby it is hoped that by the united action of every city and town in the state the vital interests of Massachusetts may be safeguarded and her future assured.

THE "Y" HUSTLED AND KEPT UP WITH ARMY

PARIS, Sept. 10.—When Franco-American forces gave the boche the memorable licking on the Chateau Thierry front, the Y.M.C.A. canteen department was put to a test few organizations of similar character ever faced. The battle moved swiftly. The Red Triangle had to move with equal celerity or get left. Getting left is one thing that the "Y" objects to. It never has happened since the overseas work began.

So swiftly did the scene of action shift during the progress of the fight that the armies' ration crisis could always keep up. Conditions were such that it was not humanly possible to give the men the food that normally is issued to them. In some cases, it was impossible to give them any. The Y.M.C.A. supplies, ordinarily classed as something to supplement the rations, became the means actually of sustaining some of the fighters.

M. church on the evening of Sept. 17, his services having been secured through the efforts of the pastor, Rev. N. W. Matthews.

"RODDY" STARTS OVERSEAS TO PLEASE THE BUDDIES WITH BOOM! BOOM! HORN

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Homer Rodheaver has gone to teach Pershing's men how to sing "Brighten the Corner Where You Are." Escorting his celebrated trombone, Billy Sunday's old chorus master left in the Y.M.C.A. overseas service uniform to be a soldier song leader for the duration of the war. "Roddy" is to specialize in the one song he made famous, but incidentally will dispense other tunes outside the evangelistic line, such as "The Last Long Mile" and "Good Morning, Mr. Zip-Zip-Zip."

REGISTRATION AIDS ARE READY FOR DAY

Lowell men who have volunteered as assistant draft registrars for the registration to be held here Thursday, met last evening in city hall and discussed plans for their work. James J. Gallagher presided at the meeting. The fact that men must register in the precinct where they live was emphasized. The Lowell Greek community offered the use of the basement of the Greek church for the registration of men in that district and the offer was accepted.

Registrars were assigned to the various precincts, the basis of allotment, in most instances, being the location of the registrar's home.

The central registration committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at city hall to make final arrangements.

MISS NASH STARTS FOR CAMP MERRITT

Miss Annie M. Nash, a graduate of St. John's hospital and one of the best known nurses in Lowell, left today for Camp Merritt, New Jersey, to serve as an army Red Cross nurse. Miss Nash has been stationed at the North Reading sanitarium for some time past. She has served for two years as president of the Nurses' Alumnae association of St. John's.

DENTISTS NOT EXEMPT

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—A ruling from Provost Marshal General Crowder has been made public by the Preparedness League of American Dentists, composed of 17,000 dentists, who for almost a year have been doing free work to prepare drafted men for camp. General Crowder has stated that officials and members of the Preparedness League shall not be exempt from the draft even though they are members of Medical Advisory boards and giving their service gratis to the soldiers.

When John Elbridge Mitchell of Winthrop, Me., went into the service, his sister, Miss Thelma, promptly went to work in her father's garage. He says that on certain kinds of work she is as good as any man he knows. With the assistance of another helper, Miss Mitchell put into running order an automobile 10 years old that had been cast aside as worthless.

Merrimack Woolen Company's Addition May Be Done Before Winter

The addition to the factory owned by the Merrimack Woolen Co. at the Navy Yard, Dracut, is fast materializing. The walls are mounting higher and higher every day and it is expected that the structure will be finished in a short time. The new building will alleviate the crowded condition of the factory and incidentally will cost a tidy sum—between $30,000 and $35,000.

Chicken thieves are reported as operating in the vicinity of Dracut. Several residents of the Collinsville section have had their hen houses visited during the night and in one case at least, the thieves got away with a lot of valuable chickens. It behooves the police of the town to make some attempt to put a stop to the depredations.

David Sorenson and family have changed their place of residence from Dinley street to Riverside street.

Mrs. Margaret Dinley of Dinley st. is seriously ill at her home.

Andrew J. McGarry, proprietor of the Ideal market, is at his place of business again after an enforced absence caused by a bad cut which he received when a tonic bottle which he held in his hand, exploded.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE
DURHAM, N. H., Sept. 10.—President R. D. Hezel of New Hampshire college announced today that college would open this year for men Sept. 23, and for women, Oct. 1. The delay in resuming the women's classes is caused by the fact that the college has accepted the offer of the war department to establish here at once a unit of the students' army training corps.

100 SAILORS SUFFER FROM INFLUENZA

BROOKLINE, Sept. 10.—Nearly 100 sailors of the merchant marine suffering from influenza, who have been stationed aboard training vessels in Boston harbor, were removed for treatment today to tents pitched on the summit of Corey Hill, which forms a part of the grounds of Brooks hospital. Strenuous efforts are being made to prevent the further spread of the disease. Many cases have been reported from men in the navy stationed in this vicinity.

TO LIMIT OUTPUT OF WHITE THREAD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Manufacturers of cotton thread were directed by the war industries board to limit output of white thread to 14 sizes, of black to seven and of colored to one, with all spools of the smallest practical diameter for 200 yards.

N. E. BOOKMEN WILL GET SOLDIERS' BOOKS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—New England library leaders interested in the raising of $3,500,000, the quota of the American Library association in the united war work campaign, met yesterday in the Boston public library. J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., appointed by Secretary Baker a member of the war work council, presided.

Mr. Coolidge referred briefly to the second library war fund campaign and the satisfaction among librarians that this is to be a united campaign of well-known associations, including the six New England states. The campaign will open Nov. 1.

Wickes Wambolt, national campaign director, briefly outlined the plans for organization. Edward M. Huntress, who will direct the campaign in New England, emphasized the need of concerted action. He said the organization would be represented in every town and city by teams.

Dr. M. L. Ranney, in charge of the overseas services of the American Library association, spoke of services established abroad, and of the need for enlargement.

Dr. Ranney said England has spent $10,000,000 for books for war service. France is also active in providing books for soldiers in the trenches and Germany has provided traveling libraries. In the past 10 months 43 military camps here have been equipped with American library buildings, each containing 30,000 volumes.

Books have been sent to 234 small units. Even foresters in a remote place in Northern Scotland have been provided with books. There has been a great demand, he said, for technical books.

WILLIAM J. KILLOY IS NOW ARMY SERGEANT

Friends of William J. Killoy, son of Patrolman William H. Killoy, 23 Rockdale avenue, will be interested to learn that the young man, now serving overseas with the army in France, has recently been promoted to sergeant.

He went to Camp Devens, Oct. 12, 1917 and later to Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga. While at Camp Gordon he attended the school for non-commissioned officers and was later assigned to the commanders detail which consisted of ten men. Before leaving for France he was stationed for a time at Camp Mills, Long Island. When living in Lowell Sergt. Killoy had many friends who will be glad to learn of his promotion.

ENVELOPE INDUSTRY IS PLACED AT DISPOSAL OF THE GOVERNMENT

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Fifty leading manufacturers, representing 80 per cent of the envelope industry of the country, at a special meeting of the American Envelope Manufacturers' association and the bureau of envelope manufacturers here yesterday placed their resources at the disposal of the government.

ARTHUR E. HOLDER

BY ROGER W. BABSON
(Famous Writer on Labor and Economics)

If you step in at the Washington office of the federal board of vocational education and ask for Arthur E. Holder, you will see a man a bit over 60 years of age, who is looked up to by 150,000 machinists as the best type of man which the International Machinists' union can contribute to the nation.

Holder has had his present job for just about a year, for he was appointed by President Wilson in July, 1917.

This is not, however, his first experience in Washington. Since 1904 he has spent most of his time here: first as associate editor of the Machinists' Journal, and since 1906 as a member of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor.

His record in this work was remarkable. During ten years he helped secure the passage of 118 separate pieces of legislation favorable to labor, to defeat six unfavorable laws and to bring it to pass that not one unfavorable law was enacted. When it is remembered that this work was accomplished in the face of the most strenuous activity on the part of the National Association of Manufacturers and of the railroad companies, the performance becomes noteworthy.

Of course Holder went to Washington with previous experience which trained him for his Washington successes. In Iowa he was active in politics, was deputy commissioner of labor, was the state's first factory inspector, and soon after coming to Washington he was sent by the United States bureau of labor statistics to Europe to make a thorough study of compensation, regulation, conciliation and arbitration laws in England and on the continent.

Who is this man and what are his antecedents?

Well, he is just an ordinary working man. He was born in 1860, left an orphan in 1865, apprenticed at the age of fourteen after but eight years of elementary schooling, and from that into work.

But he did more than work. He went to night school to round out his education. In two years he was certified as journeyman machinist and went to work on ship board both in the naval and merchant marine service, as an engineer. After this he was on shore, at work in ship yards, locomotive repair work and in general machinist work. He gained much knowledge by going from place to place and getting contact with different men and various conditions.

His labor union membership covers forty-three consecutive years. He was in the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the Knights of Labor and for the past twenty years in the great International Machinists' union, with its 150,000 members—one of the largest and best of the trade unions affiliated with the A. F. of L.

He was for three years president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor. During this time he went up and down the state speaking and organizing unions, largely at his own expense, and succeeded in forming over 300 new locals.

He is a man who would have made his mark in any calling he might have chosen. He has a discriminating and judicial type of mind. In the past eight years he has been a member of the legal committee of the machinists' union, most of the time as chairman. The laws of the union were completely rewritten during his term of office, and they are now taken as model trade union laws by many unions seeking new bases of organization.

This is the type of labor men that President Wilson is choosing to assist in putting the labor work of the United States on a sound and just footing. The Machinists' International feels a just pride in the fact that they have made this contribution of Arthur E. Holder to the common cause of labor, and the country itself is fortunate in that men of this type are being developed—men who see labor's side and who have in addition sufficient mental grasp to take hold of large matters in a large way.

"Is Mr. Littlefield in?" asked a man who rang a doorbell at 67 Eastern av. August 1. In another moment James Alexander of Camden and Otto W. Littlefield of Augusta, two old naval cronies of the Civil war, met for the first time in 53 years. They were both sailors on the monitor Monitor Fish, which took part in the battle of Fort Fisher, and they sat down and talked over for two hours the naval incidents of 1864. Both are 75 years of age.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Michael Sabo of Goshen, Mass., and Miss Ruth Woodbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Woodbury of 44 Osgood street, were married last evening at the home of the bride, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Walter E. Woodbury, a brother of the bride and pastor of the Worthen Street Baptist church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ida Woodbury as bridesmaid and Mrs. Norris E. Woodbury as maid of honor. The best man was a brother of the bride, Mr. Norris E. Woodbury. The happy couple will make their home at Goshen, Mass.

LAND OF CONFUSION AND MANY GOVERNMENTS

(Staff Correspondent, Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

HARBIN, Manchuria, August 16.—"Go to Siberia! Write full particulars of situation there!"

In Mukden, Manchuria, I got that cable from my home office in the United States. I had been on my way to Peking. But—people ordered to Siberia always go. I went! Out of contentment into chaos.

All day I traveled northward over the fertile Manchurian plain in one of the world's finest trains, the South Manchurian express, pride of Japan's colonial railway management. Under the bright sun the Chinese farmers worked—six, eight, ten to a field. How peaceful that pastoral scene was!

American Outpost in Siberia.

By evening confusion and haze began. At Chang-Chun, half way to Harbin, the rain was a flood. Through it I grasped at a stray, a man in khaki, outpost of America, lieutenant in the American railway engineers corps serving in Russia.

At midnight I was on "Russian soil"—Russian railway coach under Russian sovereignty. The lieutenant had fought a way for us through the noisy, twisting mass of Chinese, Russians and Japanese jamming the dimly-lit Chang-Chun station platform. In the coach he had seized a compartment for us—fought for it.

It was almost pitch dark inside the coach. We couldn't see the lieutenant's face as we bade him goodby. A tallow candle, high in a lantern frame, cast just enough light to reveal two bare bunks. No pillows! No bedding! Plenty of dirt!

Russian Anarchy Begins

We locked the door, folded our wet raincoats into pillows, wrapped in blankets the lieutenant had given us, and lay down. Japanese and Korean trains had never been even a minute late. This train, made up here, was starting more than an hour behind time.

Japanese order had ended. Here began the Russian-run Chinese Eastern railroad link in the Trans-Siberian. The coach was Russia, and Russia was anarchy.

Pounding at the door awakened us three times. Twice it was passport examination. Heavily-bearded Russian officials scowled over our papers. Something was wrong. They spoke no English, I no Russian. We would be arrested? Or just thrown off? They handed back the passport. Safe again!

Then other passengers tried to force their way into the compartment. We pushed them out by force, locked

the door against them, and kept it locked no matter who pounded.

Work of the Chinese.

By dawn the train had crossed the Sungar, river and was stopping ten minutes to half an hour at every wayside station. At each stop most of the passengers got out and walked up and down in groups, talking like conspirators.

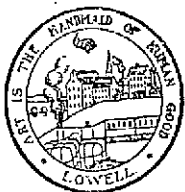

Pine forests bordered wide valleys, wet but now sparkling in the sun, where big herds of cattle grazed. The Chinese farmers were still busy. I have since seen them work between the ridges of opposing forces. But a strip each side of the track was Russia, which is not working, and hours late we dropped down on Harbin—Russian city in the heart of the Chinese province of Manchuria, then the only quiet spot in Russia or Siberia, then the only haven from soviet rule and therefore crowded with refugees.

Now Harbin is more than a "safe port in the storm of revolution." It is a military base, today. Here intervening troops of the allies are starting their operations against Bolshevik and armed German prisoners. Most of the trains just now, from Chang-Chun to Harbin, are troop trains, carrying Chinese or Japanese troops the first stage of their journey to aid the Czech-Slavs wipe out Germanism in Siberia.

Harbin the Fighting Center

In Harbin today diplomats agree on and military staffs plan army campaigns in Siberia. Orders for military stores are being sent, and arrangements made to receive and forward them. Here General Horvath governs of these Russian acres through his position as head of the Chinese eastern railway, proclaimed himself provisional ruler of Siberia, and from here he sent his army to Grodskovo, on the Manchurian-Siberian border, half way to Vladivostok, to link up with the Czech army which captured Nikol'sk after taking over Vladivostok.

It has been hard to keep track of the different "Siberian governments" I have seen arise in the last few weeks.

To Be Sold to the Highest Bidder

FRIDAY, SEPT. 13th, AT 11 A. M.

For the purchase of the remains of the Old Bartlett School, located at the corner of Clark Street and Hancock Avenue, which was destroyed by fire some time ago.

The building will be sold exclusive of the land and must be torn down and moved from the premises immediately. The walls are in a dangerous condition and owing to this fact it is made a condition of the sale that they be demolished during the week ending September 21st.

Each bid must be accompanied by cash or check amounting to 10 per cent of the bid as a guarantee of good faith; said amount to be forfeited to the City of Lowell should the successful bidder fail to pay the balance on or before Sept. 16th.

Per order, FRANCIS A. WARNOCK, Commissioner.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

D. K. KEITH'S THEATRE

Dooley & Sales, that infatigable pair, are back in Lowell again with all their fascinating spirit of fun and whimsicality and they easily lead an excellent comedy bill being presented at D. K. Keith's theatre this week. Even the casual patron of local vaudeville is quite familiar with Dooley & Sales. They are old-timers in the sense that they have been here before, but the anecdotal applies no truer. Every line of their "stunt" is bright and new and pregnant with wit that is really unique. Many comedy men have said the same things, acted in seemingly the same manner as J. Francis Dooley, but not one has attained the results that Dooley has. Many petite and chic vaudeville ladies have displayed the same mannerisms as Corina Sales, but she is unique among them all.

Therein lies the principal reason for the success of the pair. They are different. Last evening Dooley had a lot to say about registration day next Thursday and when Miss Sales complained in her very best Parisian that she had a sore wrist, Dooley came back strong with the remark that she was attempting to "claim exemption." Then the couple sang—and either of them can sing—or told jokes that one never heard before and finally brought "Billy" Gilmore into the argument. Running through it all was an unmistakable vein of personality which made you feel that you had known the couple for years. That lovable, reticent phrase of Miss Sales, which has given the act its title, "Will yer, Jim?" is propounded at the appropriate moment a number of times while the couple are on the stage and each presentation draws forth a bigger laugh. If you've seen Dooley & Sales, you know what they are; if not, get busy.

The Boyer company of Russian dancers is another high light on the week's program. There are four men and three women in the company and they present one of the best Russian dancing acts that Lowell has seen for some time. Vigorous, speedy and at times approaching the seemingly impossible, the various numbers are gone through with the skill and precision that denote real artists. The native band and appropriate scenery play no small part in the success of the affair. Incidentally the introductory singing of the septette is exceptionally well done.

Russell Black and Blanche Vincent are somewhat along the Dooley-Sales type, but not unpleasantly so. Black is a very young and slender, has a good voice and most prominent of all, is a real "character" man. Without doubt he has made a study of those whom he imitates and handsily he has confined himself almost wholly to their lighter sides. Hebrew impersonations are excellent and last evening he brought the house down with his monologue about a colored soldier about to go overseas. A little bit of pathos was introduced, but merely a sprinkling. Comedy is predominant in his every move. Miss Vincent plays the piano well and makes an excellent partner for Black.

Moran and Wiser present a comedy hat-throwing act in which the people in the audience take almost as active a part as do the men themselves. They were more than enjoyed last evening. Magic—with its funny side appearing—forms the nucleus of the offering of the Mystic Hanson Trio, a man and two women. The men does the magic, talks volubly and makes himself generally likeable. The girls sing and dance.

Nata Johnson is a light-haired, slender little girl who has an excellent voice and knows how to use it. She sings classics and popular war songs and does it in a winning manner. Reynolds & White provide an excellent opening act. Chester Conklin in "His First Falses Step," in the comedy picture and the D. K. Keith pictorial of current events is filled with timely views.

THE STRAND THEATRE

The big events at the Strand theatre for the first three days of the week are two of the latest film offerings by the Metro and World Film corporations. "Mother Dear Charmer" and "In Judgment Of" Louise Huff is being featured in the former, while the stellar roles in the latter are being sustained by Anna Nilsson and Franklin Panum.

The story of "Mother Dear Charmer" deals with a young woman who has become interested in Red Cross work and a young American aviator, who is back home recovering from wounds. The young man falls in love with the young woman, who masquerades as the young French maid in order to meet the aviator. The aviator falls in love with the French maid and she encourages his advances without once letting him know her true identity. The complications that follow are mighty interesting, and of course all ends well. "In Judgment Of" tells a story of present day events, to unfold its theme would be taking away much of its entertaining power for those who anticipate a visit to the theatre. Be it said, however, that the play is a very interesting one and one that is sure to please everyone.

In addition to these highly entertaining plays there is also the Pathé Weekly, which contains pictures of the newest phases of army and navy life. The allied war pictures show actual scenes taken on the battle front in France, Belgium and Italy, and they give an inkling of the good work accomplished by the allies during the recent drive. The American soldiers are also shown to advantage. The comedy is one of the side-splitting kind. Miss Ethel Walcott Rose is the soloist for the week and her singing is very pleasing. The bill is one of exceptional value and must be taken in to be enjoyed.

RULES OF EXEMPTIONS IN INDUSTRIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The new priorities classification of industry announced yesterday by the war industries board will not bind district draft boards in determining deferred classification on occupation grounds of men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, who are to register Thursday.

The boards may determine that other industries are necessary, but in granting deferred classification, they must satisfy themselves that the industry is necessary, and further that the individual registrant is essential to the industry.

These facts were disclosed by Provost Marshal General Crowder's plans for applying a more liberal occupational exemption scheme in classifying the new registrants, which was made yesterday, with the complete text of the amended draft regulations and a supplement to the questionnaire explaining to registrants the sections in which facts relating to their classification should be noted.

The regulations provide that the advisory committee of three to each

district board, one to be named by the department of labor, one by the department of agriculture, and the third by the board itself, may introduce at hearings on deferred classification, the war industries board priorities list, but adds:

"Such lists shall not be regarded as binding upon the district board in its conclusions as to whether or not any particular industry, occupation or employment, including agriculture, is a necessary industry, occupation or employment within the meaning of the law and regulations, nor shall such lists prevent the district board from holding as necessary any industry, occupation or employment, including agriculture, not contained therein. Such preference lists and other facts and information in the possession of such advisers will supplement the information in possession of the district boards, and will also be used to assist the district boards in dealing with specific cases."

Detailing the method boards are to follow, the regulations say a registrant shall be considered entitled to exemption only when "completely engaged" in an occupation the boards class as essential; when his removal would result in substantial damage to the enterprise; and when "the available supply of persons competent in the capacity is such that the registrant cannot be replaced without direct, substantial, material loss and detriment to the effective operation of the enterprise."

New Boilers

believed that the work can be completed within a month.

It was also voted to transfer the little plot of land at the junction of Nesmith and Rogers street which belongs to the city from the department of public property to the park department. It is planned to improve the appearance of the land.

Meeting in Detail

The meeting was called at 10.13. Commissioners Morse and Warnock were absent.

The petitions of J. E. Conant & Co. to store gasoline at 332 Central street, and that of Mary E. Renaud for gasoline at Marshall and Grand streets, were held over for a hearing Oct. 1.

Mayor Thompson then announced the lowest bidders for the installation of new boilers in the basement of city hall and said that Commissioner Warnock had drawn up contracts as he had been previously instructed. The Scannell boiler works was awarded the contract for two 72-inch boilers. A complete set of castings, fittings, etc., will be provided and the boilers will be delivered in the rear of city hall.

Farrell & Conant were awarded the contract for steam fitting work, taking down old pipes and putting up all new pipes. The cost will be $3795.

D. H. Walker was awarded the contract for taking down the old brick work surrounding the old boilers, getting the new boilers in the cellar, removing the old ones and repairing whatever damage may be done. The cost will be $2985.

Old Bartlett School

Commissioner Warnock was granted permission to call for bids for the selling and tearing down of the old Bartlett school which was recently burned. The land is to remain the property of the city.

It was voted to transfer the plot of land at Nesmith and Rogers street from the department of public property to the park department. The mayor explained that at present the land is ill-kept and is more or less of a dumping ground. Supt. Kernan of the park department said that inasmuch as his department had men employed at Fort Hill park which is near the land in question, it would be an easy matter to have them keep it in condition.

Upon recommendation of the city solicitor and after investigation by the mayor, it was voted to pay the sum of $100 to Thomas G. Beekford of Chelmsford for personal injuries sustained Sept. 13, 1916, when he tripped over railroad ties in Chelmsford street as he was about to board a car. The ties were placed there by the city and it is claimed that there were no lights near them.

An order introduced by Commissioner Donnelly calling a meeting of voters for primaries Sept. 24, for the purpose of nominating state officials was passed. The polls are to be open from noon until 9 p. m.

The petition of John Palos to store gasoline at 5 and 7 Sargent street was not granted and on recommendation of Commissioner Brown, was he was given leave to withdraw.

The report of Commissioner Morse on the petition of Max L. Caritz that a sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Highland avenue was accepted and the accompanying order adopted.

Reports from Commissioner Brown on the following petitions for garage or gasoline licenses were accepted and the licenses granted: Thompson Hardware Co., Clapp Stable & Garage Co., 500 Middlesex street; Louis Poissant, 133 Dalton street; William H. Saunders, 139 Methuen street; Alphonse Bibault, 21 Wilder avenue; Emil C. Pearson, 331 Stevens street; Charles E. Cooke, 248 Pine street.

The claim of Arthur J. Herbert for injuries sustained by his son, Arthur J. Herbert, at the Lincoln school playground Aug. 13, was referred to the law department.

Upon recommendation of Commissioner Brown, the petition of Green & Silverblatt for garage and gasoline at 756 Westford street was given leave to withdraw.

The petition of Arthur Phornari of 58 Seife street for garage which had previously been given leave to withdraw, was brought up again and granted. A mistake in the address was the cause of the original petition being given leave to withdraw. Adjourned at 10.45 until next Tuesday at 10 a. m.

SEVEN ARRESTED AT THE DEBS TRIAL

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10.—The speed with which a jury was selected and the arrest of seven persons in the court room for applauding the peroration of Seymour Stedman, attorney for the defense, were features of the opening of the trial of Eugene V. Debs yesterday on five counts of an indictment charging violation of the espionage act.

Rose Pastor Stokes was among those who admitted applauding, and was arrested on orders from the bench by Judge D. C. Westenhaver. The others were M. S. Bastia, Max Slopoun, Margaret Prevey of Akron, O., who is on Debs' bond, Frank Wells, Edgar Delaney and J. J. Fried.

The offenders apparently were carried off their feet by the eloquence of Stedman's opening, which in all occupied only 30 minutes.

Judge Westenhaver, however, exceedingly wroth, saw in it only a deliberate contempt of court, remarking that in all his experience he had never known so flagrant a case. Later he said that perhaps he had been unduly vexed, but even then only allowed the culprits their liberty on their personal recognizance instead of on bail. He ordered them to appear before him a half hour in advance of the resumption of the trial.

F. E. Kavanaugh, for the prosecution, observed in his opening that the jury should judge Debs "by his works."

Stedman accepted the def., saying: "The defense accepts the challenge. You shall know him by his works—by the works of his whole life." He sat down amid applause.

The judge was a full minute in grasping the incident. Then, recovering, he addressed the bailiff in a voice that quivered with anger: "Bring that man in the brown coat standing to the left of the doorway to the bench. Bring any others that you saw clapping their hands."

In a moment the seven were before the bar, among them Mrs. Stokes, the factory girl who became the wife of the millionaire socialist of New York, J. G. Phelps Stokes. She answered quietly when questioned: "Yes, I applauded." The others made various excuses.

Stedman and W. K. Cunneen argued earnestly against holding the culprits. It took only 2 hours and 15 minutes to obtain a jury, all old men and mostly men of property. Mr. Stedman said he was not the kind of jury he would have chosen, but the judge's instructions admitted of little latitude in challenging for cause. Only two men were dismissed in this manner, both confessing that it would be difficult to dislodge their prejudice against anyone opposing the government, however slightly, in any of its war measures.

In the government opening Debs was said to have held the army, the navy and the uniform up to ridicule and made remarks calculated to promote insubordination and attempted to propagate obstruction to the draft.

The case may go to the jury in a week or 10 days, as two days, it is believed, will suffice for the government witnesses. The first witnesses today will be two stenographers who took down Debs' remarks at Canton.

Seven Persons Fined

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 10.—Judge D. C. Westenhaver administered fines at the opening of the Debs trial today to the seven persons who applauded in court yesterday. Rose Pastor Stokes, Mrs. Margaret Prevey and J. J. Fried were fined $25 and the others $10. Mrs. Stokes and Mrs. Prevey at first insisted they would go to jail as a matter of principle, but friends argued them out of it.

The government then began the introduction of evidence in its attempt to prove that Eugene V. Debs violated the espionage act in a speech at Canton, Ohio, June 16.

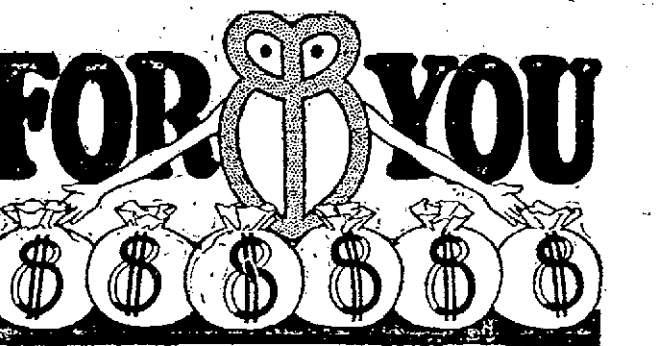

FLIES FROM CHICAGO TO N. Y. IN 8 HOURS

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Max Miller, aerial mail carrier between New York and Chicago, arrived at Belmont park on his flight from Lock Haven, Pa., at 11.22 today. Miller's actual flying time between Chicago and New York was eight hours and two minutes.

SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

Republican leaders are out to elect a majority of their party to the national house and senate in the fall campaign. Their claim is, that the republican party can conduct the war and serve the interests of the country much better than can the democratic party. The republicans lay claim to a monopoly in men of calibre and patriotism, although there is nothing in the action of their officials at Washington to support any such claim. They are still posing as the only genuinely patriotic party on account of their record in the Civil war. Most of the men who figured in the Civil war are now either dead or too old for active duty, but why not take the Spanish-American war which is more recent and the features of which are still fresh in the minds of people throughout this country.

It appears that the Spanish-American war is not put forward by the republicans as offering anything to their credit and for very good reasons. The war was won, it is true, but why should not the United States easily conquer such an impotent foe. It has not been forgotten that severe and well founded criticism was given nation wide publicity during that war. One of the things most notably complained of was the lack of sanitation which caused the death of a great many more soldiers than were killed in battle. The "embalmed beef" episode also showed the character of the policies adopted by the republican administration of that day. There was unquestionable proof of extravagance, of defective ammunition, of scarcity of equipment, want of co-ordination and many other evils discussed in the press at the time.

If the republican administration of that day did not cover itself with glory, why should it be expected to do so now?

So far as the Wilson administration has gone it has a record of wonderful achievement, not only since the war started but before. If the administration had not enacted many reform measures before this nation entered the war, we should never have been able to do what we have done without panics and economic upheavals of the very worst type. Thanks to the federal reserve banking law, the shipping bill which republicans opposed, and other measures of a very important character, the government has been able to command the entire resources of the nation in conducting the war. Starting without any previous preparation the progress made has astonished the world.

When Secretary Baker told the United States senate that he would have half a million men in France early last summer he was laughed at and told that he was trying to lull the country to sleep. But Mr. Baker more than made good his word and before the end of the summer he had three times that number of men in France. He got his army to France in time to meet the Germans at the Marne and to turn the tide of battle which they did in driving the enemy back at Chateau-Thierry. The achievements of the Americans since July 18 have reflected lustre upon the nation they represent and we predict that in the near future the men of the American army will bring even greater glory to themselves and the United States.

During the Spanish-American war there was a cry in favor of supporting the president and the administration. That was a patriotic cry and if applicable then it should certainly be more so in the present case, while we are involved in a war immeasurably greater than our little affair with Spain.

"Support the president" is a campaign slogan that should be given effect in all the congressional elections to take place this fall. President Wilson has proved most worthy of the nation's support and he can be safely entrusted to use the resources of the nation to the best advantage in winning the war, overthrowing the German menace and reasserting our rights upon the high seas which were so flagrantly violated by Germany.

We believe that the people of this nation are thoroughly in accord with President Wilson and that they will uphold his policies and his administration by electing members of congress who will give him their loyal support in conducting the war to a glorious finish. To do anything else, especially to send men to congress who would obstruct and offer aid and comfort to the enemy by unfair criticism, would, in our judgment, serve only to prolong the war, to weaken our efforts and make us ridiculous in the eyes of the world.

MR. McADOO'S VISIT

The flying visit of Secretary McAdoo on Saturday was rather a surprise to the people of New England. He came to get a bird's eye view of the improvements being made on the N.Y., N.H. and Hartford R.R., to inspect the Cape Cod canal and judge of its possibilities and the improvements needed, as well as to give attention to the needs of the Boston and Maine system. His announcement that the government would spend $20,000,000 for the rehabilitation of the B. & M. was welcome news to the people of New England and especially to some cities such as Lowell whose industries have been hampered by excessive freight rates and inadequate terminal facilities.

We are not prepared to state whether

Mr. McAdoo's plan of financing the improvements will be satisfactory to the stockholders, but upon the face of it, it seems to be all that could be expected at this time. In the first place it has been evident for a considerable time that the state measures provided with a view to putting the Boston & Maine upon a prosperous basis were wholly inadequate. That being so, the offer of Mr. McAdoo may well be welcomed as the only available means of getting the road back to something like what it was before it was wrecked financially and perhaps making it a great deal more efficient from a business standpoint.

REVIEW OF THE WAR

In his review of the four years of war, Frank J. Simonds, the well known war correspondent, gives a keen and logical analysis of the military blunders and errors of judgment by which Germany plunged from one disaster to another.

The first battle of the Marne saved civilization from German domination, but after its consequences were fully known to Germany she repeated the blunder with the result that she met with a more crushing defeat in the second battle of the Marne.

The series of events leading up to the second battle of the Marne and in which the German machine was blocked was due to French prowess and French military genius. That is the view of Mr. Simonds and it is one in which the unbiased will cordially agree with him.

In all the major details, according to this critic, the second battle of the Marne repeated the first. German strategy was again based upon German psychological decisions and again the German flank was exposed along the river Ourcq, and again the French counter stroke ruined the German strategy.

"The Germans could understand a machine," says Mr. Simonds, "but not a man and in the final hour the man mastered the machine. That this should have twice happened at the Marne is one of the rarest of all the coincidences of written history."

As to the outcome of the present drive in which the allies maintain the initiative, Mr. Simonds says that while there is no suggestion of the capture of German armies and no prospect of a general rout the German machine seems unable to bring Foch's offensive to a halt and hold it.

But more briefly the situation is thus summed up:

"The German, after his defeat of Aug. 8, hoped to stand on the old Somme line. Two weeks later, after his defeat between Bapaume and Arras he hoped to stand at the Hindenburg line. His defeat this week destroys this hope. His next stand must be at the frontier."

It must be expected that unfavorable weather will interfere with the allied offensive; but in spite of this, it may be assumed that the drive against the enemy will continue and that before the cold weather sets in, the Germans will have been driven from all the principal strongholds yet in their possession in France, while they may also be forced to abandon part of the territory held along the Belgian coast and now utilized for naval bases. Moreover, it is predicted that a drive of large proportions will be made by the Americans under General Pershing. Just what form or direction that will take is uncertain; but with the large army now available and all made up of fresh men eager for the fray, some great achievement is expected of them in the near future.

It is not too much to expect that the Germans will have to defend their own territory before the depth of winter.

VICTORY FLOUR

"Victory Flour" is the title of the flour prepared under the government formula providing for the 20 per cent substitutes for wheat flour. Under the old arrangement, it has been found that some who did not consider the expense, used only wheat flour for bread and hoarded their substitutes. After the war they should have a large assortment of such substitutes; but the food administrators are getting wise to these slackers and for their benefit the Victory Flour has been provided. It is still permissible to buy the wheat flour and substitutes separately and mix them at home; but those who buy the Victory Flour will be saved the trouble of mixing and will never be suspected of cheating the government or the war stricken people whom we have promised to supply with bread.

SAVING GASOLINE

The conservation of gasoline has practically closed the highways of motor traffic on the last two Sundays and those who have been accustomed to horse drawn carriages are looking around to find where such are now available. There is no prohibition upon Sunday drives behind a good old family horse or even a spirited pair such as E. E. Conant and some other prominent citizens used to bring out upon public streets.

Some of the automobile men feel that they are under unfair discrimination in losing their Sunday business while at the same time having to pay heavy taxes with still heavier in prospect. They are willing to comply with any reasonable request but hope that there will be an equitable distribution of burdens in the line of conservation as well as in the matter of taxation.

WAR FATTENED.

The motormen came forward with an argument in their own defense to the effect that by abandoning motor traffic on Sunday, the people will resort to the street railways and the steam railroads, thus making a much greater draft upon the supply of coal, used to produce electricity and steam. There is a point here whose importance it is not easy to determine. It is not likely, however, that the people who have been accustomed to ride in automobiles on Sundays will deny themselves the pleasure of the modes of conveyance on which there is no interdict. These are the various electric lines and railroads. It is possible that in this way the government might lose nearly as much as it gained by putting a stop to Sunday motoring.

THE LUDENDORFF LINE

The Hindenburg line, has been crossed and the next halt for the Germans will be the "Ludendorff line." Where will that be located? Will it be at the frontier or back at the Rhine? Joshua prayed that the sun might stand until he should conquer in battle and so the allies might well pray that summer would last until they conquer the Germans. Seldom in history has an offensive been so long continued as that now in progress by the allies under the direction of General Foch. If the weather holds out long enough the allies may be able to drive the enemy to the Rhine before he can make a successful stand.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is the charitable thing if you "lay off" making any remark intended to be humorous, because one of your friends still wears his straw hat. It's not that he loves a felt hat the less but his $5 bill the more.

Now the question is whether, in the light of registration day coming upon this week Thursday, will some of us due to be tagged by Uncle Sam, if the business of making wills for men will perk up.

It is coolish weather, so to speak, but our foliage is still green and the German's hand of mean, old Jack Frost has not yet descended on the trees and outdoor plants although the thrifty woman, I notice, covers her beloved plants these nights.

What is one man's poison is another man's meat was never probably better exemplified than in the case of the U.S. Cartridge workers getting that 21 per cent increase which recently was granted them and is many weeks retroactive.

You want to remember, and you can take it as advice coming from all who have had experience, that when you ask a Bay State street railroad man the time of arrival or departure of some of the company's cars, his answer, although he may think of it as being so, in reality, is in the nature of a guess.

Packages for Soldiers Abroad

No packages for United States soldiers overseas are accepted except upon an order from an officer of the rank of major or above connected with the particular unit with which the soldier is serving. In order to send a package to your son in France he would have to secure such an order as referred to and have it transmitted to you. The demand for cargo space on United States transports is so great that the government has been obliged to place this restriction on packages for soldiers abroad.

Poem by a Soldier

(Reprinted from Trench and Camp)
If you think you are beaten, you are,
If you think that you dare not, you do not.
If you think you're like to win, but you think you can't,
It's almost a cinch you won't.
If you think you'll lose, you've lost,
For out in the world you find
Success begins with a fellow's will;
It's all in the state of mind.

Full many a race is lost
Ere even a start is run,
And many a coward fails
Ere even his work's begun.
Think big, and your deeds will grow;
Think small, and you'll fall behind.
Think that you can, and you will;
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you're outclassed, you are,
You've got to think high to rise;
before
You can ever win a prize.
Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the fellow who thinks he can.

Remember the Sabbath

Virginia and Eldridge are being brought up to regard the Sabbath as different from other days. Boisterous, everyday games are taboo, and their activities are restricted to their own lawn and garden. Recently, however, their mother yielded to the pleadings of the children of a friend and allowed them to spend a Sunday afternoon away from home.

The friend's children were evidently not hampered by any Sabbatharian restrictions, and when playtime was over two much disheveled but radiant children rushed breathlessly home. Virginia announced as they came up the path:

"O, mother dear, Eldridge and I have had a beautifully sinful time!"—Harper's Weekly.

She Builds Ships

Mrs. G. Underwood of Vancouver, Wash., has two sons in the army. Realizing the nation's great need of ships to supply the soldiers in France, she entered a shipyard and is working there every weekday as a calker.

She is head of a group of five and directs them very efficiently. One day when her four assistants failed to put in an appearance, Mrs. Underwood operated the calking machinery alone and did so well that she almost proved her assistants to be non-essential. Rather than take another chance, they are appearing promptly every day to aid her in the work for the boys abroad.

A Very Old Alibi

Lawyers, bankers and brokers have long laughed and chuckled over the many curious and ingenious excuses given for disclaiming responsibility for notes of hand by those signing them. The excuse that one's signature was obtained through ignorance and by unlawful methods is not in any sense unique, as the following notice published in the Haverhill Gazette of July 11, 1899, proves:

Whereas
My son-in-law, Mr. Peter Whitaker, did on Friday last, obtain from me, in an unlawful and unapproved manner, a Note of Hand, with my mark thereon, for Two Hundred Dollars (as the said note is neither read or written); nor was at that time sound in mind, which he well knew. The said Note was for no value received—I therefore am constrained in this public manner to forewarn all persons from purchasing the said Note, or having anything to do with it, as I am determined never to pay it, or any part thereof.

RUTH S. DUSTEN,

Haverhill, June 17, 1899.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

I know a young woman employed in one of the plants in this city engaged in war orders, whose pay is $30 a week. She works a nine hour day. Her husband is a drafted man at Camp Devens and gets his pay once in three months. Far from giving any of his pay to his wife, he is now dependent upon her for his spending money, no inconsiderable item owing to the fact that he is consuming, at every opportunity, copious quantities of rum.

Probably between now and Thanksgiving or Christmas our government will ship this young woman's husband over to France and if a shell comes toward him with his name and address on it, this young husband will never come back to Massachusetts or to his old boyhood home in a neighboring state. The two children of this couple, two fine, healthy children, now being boarded out with their board paid for entirely by the mother, will not see their daddy again. "It is war," the French say, but to my mind, blame poor satisfaction to dismiss something sad and unfortunate by crediting its inevitableness to the fact that it is a condition of war.

I congratulated the young woman that in a time when there was so much stress in her family, she could earn an excellent salary, as $30 a week as a mechanical worker. "Now," I said, "This war may end as suddenly as it began, in fact there is every reason to suppose it will be so and when it does, blow! Away will go all the $30 a week jobs for women and many of them the men now hold down. Are you selling down any of this money you work so hard to earn now? Can you accumulate a fund against the time when your husband may come back maimed or blind and there will be four persons dependent on just what one little woman like you can earn?"

Here is her answer: "No, I can't save anything even on the $30 a week I earn. It takes all I can earn to support the children and keep my husband in spending money. And, besides, if I am able to save something this fall I have got to get myself some new clothes. In particular I want a nice set of furs and I am going to get them." Ah well, here you are. The eternal feminine. Wars may come into the world and men shall freely give their blood and their lives. But military must have her furs and egads, she will have them if you let her earn money and there are a whole lot of them will exchange faked rabbit skins for munition workers' money. But that is not war. No, that is the eternal feminine for you.

To my mind, the best little story we have had in The Sun for quite some time in connection with what Lowell boys are doing overseas is that letter received from Miss Mary Etta Frazier, printed Saturday. She had been working hard all night in the base hospital, I suppose, waiting on and caring for sick and wounded soldiers. The dawn broke and that part of France stirred to life again, outside the hospital. Probably the Lowell nurse was tired, perhaps homesick and lonesome. Then, as her letter tells her mother, she went to the entrance of the hospital for a breath of fresh morning air and lo and behold, who should she see there, sitting on the doorstep, waiting for the hospital to open its doors, but her brave and sturdy brother, George Frazier, come a visiting her for two days, having obtained a furlough. To my mind even the war correspondents do not send back articles containing more human interest appeal than this letter from the good Lowell nurse.

This morning one of the marble adorned corner lunch rooms here had to serve its breakfast patrons milk or tea, which the English drink with

Its coffee, three big packages of it, is supposed to be on the way here from Bridgeport, headquarters of this chain of restaurants. Presumably the coffee is bought in Bridgeport. Well, the restaurant had no coffee early this morning and many customers went away to some other luncheon because at that early hour the stores where coffee could be bought are not open. This entire paragraph might serve as an object lesson to point out the very old adage that to trade at home is best in the long run. But you can't expect a chain restaurant to do anything as regular as that, though.

RETURNED SOLDIER

Over in France, the soldiers of the United States army are known as the smiling Yanks. They have a wonderful spirit of confidence. They accept the fortunes of war with a gay whistle. They sing as they march forth to battle.

It is the consciousness that back home the volunteers of industry are working at full strength to supply every need that imbues the Americans with the splendid courage that makes victory certain. This is the message brought back by Private Charles C. McGonegal, who for seven months has been at the front, where he saw the hardest kind of service. Private McGonegal, Company B, 18th Infantry, which is known as General Pershing's "own," had a chance to find out just what the industrial army means to the army that bears arms. He was a mechanic before he volunteered from North Dakota, in June, 1917, and so he is fitted to pass judgment on the relation of the two armies.

Sitting on the porch of the workshop of Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., Private McGonegal talked with J. F. Hodgson, first class mechanic at the Washington navy yard. It happened that the two men, who represent combatant and non-combatant service in the war, met at the hospital, because Private McGonegal lost both hands, February 2, when he was on duty at an outpost on the French line of defense. German machine runners made an attack, which was "unlucky," Private McGonegal thinks, for it cut short his service before he had a chance to do more than make a beginning at beating the Huns. But he is still cheerful; he has brought back with him the Yank spirit for which the workers of the country are so largely responsible. And he will soon be able to return to the ranks of the workers—why, he drove a Red Cross ambulance for three weeks before he sailed for home.

"The main idea is that American pluck has put a new slant on the war for the British, French and even the Moroccans," said Private McGonegal. "Those fellows over there have been in the war so long they had begun to think it wasn't ever going to end. Then our troops landed and it all looked different. The thing that made it look so promising was the way we were equipped. We had everything. Our regiments gave them the impression that we had endless stores to draw on and boundless supplies coming right along. Of course, we were proud to have such a welcome as they gave us, but after all it was the workers at home that made us look so good to them. They had been in the war game long enough to know just what labor means to the fighting forces.

"The French soldiers talked a great deal about what the men and women are doing in the shops and factories here in the United States. They had read about volunteers who were working for nothing as regular employees who were taking part-pay and working overtime. Why, those Frenchmen couldn't do enough for us and they would have taken the coats off their backs if any of us had needed them. But we didn't need anything—that was the point. We hadn't thought much about what the hands at the looms, for instance, were doing for us, but the foreign fighters made us realize what we owe to the workers."

Private McGonegal paused to take a lighted cigarette offered by the man from the navy yard, who unconsciously drew his stalwart body to its full height with a sudden access of pride as he said:

"I'm glad to hear you talk that way, for I can tell you the fellow who sticks to his job hasn't an easy time. It takes nerve to stand the gaff when everyone is wondering why you're not in uniform. There doesn't seem to be much glory in just making guns for warships and transports—making guns instead of using them! But from what you say I feel better about it already."

"Why, if you'd been where I've been, you would know you can't lie down on your job for a minute," declared the young soldier. "It seems to me there is something wrong if everyone can't see this as it really is. While every man, woman and child in the United States is doing all that can be done the boys fighting in France can just go on feeling care-free and sure."

Private McGonegal emphasized the "sure" by a stamp of the foot. He is a tall, well-made, good-looking young man with the western freedom of manner. Since that day in February when he fell at the post of duty, he has had plenty of time to think. His

frank face shows that he has formed definite opinions.

"That sounds all right," Hodgson rose and looked out at the soldiers who were limping back and forth between the workshop and the convalescent wards. "But I would be willing to lose a leg if I could have my chance to go to France. I volunteered, of course, but they sent me back to my work."

"That is as it should be and it shows your work must have been an account. What is it?" asked Private McGonegal. Then the mechanic first-class from the navy yard, a man well educated, with the love of his special line of work that proves he has found his right place, explained how he worked in the gun shops—where the men were bending their best energies to produce the most possible in a given time. They all understood that time on some of the gun barrels was worth $100 an hour and that the man who loafed was losing much for the government. Generally, there was no trouble with slackers, although now and then a "greaser" or a "nut-splitter" would try to break in to keep out of the service at the front for which most of the skilled workers were so anxious. Then men in the navy yard, who are not permitted to fight, were saving their money to buy Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. One young fellow in the tool shop had subscribed for $1500 in Liberty Bonds and had paid up the entire amount.

"Making a good gun, it seems to me, measures up to more than one man's usefulness in handling it," commented Private McGonegal. "That's skilled labor of the highest quality."

Mechanic Hodgson agreed that there were delicate operations connected with gun-making when nickel steel was so susceptible to changes of temperature that one degree of change could produce an appreciable expansion, when they measured down to ten-thousandths of an inch.

"When I enlisted I was offered $100 a month and my expenses as an automobile mechanic," said the soldier, and when I volunteered I hoped I might get into the mechanical line or drive a truck, but I was needed in the infantry, even though for entirely too short a time." He smiled. "It is up to the United States to use us men as it seems best and so I have no kick coming."

There was the lesson for the man who had to stick to his job. Private McGonegal, who had given both his hands in the cause of liberty, was satisfied that his country knew best about where he was needed. Mechanic Hodgson saw the point. Not only should the soldier go where he is sent, but the worker should stay where he is of the most use.

"But still I think there should be some way to show that we want to fight," he said. "It isn't right that we should be subjected to insult, or at least misjudgment, because we are not in uniform."

"When a lot more of us return wounded, the public will know where the workers get off," Private McGonegal said. "There's not a man of us on the other side who will not hurrah for labor's part in the war. You ought to see the men who are busy behind the lines. Say, the non-combatants have some dangers to face and some work to do! Right here on this side, too, the boys who are found unfit for foreign service have their chance to be heroes. They are working in munition factories and delivering the goods. Over at American University the other day a boy was making a fuss because he could not go over on account of physical disability, but he was filling gas shells and I think he was about as useful as he would be in the trenches."

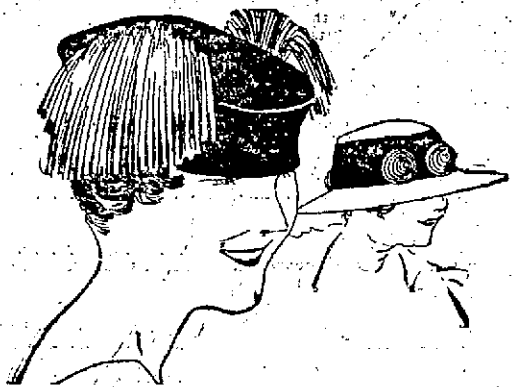

It was time for mess. The convalescents, who were learning new vocations, left the shop, hastening as rapidly as was possible for men who had returned from war, because they had done their parts on the battlefields. Some of them whistled. The Yank spirit still ruled them. They had come back to work, to join the industrial army at home and the message they all brought was Private McGonegal's message—that upon the workers the soldiers rely with an abiding confidence. It is the stroke of hammer and whirr of machinery that play the necessary accompaniment to the songs the boys sing as they go forth to victory.

If Germany is boycotted after the war it will not be the first country so treated. In 1908 the British boycotted Bolivia. The then president of the South American republic ill-treated the British minister by trying him on a mule, free to tail and parading him around the capital. For this offense official England blotted Bolivia off the map and for 35 years it remained ostracized. From a commercial point of view Bolivia was almost ruined.

CONLEY SOME LIAR,
NO DIAMOND THIEF

It was learned today that the grand jury at its recent session in this city found a no bill in the case of Fred Conley, who had been connected with the diamond theft at the restaurant of the D. L. Page Co. in this city a couple of months ago, despite the fact that Conley had confessed to the police that he had stolen the diamonds and had disposed of a part of them in Albany.

It will be remembered that the diamonds were stolen from Page's restaurant in broad daylight, while the salesman in charge of the precious stones was partaking of his dinner. Shortly after the theft, Conley wrote a letter to Supt. Welch, stating that he had the diamonds and that they might get him but they would never recover the goods.

Conley was later arrested in Boston on another charge and confessed to the larceny of the diamonds, but after conducting an investigation the district attorney came to the conclusion that Conley had nothing to do with the theft of the diamonds. Conley who is wanted in Syracuse, N. Y., on a charge of breaking and entering, was sent to that city.

Dr. Naughton making an X-ray examination with the improved Skinscope as an aid to diagnosis. This and other wonderful methods of examination are free to all who call on him at the New American Hotel, One Day Only, Wed., Sept. 11—Hours, 10 a. m. to 7 p. m.

FREE for THIS VISIT

To all who call on him at the New American Hotel, Wed., Sept. 11, Dr. Naughton will give his Consultation, Remarkable Diagnosis of Disease, Wonderful "X-Ray" Examinations, all medical services, surgical and office treatment, Absolutely Free of Charge.

Never before has such an opportunity been given the sick of this vicinity, and if you are suffering, you should not fail to take advantage of it. Those wishing to see him should remember the Days, Dates and Office Hours of his visits and call early to avoid the crowded last hour.

For nearly 15 years I have been studying the Chemistry of food and Chemistry of the human body. I have put these two sciences together and formulated the science of Applied Food Chemistry. By the application of this knowledge I cure all forms of stomach and intestinal diseases, and all other disorders that result from wrong eating and drinking. This method cannot fail because it conforms to the laws of Nature.

It is estimated that ninety-two per cent. of all diseases is caused by errors in eating. These errors are made by wrong selections, wrong combinations, and wrong proportions of food. I teach you how to correct these, how to select, how to combine and how to proportion your food according to your age and your occupation. This cures by removing causes. It gives Nature a chance. This is the true science of human nutrition, and it is governed by laws as infallible as the laws of gravitation. If you obey them you cannot be sick. If you do not obey them you cannot be well.

You have no idea what your body is capable of, until you have it perfectly nourished. You have no idea what your mind is capable of, until it lives in a perfectly nourished body.

You have no idea of the joy of living until every bone, tissue, muscle and organ of the body is brought up to 100% efficiency, which my system does. If you are sick or have any kind of stomach or intestinal trouble it will require a short term of curative feeding—then I balance the diet so as to give to the body all the elements of nourishment it requires according to your age and your occupation. If medicine is needed in any case I prescribe only such remedies that do not conflict with the proper diet. I get results and this ends all argument.

Dr. Naughton will positively be at the New American Hotel, Wednesday, Sept. 11th, 1918, from 10.00 o'clock in the morning until 7.00 o'clock in the evening, to consult with and examine all cases personally.

WIRE DESPATCHES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Reports received by the war council of the American Red Cross disclose that during June the American Red Cross in France distributed 30,000 magazines and 600,000 newspapers in the 150 units of the American army in France and among the hospitals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Information reached here today from a source usually reliable, that Turkey had sent a large force to the border of Bulgaria, where trouble is brewing over division of territorial spoils of war between these two allies of Germany and Austria-Hungary.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 10.—An exchange of views between the central powers and the entente was tentatively suggested by Baron Burián, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, in an address to visiting German newspapermen, according to a Vienna despatch today.

MEN IN DRAFT, JOY RIDE TO LOWELL

Through the kindness of their employer, 13 Lowell men, who are employed in a saw mill in the woods 15 miles from Keene, N. H., came to Lowell this morning to register for the draft, which takes in all the male residents of this country between the ages of 18 and 45 inclusive.

Registration day of course has been set for next Thursday, Sept. 12, but inasmuch as the saw mill was shut down for today, the owner devised a scheme by which his employees would get ahead of other registrants and would have their names inscribed on the records of the government a couple of days ahead of the date set for such action.

It seems that there was a breakdown at the mill late yesterday afternoon and the smashup was so such as to extent that the plant would have to be closed all day today. The owner of the mill, who is a patriot, called his Lowell employees, who are within the draft age, last night and submitted to them a proposition by which they would come to Lowell and register at his expense. He arranged to have two large touring automobiles convey the 13 Lowell men to this city and they all agreed to the scheme.

Early this morning the automobiles were in readiness and the trip covering a distance of between 85 and 90 miles was undertaken and the 13 men arrived safely in Lowell shortly before 10 o'clock. Upon reaching this city they all repaired to the office of Representative Henry Achin, who cheerfully informed each member of the party as to where he was to register.

The men were later taken to quarters of the exemption boards of their respective districts and an hour later the names of 11 men from the woods of New Hampshire had been inscribed on the roll of the government and each man had in his possession his registration card. At noon the party were entertained at luncheon at the expense of the employer and early in the afternoon the trip to the New Hampshire town was undertaken.

One of the registrants was seen at city hall by a Sun reporter shortly before noon and he volunteered that his "boss" was second to none in this country. "He is a great man to work for," he continued, "and a true patriot, and if such men as he had control of the help there would not be so much labor trouble in this country while the war is on."

SEVIGNY BLAMELESS IN CHILD'S DEATH

Arthur L. Sevigny of this city, was arraigned before Judge Enright at this morning's session of the police court on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mary E. Brown, which occurred Aug. 3, after the child was struck and run over by an automobile operated by Sevigny. The case was dismissed after the court was informed that the finding in the inquest, which was held before Judge Pickman, was to the effect that the death of the child was not caused through criminal negligence on the part of the automobile driver.

The accident occurred in Merrimack street in front of the Bon Marche on Saturday evening, August 3, and according to testimony offered at the inquest, the Brown girl left the sidewalk and ran right into the path of the oncoming automobile, which was being operated by Sevigny, and received injuries that soon afterwards resulted in her death.

Judge Pickman's finding closes with the following paragraph: "I find that on Saturday, the third of August last, about half past seven o'clock in the evening, that an automobile being operated by said Arthur Sevigny on Merrimack street in said Lowell, ran into said Mary E. Brown, who was crossing said Merrimack street in front of said automobile and ran over her whereby she received injuries that soon afterwards caused her death. I find that the death of said Mary E. Brown was not caused or contributed to by the criminal negligence of said Arthur Sevigny, the operator of said automobile, or by the criminal negligence of any other person or persons."

HADEN HURTS HAND
Frank Haden of 59 South street and employed at the Hamilton Mfg. Co. had his right hand caught in a picker machine while at his work shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon and the member was badly mangled. The ambulance was called and the injured man was removed to the Lowell Corporation hospital.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Selling stocks was actively resumed today. Increased credit restrictions provoking further liquidation and bear pressure. On individual offerings ranging from 100 to 7500 shares, U. S. Steel reacted a point to 169 3/4. Declines of 1 to 2 points marked the early course of related industrials and equipments, also shipbuilding and speculative specialties. Losses among standard rails also approximated a point, some of these being retrieved before the end of the first half hour.

Liquidation in heavy volume continued during the first hour with U. S. Steel the overshadowing feature at an extreme decline of 1 1/2. Other industrials extended their initial losses, the setback also becoming more general among rails, where extreme losses of 1 to 2 1/2 points ruled. Coppers, oils, sugars, tobaccos and the usual minor specialties figured in the reversal. Selling abated before noon, supporting orders causing rallies of substantial fractions to a point. Bonds were not materially affected by the unsettlement of the stock list.

Aside from belated liquidation of such specialties as papers and utilities at 1 to 2 point reactions, selling seemed to expend itself in the afternoon. Recoveries among leaders were well maintained, dullness ensuing on the rally.

Railroads extending to full recoveries in U. S. Steel, Coppers and some of the rails and high priced specialties, marked the later dealings. The close was irregular.

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Most of the leading issues showed a sharp fractional decline during the early trading on the Boston market today. The money situation, particularly the requirement that loans be reported daily, was the chief cause.

The many friends of Patrolman George S. Abbott will be grieved to learn of his death, which occurred last evening at the Blanchard hospital in Dracut after a lingering illness. He was 18 years of age and was regarded as one of the best police officers of this city. PATROLMAN GEORGE S. ABBOTT

As an officer he was popular with his associates and fellow officers and his superiors found him a careful and dutiful servant in the exercise of his official work, and on several occasions he was commended for efficient work. Chief of Police Redmond Welch, commenting on the death of Patrolman Abbott this morning said he was a very efficient and capable officer. He said he was a steady worker and took great pains in the performance of his duties. He was lenient in some cases and always used the best of judgment in making arrests, and his death will be a great loss to the department.

Mr. Abbott for a great many years and up to the time of his illness several months ago, covered the upper Merrimack street route, where he made a host of friends, for he was of a genial disposition and kind to everybody. He was very fond of children and it was a common occurrence to see Patrolman Abbott patrolling his beat accompanied by two or three youngsters. For several years he made his home in Moody street, Pawtucketville. He was a member of the Lowell Police Relief association.

TO STOP SPREAD OF DISEASE IN NAVY

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Naval officials said today that 1109 cases of grip had been reported among the men of the first naval district since August 28. Thirty-six of these cases developed into pneumonia and 20 men died. Every effort was being made by naval physicians the officials said, to stop the spread of the disease and the measures were apparently meeting with success.

The first appearance of the malady was at Commonwealth pier naval station, on August 28. Since then 500 cases have been reported there. The men were at first removed to the naval hospital at Chelsea, but that institution became so crowded that outside hospitals were called upon to aid in the treatment.

Today the naval radio school at Cambridge was placed under quarantine as a precautionary measure and all instruction was suspended. Commanding Officer Nathaniel F. Ayer said a number of the men had heavy colds, which had been expected with the first change in temperature from summer to fall weather.

Reports that the disease prevalent among the men was Spanish influenza was denied at the headquarters of the first naval district.

TIBBETS BOYS FIGHT

Mrs. Mary Tibbets' Two Sons in France Honor Memory of Seven Brave Uncles

Philip P. Tibbets, son of Mrs. Mary E. Tibbets of 25 Sawtelle place, has sent word to his mother from France that he has sustained gunshot wounds in his left thigh and is at present a patient in a hospital in France, called the South African hospital.

Tibbets has been attached to the 72d Battalion, Canadian army. He joined the Canadian army, June 15, 1917. He is now 24 years old and when he was about 18 years old served a three-year enlistment in the U. S. navy. His reason for joining the Canadian army instead of the U. S. forces, was probably due in some part to the fact that his mother is a Canadian woman, although Philip was born and reared here in Lowell.

PHILIP P. TIBBETS

Mrs. Tibbets has also received a letter from her son, Herbert W. Tibbets, a Lowell boy, who at the present time is in the U. S. navy, attached to the U. S. S. steamship Von Steuben, an army transport. He wrote from New York and said his vessel was busy going back and forth to Europe and had had wonderfully good luck so far. Herbert W. Tibbets is a man 20 years old and has a wife and two children living at 25 Sawtelle place. He served three years with the U. S. army in the Philippines and three years with the army at different posts in this country.

These two sons of Mrs. Tibbets come of sturdy old fighting stock for Mrs. Tibbets tells The Sun that seven uncles of these boys lost their lives in the Civil war and all seven served under Gen. B. F. Butler.

RETAILERS GET NEW FLOUR RULES

Edward Fisher, assistant food administrator of Middlesex county, today gave out the following statement in regard to changes in flour rules as relating to sales by retailers. The new regulations are effective as of Sept. 1:

"Retailers who sell wheat flour must keep on hand at all times, the following substitutes: Corn meal, corn flour, barley flour, pure rye flour.

"If the customers prefer, the retailer may sell the following substitutes: Rice flour, oat flour, potato flour, buckwheat flour, kaffir flour, milo flour, ferret flour and meal, peanut flour, bean flour and sweet potato flour.

"No breakfast cereals are now substitutes.

Proportion of Substitutes
The proportion has been changed from 50-50 to 80-20, that is, householders may now buy on the basis of four pounds of wheat flour to one pound of substitutes instead of equal amounts as formerly, except in the case of rye flour, in this latter case with every three pounds of wheat flour there must be purchased two pounds of rye flour.

REPORT U-BOAT SUNK IN BATTLE OFF COAST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—What apparently is a reliable report that an American tank steamship has sunk a German submarine in a fight off the Atlantic coast reached the navy department today and is being investigated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The claim that their gun crew sank a German submarine of large type 400 miles off Sandy Hook on Sunday morning was made by the captain and crew of an American oil tank ship which arrived here today. The U-boat, according to the mariners, was blown to pieces by a shell which landed squarely on its hull.

The submersible at first mistaken in the half light of early morning for an American tanker, was sighted by the American ship's lookout. It was reported. A moment later, however, its real identity was disclosed and the tank ship, going to the attack at full speed, opened up on the German with 47 inch shells. The German closed in and a 40-minute battle followed in which the American skipper, maneuvering his vessel so as to bring his six-inch stern gun to bear on the U-boat, finally scored the direct hit which finished the enemy. Bodies of the U-boat's crew were seen, according to those on the tanker.

RIOTS IN VIENNA

Advance of Allies Makes Profound Impression on Austria-Hungary

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The continued advance of the entente allies on the battlefield in France, is making a profound impression on Austria-Hungary, says a Zurich despatch to the Evening Star. The recent departures of Austrian troops from Vienna caused riotous scenes in the Austrian capital.

Thousands of angry women, the despatch says, raided the railway stations protesting against the departure of the men.

SPANISH INFLUENZA IS NOT HERE YET

Although a number of cases of Spanish influenza have been reported in various towns and cities about Lowell, the local board of health has not yet had such a case reported and the city, so far, is happily immune. As far as is known, there are no unusual cases of gripe, of which the new disease is evidently a ramification, and there seems little chance of influenza spreading here.

The Harvard Radio school in Cambridge has been quarantined because of the disease and the thousands of men stationed at the naval station will not be allowed to come to Boston because of its prevalence in that section.

Spanish influenza is thought to be merely a new name for a stiff case of what is commonly known as the gripe. It is contagious and easily spread.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN MAINE ELECTION

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 10.—The republicans won a complete victory in the biennial state election in this state yesterday. The completeness of it became more and more apparent early today as returns from isolated communities came to hand. United States Senator Bert M. Fernald, Congressman Louis E. Goodall, Wallace H. White, Jr., John A. Paters and Ira G. Hersey, and Governor Carl E. Milliken, all were re-elected over their democratic opponents by substantial pluralities and in addition the republicans made notable gains in both branches of the legislature and among the sheriffs and county attorneys. The vote for Senator Fernald was even larger than many of his supporters had hoped for and while Governor Milliken ran several thousand behind Fernald and had a plurality considerably reduced from that of two years ago, the stamp of

Grapevine Telegraph of Civil War Days Has Found Its Counterpart in Belgium

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The grapevine telegraph of Civil war days seems to have found its counterpart in Belgium, where through mysterious agencies, the people obtain news from the battlefield even before it reaches German officials, who use the most severe repressive measures to prevent the truth being known.

An official report received here shows that the people of Brussels learned in three days of important events on the French front and from that point the news spreads among the provincial towns with marvelous speed. The allied victories caused great joy through occupied Belgium and the German troops there are disconcerted over the prospect of another winter campaign.

ALLOTMENTS

Dependents of Soldiers to Receive Allowance Until Men Officially Reported Dead

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Dependents of soldiers reported missing in action will continue to receive government remittances for allotments and allowance but until the men are officially reported dead, no payments of voluntary insurance on government compensation will be made. So far the war department has not certified any of the missing, which include prisoners taken by the enemy and those killed whose bodies are not recovered, as to be considered dead.

If the mother, father, or other dependent of a wounded or slain soldier lives in Germany, Austria, Turkey or Bulgaria, payment is made to the alien property custodian, to be held until the end of the war, when it will be forwarded.

BOLSHEVIKI IGNORANT OF IDENTITY OF OPPONENTS

ARCHANGEL, Thursday, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press).—Many Bolsheviks engaged against the allies in the north are ignorant as to the identity of forces they are fighting, according to an American official who has returned from the front. Some of the captured Bolsheviks declared their commanders claimed that the allies dressed in the uniforms of the allied powers, were only Russian White Guards masquerading. Another prisoner thought he was fighting against the Germans.

At one place the Bolsheviks sent a force of mere boys, 14 to 15 years old to the front under threat of death, unless they fought against the Russo-allied forces.

Fugitives arriving from Vologda after a lengthy, round-about journey brought reports that a reign of terror had been instituted by the Bolsheviks in Vologda and that many persons of the bourgeoisie class were being executed daily. There is no confirmation of this, however.

Private Thomas G. Quinn of the Westworth Institute, Boston, spent Saturday and Sunday with his mother Mrs. Mary E. Quinn of 165 Branch street.

Mrs. M. D. Callahan of Pleasant street and her little granddaughter have returned from Salisbury beach.

U. S. SOLDIERS ARE FOND OF PICKLES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The soldier's fondness for pickles was made known today by the war department, which announced that while 230,000 gallons were required for shipment overseas, it had received bids of less than 100,000. There is a shortage in the sizes specified and to meet this, large pickles will be bought, pending delivery of the new crop.

Because of the vinegar shortage, the quartermaster's corps is studying the advisability of using vinegar made from watermelons, the cost of which is less than the elder brand.

WILLIAM MEEHAN'S FRIENDS GIVE PARTY IN HONOR OF HIS LEAVING FOR ARMY

A farewell party was held last Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Mary Toye, 7 Pike street, in honor of William F. Meehan who left the next day for Camp Upton, Long Island. During the evening Mr. Meehan was presented a wrist watch and a purse of money. The presentation speech was made by Thomas Conley. Mr. Meehan made a fitting reply.

There was a general good time at the party with musical selections by Miss Claire Sammy, Mary Toye and Fred Wright of Dover, N. H. and Joseph Bassett. At the end of the party all the guests sang the national anthem and shook hands with the guest of honor, wishing him the best of luck.

ANNIVERSARY MASS

An anniversary mass will be sung at St. Patrick's church at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning for the repose of the soul of Mrs. William Walsh.

O.M.I. CADETS' MEETING

There will be an important meeting of the O.M.I. Cadets tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Sullivan will appoint a successor to Maj. Boyd, who resigned from the Cadets to enter the Holy Angels' college in Buffalo, and it is expected that several changes will be made in the roster of the organization. All members are urged to be present. There will be an officers' meeting after the regular meeting.

NAME CORRECTION

Through an unintentional error, the account of the funeral of Mrs. Bridget D. Eldredge, which appeared in yesterday's editions had Mrs. Eldredge's name spelled "Edgerly." Eldredge was the correct name.

WILSON PEACE PROGRAM

Head of Hungarian Party Endorses President's Plan as Basis for Negotiation

BASEL, Monday, Sept. 9.—President Wilson's program as a basis for the negotiations for peace, is endorsed by Count Michael Karolyi, president of the Hungarian independent party. A despatch from Budapest, quoting from an open letter written by him to his electors to whom he recommends an early peace, says:

"A decisive military victory, despite its successes, is a dream for which it is useless to pursue. The prime condition of peace negotiations is the democratization of nations and the abandonment of imperialist theories. A second condition is that we should not become slaves to the idea of a middle Europe, either military economically or politically, and that we should not strengthen our alliance with Germany which would form the first step towards the realization of this central Europe."

SHEA AND REDDY ARE TRAINING FOR BOUT

Tommy Shea of New Haven and Battling Reddy of Brooklyn are training hard for their 12-round bout at the Crescent A.A. on Friday night, and both promise to be in the best of condition when the bell rings for the opening round. Shea and Reddy are fine boxers, and each is qualified to deliver a sleep-producer at any moment. Shea is extremely popular all over New England, while Reddy's popularity extends throughout the United States. Reddy has tackled all the good ones, and among his victims is Frankie Britt, the speed merchant from New Bedford. Reddy has two decisions over Britt to his credit, which is some little accomplishment.

Three other good bouts will also be on the card.

Billy Woods of Manchester, who appeared at the local club recently, added another victory to his list at Boston the other night, when he won the decision from Young Strona in a 10-round bout.

Those desiring to attend the next meeting of the C.A.A., who are not on the membership rolls may do so by applying for application blanks at the club quarters on Hurd street before Thursday night.

YOUNG MONTREAL WINS FROM OWENS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Young Montreal of Providence defeated Paddy Owens of Cambridge in a 12-round bout at the re-opening of the Trinity A. C., East Cambridge, last night. There was a good crowd on hand and they were treated to one of the best fights between bantamweights decided in this part of the country in many a day.

Tony Vathan, substituting for Young Strona against Dummy Burns, defeated the latter in 10 rounds. Charley Parker aided Johnny Gray to his list of victims, defeating the Chelsea lightweight in a hard-fought eight-round bout. Joe Sousa got as far as the third round with Young Marks, who was altogether too fast and hit too hard for Sousa.

Montreal recently saw the first Chinaman appointed a commissioner of the superior court. Song Poo's petition to Justice Toiler for this privilege being granted him. Song Poo therefore has power now to administer oaths.

WAR TIME PROHIBITION

House Committee Favors
Bill to Make Prohibition
Effective July 1, 1919

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—War time prohibition moved a step nearer today when the house agricultural committee decided to report favorably the food production bill including the amendment added by the senate making prohibition effective July 1, 1919.

BAKER AND CLEMENCEAU
CONFER IN PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Newton D. Baker, the American secretary of war, today had a conference with Premier Clemenceau, Andre Tardieu, the French high commissioner to America and Ambassador Sharp.

Linker at Pershing's Home
PARIS, Sept. 10.—Newton D. Baker, American secretary of war, today arrived in Paris. The secretary was conducted to the city home of Gen. John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, where he will remain and hold conferences during the next few days.

It is expected his visit will permit conferences between the American and allied officials. He will visit American headquarters and the principal centers of American activities.

FEELING IS STRONG AGAINST
CONTROLLED TERRITORY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Consul General Poole at Moscow in a belated despatch received at the state department today, says he sent his staff and American civilians there out of Russia because feeling is strong in Bolshevick-controlled territory against Americans, threatening them with "dangerous reprisals" which might embarrass allied military commanders operating in Russia.

The message was dated Aug. 26, the day the special train left Moscow carrying the Americans and allied civilians and officials who arrived at Stockholm last Saturday.

PLAN FOOTBALL GAMES

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—A. A. Stagg, University of Chicago football coach, announced today that while assurance had not been given by the war department that football would be permitted, as every college student of draft age would be under the war department's jurisdiction, the "Big Ten" conference directors were going forward with their plans (though they are counting on shorter practice sessions than in former years. Practice will begin next Monday).

ARE YOU
DO YOU
Gasp For Breath?

Our specialty is treating deafness and head noises and asthma, treating clogged nostrils and healing sore places in the breathing tubes. We have devoted twenty-eight years to the treatment of this class of ailments and now by the discoveries made by us we are able to treat deafness and head noises without using instruments in the ear tubes.

THE NEW SYSTEM
Of Deafness and Bronchial Treatment by Electricity

8 Visits For $5

If you suffer with clogged nostrils discharging mucus, are going deaf, ears, or have a bad throat or bad stomach, or gasp for breath and suffer from those other distressing symptoms of asthma, we will be pleased to have you call at our office. It will cost you nothing for an examination, and if you begin treatment this month you will receive eight complete office treatments for $5.00. This includes all diseases of a catarrhal nature, whether the disease be in the eyes, ears, nose, throat, bronchial tubes, or stomach.

POWER PLANT FIRE STOP
TRAFFIC

The only available big generator at the power house of the Bay State Street Railway Co. in Middlesex street, was badly damaged by fire last evening and as a result street car traffic throughout the city was suspended between the hours of 7 and 8. Later through the courtesy of the Lowell Electric Light Corp., which connected its current to the wires of the Bay State, traffic was resumed and the street cars will operate by using the "juice" of the Electric Light Corp. until the generator is repaired.

POLICE COURT DOES
QUICK WORK TODAY

Judge Enright quickly disposed of the few cases that were brought to his attention at this morning's session of the police court. Jeremiah Linnehan for drunkenness was fined $10, while Maurice Spillane who takes pleasure in disturbing the neighbors when he is under the influence of liquor, was given a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction. Joseph Baron, who imbibed a little too freely yesterday, was sent to the common jail to recuperate during the next three months.

Joseph Tessier pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping an unlicensed dog and was fined $5. William C. Smith, who was charged with drunkenness and larceny of a pipe and some money from a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction. Joseph Baron, who imbibed a little too freely yesterday, was sent to the common jail to recuperate during the next three months.

AUTO TURNS OVER

Arthur Hamel Injured Steering From Falling Tree

Arthur Hamel of this city, who operates a Ford truck, was injured in the hips and back this morning when his car turned turtle in Chelmsford St. The young man was operating his car through Chelmsford street at about 7:45 o'clock and when he reached a point near the hospital, where the employees of the park department were cutting down a tree, he feared the tree would fall on his car and he swung to the right into the gutter, his car turning turtle.

The ambulance was called and Hamel was removed to St. John's hospital. The automobile was damaged slightly.

HUNS FEAR NEGROES IN AMERICAN ARMY

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Sept. 9 (By the Associated Press).—The enemy heavily shelled towns in the Woeyre sector behind our lines this morning. One of his patrols attacked the American outposts, but was easily driven off.

There was considerable patrol activity in the Vosges district last night. One encounter took place, the enemy retiring with one wounded man. Colored troops have occupied Vosges villages. Frenchmen on coming through to the American lines declared that the Germans were considerably excited at finding themselves opposed by negroes, of whom they are said to be afraid because of reports that the American colored troops cut off the ears of their prisoners. The negro soldiers in this sector had an example of German treachery when a German patrol attacked after shouting "Kamerad." They are now thoroughly determined to have their revenge.

TRANSPORT MT. VERNON
CARRIED WOUNDED

PARIS, Sunday, Sept. 10.—The American transport Mt. Vernon, formerly the German steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which though torpedoed by a German submarine last Thursday off the coast of France, was able to make port, was carrying wounded and sick soldiers back to the United States.

Senator James H. Lewis of Chicago, Ill., who was among the passengers, all of whom were saved, is suffering from a chill resulting from exposure while carrying wounded men from their bunks. Thirty-five engine room hands lost their lives when the torpedo struck the vessel.

Congressman Thomas D. Schall and Attorney John D. Cross of Providence were among those on board. Mrs. Schall, the wife of the blind representative of Minnesota, led her husband up on deck and across the ship to their lifeboat. Both were calm and acted as though they were in no peril.

The officers and crew of the Mt. Vernon showed perfect discipline and efficiency. Most of the seamen were young, and for many it was their first trip, but they acted like old hands. In short space of time they had all the bulkheads closed and the steamcocks shut off. Sometimes they were compelled to swim through rising water in order to get at the valves.

CONSIDER LA FOLLETTE CASE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Senator Pomeroy of Ohio announced today that a meeting of the senate elections committee will be held next Thursday to consider the case of the alleged disloyal speech delivered by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin in St. Paul last September. Sentiment in the senate favors disposition of the case without further delay.

REVENUE BILL
Debate on Huge War Tax
Measure Resumed in the House Today

Cong. Longworth Sounds
Warning—Wealth to Be
Taxed to Straining Point

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Wealth would be taxed to about the straining point by the new war revenue bill, Representative Longworth of Ohio declared in the house today when debate on the huge tax measure was resumed. He warned his hearers that any additional taxes levied hereafter must be borne by people purchasing articles of daily necessity and said that as the cost of the war mounted a greater proportion of it must be borne by future generations.

Pointing out that congress was about to exact from the American people a sum which would have more than paid the entire cost of the Civil war, both to the Union and the Confederacy, he said the tax of 50 per cent. on war profits and the maxima of 70 per cent. on excess profits and 77 per cent. on incomes, were "mighty near the danger mark."

"Just as surely as you impose a tax which amounts to plunder," he said, "just so surely do you overshoot the mark and render difficult if not impossible the financing necessary to effectively prosecute the war."

Most of the coming issue of Liberty bonds, he said, would be purchased by individuals and their purchasing power would be affected directly by the taxes on their incomes.

Big Loss By Ban on Making Beer

Containing that the president's order stopping the manufacture of beer after next December 1, would cause a loss of $500,000,000 in revenue under the new war tax bill, Mr. Longworth said congress might be forced to impose consumption taxes sooner than had been expected. In that connection he suggested a tax of seven cents a pound on coffee, 25 cents on tea, 10 per cent. on rubber, 20 per cent. on wool, 15 per cent. on hides and one cent on sugar. He estimated these would yield $240,000,000 annually.

He warned that the proposed wartime national prohibition legislation would reduce the estimated revenue returns from beverages by $1,500,000,000 which with the lost revenue on beer on Dec. 1, until the national prohibition measure became effective, would reduce the estimated revenue under the bill to $5,000,000,000.

He commented the bill as a whole, as a vast improvement over the old law.

In concluding, the speaker portrayed the condition under which the German people "lugged and bound, pay bloody tribute to the insatiable ambition of the house of Hohenzollern," and said that "no citizen of the embattled nations not even the son of the great pacifist, Henry Ford, is more surely immune from bodily harm," than are the German emperor's six sons, "who would be preserved undamaged for posterity."

"Last of all the Wilhelms in Germany to give his life for the Vaterland," Mr. Longworth continued, "will be Wilhelm, the kronprinz, Adolbert, the August Wilhelms, the Oscars and Josephins."

Sons of a former president of the United States, he said by comparison, had been less timorous. Without mentioning by name his father-in-law, Col. Roosevelt, Mr. Longworth said: "All four sons of a former president have been at the real front, three of them married men with children, upon whom there was no possible legal obligation. One has perished gloriously on the field of honor, two have been wounded, one so seriously that he has been invalided home, the only who has escaped injury has been decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action."

He added that a son of the only other living ex-president referring to Mr. Taft was at the front and that if President Wilson had been blessed with sons of fighting age, they, too, would have been on the firing line.

"Let patriotism," Mr. Longworth said, "continue to banish all selfish and partisan spirit from our deliberations and make us brothers in the cause so that we may stand shoulder to shoulder, northern and southern, Republican and democrat, united indissolubly during this war by the passionate resolve that government of the Kaiser, by the Kaiser and for the Kaiser shall perish from the earth."

TO FIX LOWER PRICE FOR
GASOLINE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Fuel Administrator Garfield announced yesterday that he expects soon to fix a price for gasoline for domestic consumers, as well as the government and the allies, at a figure lower than the present market price. He is awaiting further reports on the situation before taking definite action.

No information was made as to what the fixed price will be. Dr. Garfield's announcement disclosed that for some time consideration had been given the problem of bringing the price of gasoline to a lower level. Several reports already have been made to Mark L. Requa, director of the oil division of the fuel administration. It was intimated that upon completion of the investigation now being conducted immediate action would be taken.

The disclosure of Dr. Garfield's purpose came during an informal talk with newspaper correspondents in which the stocks of gasoline in the country and the stated shortage east of the Mississippi river, which caused the administration to request that no passenger automobiles be operated Sundays in that section were discussed.

Dr. Garfield would not discuss reports that this request was based on information furnished the administration by the oil industry for the alleged purpose of maintaining the present price of gasoline in the face of a reported large supply in the country. The senate yesterday displayed its interest in the auto-less Sunday request by adopting a resolution offered by Senator Lodge asking the administration for information as to the country's production, consumption and exportation of gasoline, with separate figures on the amount used by passenger cars.

PARTY FOR NEW GIRLS
AT Y.W.C.A. HOME

A house-warming party was held last night at the Y.W.C.A. to welcome the new girls who have come to this city to study or work during the coming winter. The affair was in charge of Miss Marion Sawyer, social secretary, assisted by Miss Frances E. MacNair, general secretary and Miss Florence Foster, physical director.

The new comers were introduced to the older girls, then all proceeded to join in the games which followed. Later they enjoyed music in Kilton hall, where they could have plenty of floor space and could join "all hands around" for an old fashioned "Vigilante Reel."

Refreshments were served, and when the party broke up the young women whose homes are perhaps many miles away from Lowell, felt that they had received a real hearty welcome.

TO CARRY AMERICAN WAR PRIS-ONERS ON COMMERCIAL
SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Tentative plans are being made so American war prisoners in Germany, who because of their geographical location would be exchanged through Sweden, may be brought back home on commercial ships having safe conducts outside the war zone instead of being shipped on transports taking the risk of submarine destruction.

Some American war prisoners in Germany will be exchanged through Switzerland but many others can be relieved of long railroad journeys and perilous ocean passage. The Bern conference this month, which is to discuss the handling of American and German prisoners probably will take up the subject.

"HELL, HEAVEN OR HOME
BY XMAS," SAY TROOPS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—"Hell, Heaven, or Home by Christmas" is the motto of the boys of the 101st Regiment, according to Capt. J. J. O'Brien of E. Company, who returned from the front yesterday and held a reception during the day at the banking rooms of Richardson, Hill & Co., 30 Congress street, where he was employed for 20 years up to the time he went to the Mexican border with his command.

"The 26th division," he said, "is regarded by the French as the premier division in France."

Capt. O'Brien left France two weeks ago, and will be assigned to a new division being organized, and will be promoted to a higher rank in recognition of his valiant services.

"The regiment is now at a rest camp back of the line," he said, "and the boys are being given their first furlough (seven days) since they went to France. Co. E of the 101st is composed of Co. E of the old 9th of Boston and Co. F, the Lawrence Light Guards, of the old 6th of Medford."

"Col. Logan is in great spirits and has handled the regiment in a very efficient manner," said Capt. O'Brien. "He has just taken his first furlough (five days) since he arrived in France and he spent that going about visiting the sick and wounded of his regiment in the hospitals. All the officers and men greatly admire and respect Gen. Edwards."

"The losses by the 101st were the lightest of any regiment in the division. We were in the fighting in the big drive from July 18 to 25 inclusive. My company has lost only three men in the year of service. All the remaining boys are fine, with the exception of a few who are in hospitals with slight illnesses. All the boys are anxious to 'clean up the fight' as they call it, and to get back home and to business again."

"The weather in France has been fine, but the rainy season is due about now. The boys have been getting good food and they are all in high spirits. Until May the mail service was pretty prompt and the letters and newspapers from home brought great cheer to all of us, but since then the service has been a little slow."

"However, everybody is happy and feeling fine, and I want the parents and friends of the boys of Co. E to rest assured all are being well cared for."

DEPUTY DUMESNIL, RECENTLY
DECORATED BY FRANCE,
IS DEAD

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 10 (Havas).—Gaston Dumesnil, member of the French chamber of deputies, died early today in a hospital near the front. Shortly before his death he was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by Premier Clemenceau.

Deputy Dumesnil was 40 years old. He had been wounded twice and was cited in orders six times. He is the 13th deputy to be killed at the front.

BRITISH RAID ENEMY
SUBMARINE BASES

LONDON, Sept. 10.—British naval air forces between Sept. 1 and Sept. 7 made four attacks on German submarine shelters and workshops on the docks at Bruges, Belgium, according to an official statement issued today by the British admiralty. Several hits were obtained. The Ostend docks and a motor boat depot at Blankenberge also were attacked with good results.

UNFILLED ORDERS
OF U. S. STEEL

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corp. on Aug. 31 were 8,759,042 tons, according to the corporation's monthly statement issued today. This is a decrease of 124,759 tons compared with the orders on July 31.

proved by Park Dept.

At the regular meeting of the municipal council held this morning it was formally voted to award contracts for the installation of two new 72-inch boilers at city hall and also for the corollary steel fitting and setting-up work.

The Scannell Boiler Works was awarded the contract for the boilers to be delivered to the rear of city hall. The price was $10,000 each. Farrell & Conaton were awarded the contract for steam fitting, the figure being $3,780.

D. H. Walker was given the contract for putting the boilers in the collar. The cost will be $2985.

This means that work of installing the new boilers in the basement of city hall can be started at once. It is

MORSE AT U. S. BANK

Commissioner States Lowell's
Need of $25,000 Sewer
Loan to Officials

Commissioner Charles J. Morse, of the department of streets and highways, appeared before the committee on capital issues at the Federal Reserve bank in Boston today to present papers and documents concerning the construction of sewers in Belvidere under government auspices. The municipal council recently voted to borrow $25,000 for sewer construction work but as the city has already borrowed more than $100,000 this year, permission must be obtained from the committee in question before additional money can be borrowed.

City Treasurer Fred H. Rourke was in Boston yesterday and Mr. Morse's presence was required today. Mr. Rourke feels that the money will be given eventually but the federal officials are compelled to make the necessary investigation beforehand.

All Taxes
The annual poll tax bills will be sent out next week. Several extra clerks are working on the job. The names of 1500 men who would ordinarily pay a poll tax but who are exempt on account of being in the service, have been taken off the assessors' books and this means just so many less bills to be sent out.

The assessors say that there are about 4000 Lowell men whose taxes might be abated on account of their being in the national service, but relatives of the men failed to notify the assessors, so the tax bills will have to be sent out.

New Sugar System
Warren P. Riordan of the local food administration said today that local grocers who now have pink sugar cards for canning should turn the same over to a wholesaler and receive sugar. This takes the place of sending the cards to Boston.

19 and 20 To Go to Army
Begin in October

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Provost Marshal General Crowder announces that the first call to the colors of men who register Thursday will include men in the 19 and 20 year old classes and in the classes from 32 to 36 years inclusive. Questionnaires will go first to registrants within these specified age limits and local boards will be ordered to classify them first in readiness for calls beginning in October.

Young men in the 19 and 20 year classes will be accepted for induction into the students' army training corps, but Gen. Crowder points out that the authorized strength of this corps is only 150,000 men whereas the total number of registrants below 20 will be over 3,000,000.

COACH? COACH? WHO KNOWS A COACH?

Do you know of a good football coach?
If so, you can obtain the good graces of Headmaster Herbert D. Bixby, of the high school by sending your man to him at once.

The high school is without a coach and the football season is about to begin. James D. Conway, coach for the past several years, has entered the artillery service and as yet nobody has been secured to replace him.

Mr. Bixby says that unless a coach is forthcoming within a week or so it will mean that there will be no football at the school for 1918. Most of the young fellows who would ordinarily be available for the job are in the service and a man who has been out of the game for any length of time finds himself sadly inadequate when it comes to teaching the up-to-date methods of pigskin.

Mr. Bixby says that the applicant must be thoroughly qualified in every respect because if the school is to have a team, it must have a real leader. Therefore, one week will determine whether the high school is to live up to its traditions and have football or else have it called off, "on account of the war." Applicants should see Mr. Bixby at the high school office.

LOWELL'S "DOLLAR DAY"
DAWNS TOMORROW

Dollar day dawns tomorrow. The columns of The Sun are jammed with money saving ads today.

Wednesday will be the day to shake the salt box or whatever receptacle is used to keep the family's money in, if necessary, and to be with the earliest of the shoppers tomorrow, Wednesday morning.

It will be found as people read these ads and inspect stacks of merchandise Wednesday morning that enterprising Lowell merchants want a quick turnover of their stocks and the nimble dollar rather than show coming profits.

The bargains are in the dollar class tomorrow. The ads in The Sun tell the story. If Dollar day didn't mean bargains, it wouldn't be worth advertising.

Start of Fifth Game of World's Series

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Sept. 10.—After a two hour strike by the Boston Red Sox and the Chicago Cubs for readjustment of the players' share of the World Series receipts that met a day of the World Series, the two contending teams agreed that they would contest the remaining games if it was publicly announced that they were playing "for the sake of the public; the good name of baseball and the soldiers and sailors present."

The decision to play was not made until 3 o'clock when after a stormy session with the players with the members of the national commission in the clubhouse, Harry Hooper, the Red Sox rightfielder, who headed the committee of players said: "We will play the game for the sake of baseball. We know we have not been given a square deal."

There were probably over 20,000 persons present when the players finally came upon the field for practice. The national commission indicated very clearly that they could not change the rule, having no authority to do so.

The Red Sox needed but one more game to capture the World's Series, while the hapless Cubs were fighting in their last line of defense.

Wounded Soldiers Cheered

The crowd had something to cheer for when a large detachment of wounded soldiers brought to this country from overseas last Saturday arrived in the grandstand and took box seats. The entire grandstand and the bleachers rose en masse, while the band played "Over There" and gave the heroes three loud cheers, the loudest and the most heartfelt that have yet been given in the series.

During the continued absence of the players from the field, the band made gallant efforts to entertain the crowd which was showing remarkable patience.

The band played "The Star Spangled Banner" while the players and spectators stood with bared heads. Hendrix and Vaughn waved up for the Cubs, while Sam Jones, Boston's right hander, worked on for the Red Sox.

It was announced that O'Day would give the decisions behind the plate; Hildebrand at first; Klem and Owens at third base.

The batteries for Boston: Jones and Agnew; for Chicago: Vaughn and Kil-

CHICAGO
Flack, rf
Hollocher, ss
Mann, lf
Paskert, c
Merkle, lb
Deal, 2b
Kilmer, c
Vaughn, p

First Inning

Jones lost control and Flack walked. Hollocher singled over second. Flack going to second. Mann sacrificed. Jones to Shean. Flack going to third and Hollocher to second. The Red Sox infield played back. A double play ended the inning. Paskert lined out to Whitman, who threw to Shean at second, doubling Hollocher. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Hooper singled over second on the second ball pitched. Shean sacrificed. Vaughn to Pick. Hooper going to second. Strunk out. Whitman hit a long foul to the right field fence which Flack got after a hard run. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Inning

Jones kept the ball low on Merkle, who is a high ball hitter. Merkle ran the count to two and three, and finally walked. Pick grounded out to McInnis, while Merkle was running to second. It was an attempt at the hit and run. Deal popped to Scott. Jones knocked down Kilmer's grounder and threw him out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Vaughn used plenty of speed and a fast curve. McInnis flew out to Pick, who went out back of second to make the catch. Hollocher made a nice play on Scott's grounder, getting his man at first. Vaughn knocked down Thomas' grasser and threw him out. It was a pretty stop with his bare hand. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning

Scott threw out Vaughn. Scott made a beautiful play on Flack's sharp drive and got him at first. Hollocher walked on four straight balls. Agnew tried to pick Hollocher off first with a quick throw, but Hollocher dashed for second and the crowd gave McInnis the laugh when he turned and expected to tag Hollocher going back to first. Hollocher scored on Mann's double to left. Hollocher gets credit for a stolen base. Scott threw out Paskert. One run, one hit, no errors.

Hollocher took Agnew's grounder and threw him out. Jones walked. Hooper was a strikeout victim. Shean hoisted to Paskert. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning
Strunk drove a hard liner right to Flack's hands. Pick popped to Thomas. Deal flew out to Strunk. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Strunk drove a long hit into right field for two bases. Whitman popped to Merkle, Strunk darting back to second safely. McInnis lined to Merkle who doubled up Strunk at second. Hollocher taking the throw. No runs, one hit, no error.

Fifth Inning

Hooper came in and took Kilmer's short fly. Vaughn struck out. Shean went down behind second to get Flack's grounder and got his man by a step. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Mann gathered in Scott's fly. Thomas singled into right field. Agnew hit into a double play. Hollocher to Pick to Merkle. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Inning

Hollocher singled into center. His second hit of the game. Mann flew out to Strunk. Paskert walked. Merkle singled into left field and Hollocher was caught at the plate. Whitman to Agnew. Paskert reached third and Merkle first. Pick flew out to Strunk. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Jones sent a high fly to Paskert. Hooper flew out to Paskert. Vaughn tossed out Shean at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning

Deal struck out on three pitched balls. Kilmer hit a line drive into Jones' hands. The crowd gave Vaughn a big cheer as he came to bat. He had pitched great ball and had the Red Sox completely baffled. Vaughn whiffed. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Strunk drove a liner, which Pick knocked down and threw his man out. Whitman lined a single into left. McInnis hit into a double play. Hollocher

Eighth Inning

Flack walked. Hollocher bunted down the third base line and beat it out. Flack went to second. It was a hit for Hollocher, his third of the game. Mann popped to Shean. Flack and Hollocher scored on a long two-base hit to left center by Paskert.

Merkle struck out. Pick's grounder got away from Shean and it went for a hit. Shean recovered the ball and threw to Agnew and Paskert was run down, the play being Shean to Agnew to Thomas to McInnis. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Hollocher threw out Scott at first. Thomas sent up a high foul which Merkle took. Schang batted in place of Agnew. Schang struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning

Schank went in to catch for Boston. Scott threw out Deal. Vaughn threw out Kilmer.

Jones got a big wave of applause from the Boston crowd as he came to bat.

Vaughn struck out for the third time. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Miller batted in place of Jones. Mann made a wonderful catch of Miller's long fly. He ran up a steep embankment, fell down at the top, recovered himself and caught the ball sitting down. Hollocher robbed Hooper or a hit, taking his fly ball after a hard run.

Shean got an infield hit. Hollocher was only able to knock it down. Strunk struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Final score: Chicago 3, Boston 0.

(By the Associated Press.)

Fast progress has been made by the French in closing in upon both St. Quentin and La Fere, important German strongholds along the southern hem of the Hindenburg line. They are within two miles of La Fere and within three and a half miles of St. Quentin.

In the region of La Fere the French are pushing toward the north of the formidable St. Gobain bastion, a considerable impression on this powerful position by direct pressure, in the Servais sector to the south of La Fere.

The Servais station was captured yesterday. By taking Briquettay, further south, General Petain's troops have advanced to within little more than a mile of the town of St. Gobain, one of the highest points of the bastion.

Near La Faux, around the bend in the line to the south of the bastion, the French made some further progress to the north of the town.

Push on Toward Laon
The headway thus made in encircling the St. Gobain position constituted the most important feature of yesterday's operations because the objective in this sector is unquestionably the German base at Laon, the keystone of the whole German defensive system. A more spectacular advance by the French armies, however, was effected further north.

French Take Five Towns

Having forced on Sunday a passage of the Crozat canal on the line opposite the La Fere-St. Quentin front, the French developed the forward push rapidly yesterday, until by evening advances of well towards five miles beyond the canal had been scored at some points.

Five towns were taken in this region, including Essigny-le-Grand, directly in this sector is unquestionably

POPULAR CONFIDENCE IS TOTTERING IN GERMANY

LONDON, Sept. 10.—"Popular confidence is tottering," and, "We may win" are significant phrases made in a speech at Dresden on Monday, by Count von Vitzthum d'Eckstadt, the foreign minister of Saxony, according to a despatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

"The more we speak of peace, the further away it is," he said. "The enemy's means of success have plunged him into a kind of warlike folly which makes reconciliation impossible. We can trust the army and the high command, but popular confidence is tottering."

LABOR TO WORK AND FIGHT TO WIN WAR

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The immediate task before organized labor is to "work and fight to win the war," George N. Wrenn, president of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, told delegates to the annual convention of that body today. "It is our solemn duty," he said, "to put our whole weight into the scale in behalf of the government and civilization. This is no time for delay."

Gas In the Stomach
Is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that "full, bloated feeling" after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from your druggist a few ounces of Bisulphate of Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloated right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisulphate of Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion. For sale at Lippett's Riker-Joyner drug store and leading druggists.—Adv.

LABOR SUPPORTS DRAFT

Resolve Adopted by Massachusetts Branch of American Federation of Labor

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—When the 33d annual convention of the Massachusetts state branch, American Federation of Labor, opened in Convention hall, St. Botolph street, yesterday, 350 delegates were there, representing 235,000 men and women wage earners throughout the commonwealth. It is expected that the proceedings of the convention will occupy three or four days.

The assistance of organized labor in the new draft registration of men between the ages of 18 and 45 was pledged in a resolution adopted unanimously. A committee was appointed by President George H. Wrenn of Springfield to act with a committee from the Boston Central Labor union and confer with the local representatives of the war and navy departments for the purpose of requesting modifications of the program to establish dry zones in Boston.

Gov. McCall welcomed the delegates in behalf of the state and was given a fine reception.

Eight state branch bills before the legislature of 1919 were recommended by the committee, together with such other measures as may be added by the convention. These were bills for an 8-hour day for women in manufacturing and mercantile establishments; cities and towns to provide home-steads; a state fund to which all employers coming under the workmen's compensation act must subscribe; less hours of labor for young children—not over five per day; three tours of work of eight hours each for four workers in paper mills; one day's rest in seven for hotel and restaurant employees and other workers; non-contributory old age pensions for deserving and needy citizens; a free state university.

Secretary Treasurer Martin T. Joyce in his annual report states that during the past year 29 new unions affiliated with the state branch and there were also eight reaffiliations. The receipts for the year amounted to $11,229.64 and the expenses were $3222.13, leaving on hand Aug. 1 $3907.51.

The executive council in its report to the convention stated that six meetings of the council had been held since the last convention, all in joint session with the legislative committee.

It was also reported that the council sent a telegram to President Wilson offering him, and through him the nation, their heartiest co-operation in assisting to solve the great problem of the rehabilitation of the disabled soldiers and sailors after the war. It was pointed out that the trades unions of the country have given freely of their membership to help win the war.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minute, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.

CHERRY & WEBB 12-18 JOHN ST.

TO QUIT CABINET

Report McAdoo to Devote Entire Time to the Managing of Railroads

John Skelton Williams Slated to Head the Treasury Department

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—William G.
McAdoo is expected to step out of the office of secretary of the treasury and John Skelton Williams is expected to step into the cabinet office thus vacated.
There has been no announcement of the projected change, official or otherwise, but men who are in position to know believe that this first shift in the war cabinet will come with the new Liberty loan.

The business of the railroads has developed to such magnitude and calls for such attention even to details by the director general that it is deemed more than any man can do adequately to fill both great offices.

The effort to accomplish this was responsible for the breaking of Mr. Mc-Adoo's health in the spring, and there was dismay in the national capital at the danger, happily averted, that another man would have to be found to take over the tremendous responsibilities.
Nobody was able to suggest even a probable successor for the dual job.

Railroads Present Huge Problem
It was recognized then that if Mc-Adoo dropped out two men would have to be chosen to fill his shoes. The anticipated change simply amounts to doing this same thing without losing Mc-Adoo.

Of the two jobs the directorship of the railroads is comparably the more exacting, and, under existing conditions, the more important. The treasury runs more or less according to routine. The railroads present a constant succession of new problems.

The treasury specialists can determine on policies and decision according to precedent; there are no precedents for the verdicts of the director of railroads.

Transportation is such an intimate element in our war-making that the director has to have his hand on the throttle every moment, so, according to the information on which the opening paragraph of this article is based, Mc-Adoo has elected to stay with the railroad job and pass up the other.

Naturally the report that the director of railroads is to separate himself from the treasury has given rise to the idea that there would be a new cabinet office shortly, that of secretary of transportation, and that, too, seems probable.
For days there have been reports of impending cabinet changes. These dealt mainly with Secretary of War Baker's post. The story was told that Mr.
Baker would be the successor of Ambassador Page at London and that Mc-Adoo would be given the place of secretary of war. That is not going to happen.

Whenever Secretary Baker has gone abroad, some such report has been floating. Mr. Baker will be back at his old desk in a month or two and will remain there until it is time for another visit to the fighting army, when a reassignment of the reports may be looked for.

McAdoo Constantly on Move

If McAdoo were the sort of executive who could sit with his feet under a desk, or on a desk, the necessity for the change would not have arisen, but he insists on attending to all manner of details, such as the wording of tickets, the rates on pullmans, the rerouting of trains. Last night, for instance, though the director general is off on an inspection of railroads and coal mines, in preparation for the winter campaign against fuel shortage, he is out with the change of the dining-car service from a la carte to table d'hôte.

While he was in Washington between his western trip and his present journey he worked over menus until he had found what he could supply for $1 and $1.25, the prices for lunches and dinners on the dining cars after Oct.
1. While he was at this, he worked out a plan for pooling the eating equipment of various railroads, so that after the first of the month passengers are likely to find themselves patronizing an Illinois Central traveling restaurant on a New York Central run, if that will make for service.

Many persons are wondering what sort of reception the name of John Skelton Williams will get in the senate when it is presented for confirmation.
Senators fought him when he was named assistant secretary of treasury and they fought him harder when he was named controller of currency. That was back in the days when the national city clerk, who had been supplying advance statements of the condition of national banks throughout the country, was ordered out of the department.

FOE HAS SPENT EFFORT

We Have Passed Through Dark Days—They Will Never Return, Says Haig

LONDON, Sept. 10.—"We have passed through many dark days. Please God these will never return," says Field Marshal Haig, commander-in-chief of the British forces in France, in an order of the day. The commander then says:

"The enemy has now spent his effort."

Bases Near Capture

Continued

rectly south of St. Quentin and but three and a half miles distant. To the north, beyond the Somme, Breillers and Roupy were taken, while in closing in on La Fere the French captured the Liez fort, northeast of Liez and important wooded land within two miles of La Fere.

France-American Gain
On the Franco-American front, just to the south of the Aisne, there was an improvement in the allied position, in the Glennes region. Field Marshal Haig's troops made headway in their turning movement south of Havrin-court, where the left flank of the German positions behind the canal du Nord defending Cambrai on the west, is being assailed. A German counter-attack southeast of Havrin-court, was repulsed.

British Move Forward in Flanders

In Flanders the British are continuing their pressure in the direction of Armentieres and last night they achieved advances north and west of that town. Northeast of Neuve Chapelle, they also moved forward.

Increased Hun Resistance

Increased resistance by the Germans and weather conditions unfavorable to the swift movement of troops have tended to slow down the allied offensive along that stretch of the battle line from St. Quentin to Cambrai. Here the British in fighting of a local character, have carried their lines to Havricourt wood and Peizlere to the south and have taken Verdun and Vendelles. Verdun is about five miles from St. Quentin.

La Fere in Flames

At Liez, the French crossed the Cro-zat canal and their patrols are nearing La Fere, which is reported to be burning. With the fall of La Fere only a question of time, the French also command all of the region west of the Oise river and are tightening their line around St. Quentin and in the valley to the east through which they must pass to take Laon.

Hun Artillery Fire Increases

From La Fere south, German artillery fire has increased in violence and numerous counter attacks indicate further progress by the French would be contested vigorously. Failure to stop the allied advance at other strong positions and the burning of La Fere furnish evidence of the weakness of the Germans' line and of their ultimate inability to stop the turning movement against the St. Gobain forest, the keystones of their positions barring the further movement eastward of the allied armies. Reinforcements have been rushed into the St. Gobain forest and to the defense of the lines east of Rheims.

The resumption of artillery duels between the opposing forces further strengthens the opinion that for the present at least, the rapid advance has settled down to a bitter struggle for the possession of the strong points in the line—Cambrai, St. Gobain forest and the Chemin-des-Dames.

TIGHTEN LINES AROUND

ST. QUENTIN AND LA FERRE

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Sept. 9.—(By The Associated Press.)—French troops forced the crossing of the Crozat canal today, overcoming strong opposition and occupying important positions in the triangle formed by the two branches of the canal and the road from La Fere and St. Quentin. They also advanced north of the Oise, taking the Liez fort and north of the Oise capturing Brevillers and Roupy. Though these were operations of detail, they tightened the lines around both St. Quentin and La Fere, greatly facilitating further operations against both towns.

General Humbert's forces now command the entire region west of the river and the canal from La Fere north beyond a single track railroad that crosses the river at Mexieres. They command all of the approaches to St.
Quentin from the north, west and south and are within five miles of the town.

General Mangin's forces south of the Oise took Servais, closing in on La Fere from the south while they improved their position north of Laffaux.
Both the third and tenth French armies are now practically on the line where the pursuit of the Germans stopped in the spring of 1917. German prisoners say that orders recently issued are to fight to the last man to hold the present positions. There are indications, however, that the Germans have less confidence than last year in the inviolability of their line.

The Hindenburg line, however, comprises a wide system of defenses having a total depth in some places of nearly 10 miles and the fall of its pillars does not mean a breach in the position.

WAR NOW ENTERS A

PERIOD OF PRECAUTION

PARIS, Sept. 10.—The allies are now almost back to the lines they occupied before the German offensive after six weeks of unbroken victory, and the war has entered a period, not of calm but of precaution, with a promise of just as wonderful things to follow. The dry and on the whole fine weather which helped Marshal Foch to turn the tables on the Germans so fast has now ended and a wet stormy spell has set in.

IMPORTANT PROGRESS

FOR FRENCH ANNOUNCED

PARIS, Monday, Sept. 9.—Important progress towards the southern end of the Hindenburg line in the neighborhood of La Fere, north of the St. Go-bain massif, was made by the French forces today. The war office tonight announced the capture of the Liez fort, northeast of the town of Liez and of wooded regions to the east and southeast of Liez, within two miles of La Fere.

Additional ground was gained in the St. Gobain region south of the Oise, where the Servais station was taken as well as a wooded area about a mile and a half to the south.

North of the La Fere region, the French pressed in far, capturing the towns of Remigny, Montescourt-Liverolles, Clastres, Seracourt-le-Grand, Roupy and Estrelliers, the last two towns being within three and a half miles of St. Quentin.

Improvements were effected in the French positions north of Laffaux, opposite the end of the Chemin-des-Dames. There was also improvement of the position in the region of Glennes, south of Aisne, where Franco-American forces are operating. The statement reads:

"New progress realized today by our troops at various points on the battleground."

"North of the Somme, we captured the villages of Estrelliers and Roupy.
Beyond the Crozat canal, we have taken Seracourt-le-Clastrès, Montescourt-Lizerolles and Remigny. Our advance elements occupied hill 103, south of Montescourt station, Essigny-le-Grand and hill 117."

"North of the Oise we took the fort of Liez, the wood northwest of the Caniers farm and the Rouge farm."

"South of the Oise, we have taken
Briguetay and the Servais station.
Elsewhere, we improved our positions north of Laffaux and also between the Aisne and the Vesle in the region of Glennes."

"Army of the east (Sept. 7.) There was activity along the entire front, particularly west of the Vardar, in the head of the Cerus, in the region of Monastir and between the lakes, where the enemy attempted a raid which failed with losses. In Albania, there were patrol encounters."

The report from the army of the east under date of Sept. 8, reads:

"There was activity by the artillery and the aviators along the greater part of the front."

INTERESTING LETTERS FROM LOWELL SOLDIERS IN THE WAR ZONE

Mrs. G. W. Faneuf of 1131 Middlesex street has received a most interesting letter from her son, Corp. George J. Faneuf, who is in France with Battery F of the 102d Field Artillery.

Corp. George J. Faneuf
France, Aug. 2, 1918.
Dear Mother: This is my second day of rest at the horse lines. I will return to the guns in about two more days. You no doubt have read in the papers of our big drive. Our division is the best in the world. They say that the crown prince's best opposed us. We certainly have the Germans on the run and we are by no means thinking of letting up on them either. We had to move our guns forward every night to keep in touch with the retreating Boche.

We had a novel and exciting experience just before I left the guns to come back for rest. In the town of fair size directly in the path of our doughboys was a church steeple which commanded a view of all the valley and the hills. Our division discovered the fact that the steeple contained several German machine gunners. Of course, that meant that it would be impossible to capture the town without great loss to the infantry. The major of the 1st regiment immediately got in conference with our divisional commander and commanders who decided that a sniper gun from our regiment would serve their purpose.

Lieut. Johnson of our battery was chosen to see that the job was done, even if he had to bring the gun to the edge of the town. He picked my gun, so that at 8 o'clock in the morning, with six horse pulling it, as well as six more pulling our caisson filled with ammunition, we started on our journey.

As we drew near our infantry lines, the woods suddenly ended, leaving us to continue toward our destination across the open fields in plain sight of the Germans, but out of range of rifle and machine gun fire.

We skirted the woods and leisurely selected a favorable location for our gun. Then after backing the piece into the woods, we prepared our piece for action. Our drivers, horses and limbers pulled away to a safe distance, leaving us at the disposal of the Boche artillery. To our surprise, no whistling shells greeted us, their attention being drawn, perhaps, by a heavy barrage.

Then our artillery was directed toward a town on our left. Our guns ready to fire, Lieut. Johnson showed me my target and explained that as this was the first time to his knowledge that any gun of our regiment had been used in direct fire on the enemy, that is, when you can see and be seen by the enemy. He hoped that I would take advantage of the opportunity to add another line of glory to Battery F's already well filled book.

I sighted the gun on the steeple and after several trial shots during which I was able to correct my range and deflection, allowing for windage, a shell was planted through the front of the building.

The lieutenant was pleased and suggested that the elevation be increased slightly. When this was done, the next six shots were direct hits on the steeple, tearing huge gaps in the masonry.

After ten minutes' firing we observed a white flag displayed from the tower. Our gun had belched forth at that instant and a few seconds later another shell had struck home. When the smoke had cleared away no flag was to be seen. A ragged hole had been torn where the flag had been put. Several minutes more and then a Red Cross flag hit the breeze. Knowing this to be a hoax we continued to shell until we were certain that we had made the building untenable. A message was sent to our colonel informing him we had attained our objective and were awaiting further orders. The colonel was greatly pleased and told the lieutenant to stay in position, firing at any suspicious looking object until our ammunition was gone. Then to report to our colonel again.

This suited us and we directed our attention to a new target. This time it was a suspicious looking clump of trees very prominently grouped in a favorable place for a machine gun nest on the side of the opposite hill.

We turned our gun on these trees and the first shot scored dead and by this time used up our ammunition, we called up our limbers and hitching up to them, stealthily crept away from the woods. This time we went through woods over a newly discovered road to safety.

We were highly elated, not only because of our good work, but because we had been able to do it and get away with a whole hide. Our infantry have since taken the town with very little resistance.

My crew worked like Trojans, and I am indebted to them for their good work. Lieut. Johnson is already the possessor of the Croix de Guerre and certainly deserves another recognition of some kind for the way in which he handled the problem.

In order that he might obtain as much information as possible just that morning he had gone "over the top" with our infantry, advancing within 500 metres of the machine gun nest, thus acquainting himself with all the necessary facts to make our part of the affair more simple.

I hope the story of my experiences will not have by this time increased your worry any. If it has this story would be better untold.

Your son,
GEORGE.

Private Ernest Brown

Ernest Brown, formerly of the quartermaster's corps, Camp Hollabird, who was recently transferred to the Motor Transport corps, Water Tank Train, 301, has written the following interesting letter to his uncle, J. B. Pelnauld of Merrimack street, this city:

Dear Uncle: Received the cigarette and the dictionary for which I want to thank you. It is just the thing I wanted. Well, I'm real happy because I got the job I wanted. I have been transferred to the Motor Transport corps, a new branch of the service, in Water Tank Train 301 and if nothing happens we should be waiting for France in about three weeks.

This is the first outfit of its kind to go over and they surely are trying to make it the best.

The purpose of this water tank train

is to purify water from a hole or river and then carry it to the trenches. We have these large purifiers which we drive to a river or pond and water hole and it purifies the water. Then we fill our large tankers which carry the water to the boys. There are 525 men in our outfit and they are all real soldiers from Camp Meade. This is considered a fighting outfit and believe me I was glad to get out of this Q.M.C. and be able to say that I'm a soldier. This is going to be great because I'll have a chance to see something outside of Baltimore. I'm in the headquarters and there are nine of us in it. There are 15 officers in this unit.

I am going to speak French for the bunch, do stenography work and in fact I will be general clerk. My work, when we get over there will chiefly consist of going from one little town to another to receive or send despatches, and I'm going to be a regular guy with a motorcycle. I don't know what I will get out of it, but I'm sure to get something.

Now we can hardly take anything over and all we do take is issued and we must carry it on our backs so don't send anything because I will not be able to take it with me. Don't bother about a sweater because I had two good ones given to me by the Red Cross. I will send my diamond by express and insured.

I have to get my teeth fixed before I go and I decided to have it done by a regular dentist in Baltimore, because they say the camp dentist is an awful scrub. He was a plumber before he got into the army. Well, I can't think of anything more to write about, but if there is anything you like to know just ask me and I will be delighted to tell you.

ERNEST.

HERE LIES THE PATH TO FAME ON SCREEN!

The Owl theatre informed The Sun today that no expense will be spared in filming "A Romance of Lowell," and after showing the picture in Lowell, the film is going to be placed at the disposal of the contestants to assist them in securing a position in the movies.

There are thousands of young men and women throughout the country who write to film companies asking for an opportunity to take up moving picture work. Of course, being absolutely green at the work, without any previous experience, they do not employ them and whenever they do it is to give them an insignificant bit, which gives them absolutely no opportunity to show what they might be capable of doing if given a chance.

The plan the Owl theatre has is therefore an excellent one. They will lend the film to those who take part and they will be permitted to send the picture to the regular releasing companies who can run it off in their projecting room. In this way the moving picture companies can see what the young people can do with real parts, and who knows but that some boy or girl or child may attract the attention of these film companies.

There is no question but that "A Romance of Lowell" will be the all-absorbing topic of interest in our city for many days, and considering that the Hudra Film company of New York has at the head of it, Mr. William Harris, Jr., son of the late William Harris, of Rich, Harris and Frohman, and brother of the late Henry B. Harris, the New York theatrical manager who was lost on the Titanic, the public is assured that this production will have attending it all the dignity of the usual high class production.

TARGET PRACTICE ON CAMP'S 200 TARGETS DELIGHTS OLD AND NEW SOLDIERS

CAMP DEVENS, Sept. 9.—Under the critical eye of Maj. Gen. Henry P. McCain, commander of the 12th division his men yesterday took their first course on the rifle range. From early morning, until late in the afternoon, the surrounding country reverberated with the crash of rifles, and 200 targets bobbed up and down behind a barrier as the markers scored the shots.

There was some extremely fine shooting done. Many of the men had never fired a rifle before. Others, regular army men, complained they were unaccustomed to such a short range. They fired at 100 yards yesterday. Soldiers with years of service behind them were side by side with rookies, who imagined the targets before them were Germans.

Details of soldiers were placed on the Fitchburg road. They stopped all cars and warned the passengers that they passed at their own risk. This was done to prevent a repetition of an accident that occurred when a young woman was struck by a bullet while passing along the road. No accidents were reported. The Woodville road was closed altogether.

Eight companies, two from each regiment, fired their course yesterday. All 200 targets were kept busy. When the 76th division started its course they had but 50 targets to work with, the others not then being completed.

Virginia Boy Good Shot

A number of perfect scores were made yesterday. One was made by Bradford Stewart, a Virginia boy, a member of Co. I, 73d Infantry. Before firing, he said he had never shot with an army rifle before, and promptly plunked 10 bullseyes, making a perfect score.

"Maybe you never handled an army rifle before," said a lieutenant, "but you can certainly shoot. Where did you learn?"

"Floyd Allen, the Virginia mountaineer, who was a member of the Allen gang of Hillsville, Va., which shot up the court there in 1912, afterward escaping, was my teacher," was the reply of the "rookie."

"Some teacher," muttered the lieutenant as he turned away.

Even though they are far from their homes it was election day just the same for the Maine soldiers. Polls opened in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium at 7 o'clock and remained open until 5. It was the most picturesque election ever seen by any men in camp. The 16 ballot boxes for the 16 Maine counties consisted of packing cases. There are some 2000 Maine voters in camp and the officers in charge of the election estimated that there would be about 1500 voters cast.

The Maine men crowded the auditorium practically all day. At noon Lieut. Raymond W. Swift of Augusta, an officer of B company, 12th Military Police, who was in charge of the election, telegraphed Sec. of State Frank W. Hall of Maine and asked for authority to increase his staff to handle votes.

Five state guard officers and 10 non-commissioned officers arrived in camp yesterday to take a two weeks' course in machine gun work here. The officers are Lieuts. F. J. McMullen, N.

W. Lovejoy, W. F. Mosley, L. K. Jones and William Banninger.

Maj. Gen. McCain had a distinguished visitor yesterday when Gen. James Parker, U.S.A. (retired) arrived here from Newport, R. I. Gen. Parker was accompanied by his son, Lieut. Parker of the 4th United States Field Artillery. The visitors were entertained at luncheon and inspected the camp.

Lowell Bootleggers Held

Nineteen bootleggers, arrested Sunday by the provost guard, were brought before court at Ayer yesterday. Six were arrested in Fitchburg and 13 in Lowell. All were held in $300 for the federal grand jury. The apprehension of bootleggers in Lowell again focuses the attention of the authorities on that city, which for some time was closed to soldiers.

A big jitney bus operated by Adalam Brothers, containing 14 passengers, was in collision last night with a motor ambulance where the north road crosses the main road. The ambulance, was being driven down the north road from the K. of C. building and the bus was coming toward the main gate. The bus driver swung up the hill to the right in an effort to avoid collision with the ambulance. The effort was unsuccessful, however, and when the two machines came together the bus tipped over.

Three of the passengers were injured and they were taken to the Base hospital. The injured are Private John Waldren of K company, 74th Infantry; Private Spearin of the 20th company, Depot Brigade, and Miss Stella Brown of Schuylerville, N. Y. Miss Brown was the most severely injured. She sustained lacerations of the face and scalp. Private Herman W. Marlow of the 23d Ambulance company drove the ambulance, and after the collision he rushed the injured to the hospital.

Maj. Bellot For Devens

Maj. Julius Bellot of the French military mission reported yesterday at the northeastern department headquarters for a tour of six weeks' duty as an instructor in an important military science branch at Camp Devens.

The offices of the French officers for this district announced that Maj. L. Leonat, now here, will take charge of the work of the French officer-instructors in the northern section of the country upon the return to France, this week, of Lieut. Col. Paul Azan.

"War the Best Game"

Lieut. James Cooney of Worcester, at one time a shortstop for the Red Sox, but now of I. company, 73d Infantry, has found a game that makes baseball look like a Tuesday evening meeting of the Young Men's Marching club.

He had his men out on the rifle range this afternoon. Standing in his shirt sleeves, under the broiling sun, he watched them pumping steel at the targets.

"Gee," said he, "I'd like to see the Sox and Cubs playing this afternoon, but I wouldn't give this up for the show at Fenway park. This is far and away the bigger game."

There are others who think as Lieut. Cooney does.

The Sun prints the news of the world when it is news and only such news as is fit to print. It is a clean family newspaper.

Middlesex and Boston Street
Railway Men are Granted
Wage Increase

Service Resumed Today—En-
dicott Announces Award—
Cars Run Through Lowell

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Though the Middlesex & Boston Street railway is operated at a loss, according to Henry H. Endicott, executive chairman of the Massachusetts committee of public safety, acting as arbitrator in the controversy between the company and its striking employees, he has awarded all employees a substantial increase, thus ending the strike.

Cars will be run by the company on the old schedule today, and as it is agreed that there shall be no discrimination against any of the men on strike all the old men probably will be back in their usual places.

An important feature of the settlement is that both sides to the dispute have agreed with Mr. Endicott that during the continuance of the war there will be no strike or lockouts on the property and that if any differences arise they shall be submitted, either to the national war labor board or to Mr. Endicott, as the company may elect.

Endicott Hears Both Sides

Mr. Endicott passed the whole day yesterday listening to the presentation of the case, James H. Vahey, attorney for the carmen, and Pres. Pitt F. Dow of the company having agreed earlier in the day to accept Mr. Endicott as arbitrator.

The question referred to him solely affected the wages of the so-called blue uniform men and the miscellaneous employees. The blue uniform men are motormen and conductors; the miscellaneous employees are car barn men, trackmen, track layers, crossing tenders, watchmen and others.

The agreement is to hold until July 1, 1919.

"I find that the company is running at a loss," Mr. Endicott declares in his report, "but that the wages of the men must be fixed notwithstanding that fact, because there is no question in my mind, and none was raised before me, about the increase in the cost of living."

"I therefore find that the blue-uniform men shall receive the following wages: For the first year of service, 35 cents an hour; for the second year of service, 37 cents an hour; for the third year of service, 39 cents an hour; for the fourth year of service, 41 cents an hour; for the fifth year of service, 42 cents an hour."

Award Retroactive to July

"Concerning the miscellaneous employees, I find that the wages should be fixed as follows: The four men who are now doing car control work, running cars in barns and cleaning cars, shall receive 35 cents an hour; all other miscellaneous employees receiving 30 cents an hour, or less, shall receive 35 cents an hour; all those receiving from 30 to 35 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 40 cents an hour; those receiving from 35 to 39 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 41 cents an hour; those receiving 40 cents an hour shall receive, hereafter, 42 cents an hour; those receiving 41 cents an hour shall, hereafter, receive 43 cents an hour."

"It has been agreed between the company and the men that this award, so far as all employees are concerned, shall be effective as of July 1, 1918."

Men Accept Award

WALTHAM, Sept. 10.—A meeting of the Middlesex & Boston employees and representatives of other trolley lines in Massachusetts took place last night in Hibernian hall, at which the striking employees unanimously voted to accept the award of Henry H. Endicott.

The announcement of Mr. Endicott's findings was made by James H. Vahey. The meeting last night was originally called to discuss a state-wide strike, but in view of the award, the matter was not taken up.

NO EXTENSION

cessity of making an extension of its Varnum avenue line in Lowell.

Two years ago the public service commission ordered the Bay State to make this extension for the general good of the community.

The ruling as handed down today by the commission rescinds the order it gave the trolley company two years ago. The commission in its announcement today points out that even two years ago the trolley company was not in a good financial condition and that in the interim its financial condition has not improved, that it has in fact gone into the hands of a receiver, and an increase in its income due to its being allowed to increase its price for its service, in the form of increased fares and shortened fare zones, has not materialized to the amount that it was expected to.

The commission says that while there is no doubt but that the extension of the line in Varnum avenue would be a much desired convenience for Lowell people, it is manifestly inexpedient to expect the company to try to build this line at the present time in view of its financial condition and the commission does not view the extension of the Varnum avenue line at this time as being in the nature of a public nature. It is for this reason, the commission says, it has decided not to hold the Bay State company to observance of the order the commission made in this case two years ago. HOYT.

MANY YEARS' AGITATION PRECEDED WHAT WAS THOUGHT TO BE VICTORY

The agitation for the extension of the Varnum avenue line from Lexington avenue, where it now stops, as far as Totman road, has been going on for several years. A considerable number of people would be inconvenienced by the proposed extension and the residents have fought steadily for the improvement.

It was thought that victory had been finally attained two years ago when the public service commission ordered the railway company to make the requested extension, but evidently this victory is to be withheld.

In opposition to the idea of the proposed extension is the argument that the Varnum avenue line has never paid heavy dividends and for that reason the Bay State people were loath to make further investments there.

BOY IS KILLED

Charles McMahon Falls Down Elevator Shaft

Charles McMahon, aged 14 years, son of Mrs. Anastasia McMahon, 1375 Middlesex street, fell down a freight elevator well at the plant of the D. L. Page Co. in Merrimack street last evening and sustained injuries, which caused his death a few minutes later.

Just how the accident happened is not known, and is a source of no little wonder to those who worked with him, inasmuch as the elevator was not running at the time of the accident, and the doors being of a type which seemingly would make such a mishap impossible.

There were no witnesses to the accident and when the boy was found he was lying at the bottom of the pit suffering from severe injuries to the head. The ambulance was called, but the boy passed away before reaching the hospital. The body was removed to the funeral parlor of M. H. McDonough Sons.

J. PAPA KAKOS DIES FROM AUTO INJURY

James Papakakos, aged 64 years, and residing at 10 Flood's alley, died this morning at the state infirmary, Tewksbury, as a result of injuries received

when he was struck by an automobile in Tewksbury Saturday.

Papakakos, who was employed by the Bay State Street Railway company, was at his work on the main thoroughfare in Tewksbury Saturday morning, when an automobile operated by a Mr. Smith of Boston came along. The man attempted to get out of the way of the machine but was struck and knocked to the ground. He was removed to the state infirmary, where he died this morning. The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker Napoleon Eliodeau in this city.

LOWELL REPRESENTED AT BOSTON MEETING

John J. O'Rourke, of the local board of trade, attended a meeting of commercial executives of the state last Friday at the Boston City Club. About 22 cities were represented. The meeting was called to order by Frank Wither of Taunton, president of the state board of trade, at 1 o'clock and it proved to be one of the most important meetings ever held by this organization.

It was pointed out, in a most convincing manner, that if Massachusetts was to hold her own in the industrial lines, steps should be taken immediately to safeguard her manufacturing business. Factors and figures were stated showing that while Massachusetts progressed to some extent, its progress was not nearly as much as other states, particularly the surrounding ones. This was caused, to a great extent, by the increasing taxation, particularly of manufacturing machinery, that is being yearly added to the burden of the manufacturer.

The surrounding states have not adopted this method of taxation with the result that they are showing anywhere from 100 to 250 per cent industrial business than Massachusetts can show in the same time.

It was pointed out that our state board of trade could be made much more effective by the co-operation of every board of trade, or chamber of commerce throughout the state. Plans were discussed at length and a complete re-organization of the state board is about to be established whereby it is hoped that by the united action of every city and town in the state the vital interests of Massachusetts may be safeguarded and her future assured.

THE "Y" HUSTLED AND KEPT UP WITH ARMY

PARIS, Sept. 10.—When Franco-American forces gave the boche that memorable licking on the Chateau Thierry front, the Y.M.C.A. canteen department was put to a test few organizations of similar character ever faced. The battle moved swiftly. The Red Triangle had to move with equal celerity or get left. Getting left is one thing; that the "Y" objects to. It never has happened since the overseas work began.

So swiftly did the scene of action shift during the progress of the fight that the armies' ration carts couldn't always keep up. Conditions were such that it was not humanly possible to give the men the food that normally is issued to them. In some cases, it was impossible to give them any. The Y.M.C.A. supplies, ordinarily classed as something to supplement the rations, became the means actually of sustaining some of the fighters.

ENGLISH PASTOR HERE KEPT 17
Dr. A. T. Guttery of Liverpool, Eng., one of the special missionaries appointed by the premier of Great Britain, Hon. Lloyd George, to present the question of "The Churches and the Moral Aims of the War," to the American people, will speak at the Gorham St. P. M. church on the evening of Sept. 17, his services having been secured through the efforts of the pastor, Rev. N. W. Matthews.

"RODDY" STARTS OVERSEAS TO PLEASE THE BUDDIES WITH BOOM! BOOM! BORN

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Homer Roddeheaver has gone to teach Pershing's men how to sing "Brighten the Corner Where You Are." Escorting his celebrated trombone, Billy Sunday's old chorus master left in the Y.M.C.A. overseas service uniform to be a soldier song leader for the duration of the war. "Roddy" is to specialize in the one song he made famous, but incidentally will dispense other tunes outside the evangelistic line, such as "The Last Long Mile" and "Good Morning, Mr. Zip-Zip-Zip."

REGISTRATION AIDS ARE READY FOR DAY

Lowell men who have volunteered as assistant draft registrars for the registration to be held here Thursday, met last evening in city hall and discussed plans for the work. James J. Gallagher presided at the meeting. The fact that men must register in the precinct where they live was emphasized. The Lowell Greek community offered the use of the basement of the Greek church for the registration of men in that district and the offer was accepted.

Registrars were assigned to the various precincts, the basis of allotment, in most instances, being the location of the registrars' home.

The central registration committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in city hall to make final arrangements.

MISS NASH STARTS FOR CAMP MERRITT

Miss Annie M. Nash, a graduate of St. John's hospital and one of the best known nurses in Lowell, left today for Camp Merritt, New Jersey, to serve as an army Red Cross nurse. Miss Nash has been stationed at the North Reading sanitarium for some time past. She has served for two years as president of the Nurses' Alumnae association of St. John's.

DENTISTS NOT EXEMPT

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—A ruling from Provost Marshal General Crowder has been made public by the Fraternity League of American Dentists, composed of 17,000 dentists, who for almost a year have been doing free work to prepare drafted men for camp. General Crowder has stated that officials and members of the Preparedness League shall not be exempt from draft even though they are members of Medical Advisory boards and giving their service gratis to the soldiers.

When John Elbridge Mitchell of Winthrop, Me., went into the service, his sister, Miss Thelma, promptly went to work in her father's garage. He says that on certain kinds of work she is as good as any man he knows. With the assistance of another helper, Miss Mitchell put into running order an automobile 10 years old that had been cast aside as worthless.

LITTLE GRAY SHOPS

DRACUT'S NEW MILL

Merrimack Woolen Company's Addition May Be Done Before Winter

The addition to the factory owned by the Merrimack Woolen Co. at the Navy Yard, Dracut, is fast materializing. The walls are mounting higher and higher every day and it is expected that the structure will be finished in a short time. The new building will alleviate the crowded condition of the factory and incidentally will cost a tidy sum—between $30,000 and $35,000.

Chicken thieves are reported as operating in the vicinity of Dracut. Several residents of the Collinsville section have had their hen houses visited during the night and in one case at least, the thieves got away with a lot of valuable chickens. It behooves the police of the town to make some attempt to put a stop to the depredations.

David Sorenson and family have changed their place of residence from Dingley street to Riverside street. Mrs. Margaret Dingley of Dingley st. is seriously ill at her home.

Andrew J. McGarry, proprietor of the Ideal market, is at his place of business again after an enforced absence caused by a bad cut which he received when a tonic bottle which he held in his hand, exploded.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE

DURHAM, N. H., Sept. 10.—President R. D. Heigel of New Hampshire college announced today that college would open this year for men Sept. 25, and for women, Oct. 1. The delay in resuming the women's classes is caused by the fact that the college has accepted the offer of the war department to establish here at once a unit of the students' army training corps.

100 SAILORS SUFFER FROM INFLUENZA

BROOKLINE, Sept. 10.—Nearly 100 sailors of the merchant marine suffering from influenza, who have been stationed aboard training vessels in Boston harbor, were removed for treatment today to tents pitched on the summit of Corey Hill, which forms a part of the grounds of Brooks hospital. Strenuous efforts are being made to prevent the further spread of the disease. Many cases have been reported from men in the navy stationed in this vicinity.

TO LIMIT OUTPUT OF WHITE THREAD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Manufacturers of cotton thread were directed by the war industries board to limit output of white thread to 14 sizes, of black to seven and of colored to one, with all spools of the smallest practical diameter for 200 yards.

N. E. BOOKMEN WILL GET SOLDIERS' BOOKS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—New England library leaders interested in the raising of $3,500,000, the quota of the American Library association in the United War work campaign, met yesterday in the Boston public library. J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., appointed by Secretary Baker a member of the war work council, presided.

Mr. Coolidge referred briefly to the second library war fund campaign and the satisfaction among librarians that this is to be a united campaign of welfare associations, including the six New England states. The campaign will open Nov. 1.

WILKES WAMBOLT, NATIONAL CAMPAIGN DIRECTOR, BRIEFLY OUTLINED THE PLANS FOR ORGANIZATION. EDWARD M. HUNTRESS, WHO WILL DIRECT THE CAMPAIGN IN NEW ENGLAND, EMPHASIZED THE NEED OF CO-OPERATED ACTION. HE SAID THE ORGANIZATION would be represented in every town and city by teams. Dr. M. L. Ranney, in charge of the overseas services of the American Library association, spoke of services established abroad, and of the need for enlargement.

Dr. Ranney said England has spent $10,000,000 for books for war service. France is also active in providing books for soldiers in the trenches and Germany has provided traveling libraries. In the past 10 months 43 military camps have been equipped with American library buildings, each containing 30,000 volumes.

Books have been sent to 284 small units. Even foresters in a remote place in Northern Scotland have been provided with books. There has been a great demand, he said, for technical books.

WILLIAM J. KILLOY IS NOW ARMY SERGEANT

Friends of William J. Killoy, son of Patrolman William H. Killoy, 23 Rockdale avenue, will be interested to learn that the young man, now serving overseas with the army in France, has recently been promoted to sergeant.

ENVELOPE INDUSTRY IS PLACED AT DISPOSAL OF THE GOVERNMENT

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Fifty leading manufacturers, representing 90 per cent of the envelope industry of the country, at a special meeting of the American Envelope Manufacturers' association and the bureau of envelope manufacturers here yesterday placed their resources at the disposal of the government.

ARTHUR E. HOLDER

Machinist Who Is Helping to Put Uncle Sam's Labor on Sound Footing

BY ROGER W. BABSON
(Famous Writer on Labor and Economics)

If you step in at the Washington office of the federal board of vocational education and ask for Arthur E. Holder, you will see a man a bit over 60 years of age, who is looked up to by 150,000 machinists as the best type of man which the International Machinists' union can contribute to the nation.

Holder has had his present job for just about a year, for he was appointed by President Wilson in July, 1917.

That is not, however, his first experience in Washington. Since 1904 he has spent most of his time here: first as associate editor of the Machinists' Journal, and since 1906 as a member of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor.

His record in this work was remarkable. During ten years he helped secure the passage of 118 separate pieces of legislation favorable to labor, to defeat six unfavorable laws and to bring it to pass that not one unfavorable law was enacted. When it is remembered that this work was accomplished in the face of the most strenuous activity on the part of the National Association of Manufacturers and of the railroad companies, the performance becomes noteworthy.

Of course Holder went to Washington with previous experience which trained him for his Washington successes. In Iowa he was active in politics, was deputy commissioner of labor, was the state's first factory inspector, and soon after coming to Washington he was sent by the United States bureau of labor statistics to Europe to make a thorough study of compensation, relation, conciliation and arbitration laws in England and on the continent.

Who is this man and what are his antecedents?

Well, he is just an ordinary working man. He was born in 1860, left an orphan in 1874, apprenticed at the age of fourteen after but eight years of elementary schooling, and from that into work.

But he did more than work. He went to night school to round out his education. In two years he was certified as a journeyman machinist and went to work on ship board, both in the naval and merchant marine service, as an engineer. After this he was on shore, at work in ship yards, locomotive repair work and in general machinist work. He gained much knowledge by going from place to place and getting contact with different men and various conditions.

His labor union membership covers forty-three consecutive years. He was in the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the Knights of Labor and for the past twenty years in the great International Machinists' union, with its 150,000 members—one of the largest and best of the trade unions affiliated with the A. F. of L.

He was for three years president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor. During this time he went up and down the state speaking and organizing unions, largely at his own expense, and succeeded in forming over 300 new locals.

He is a man who would have made his mark in any calling he might have chosen. He has a discriminating and judicial type of mind. In the past eight years he has been a member of the legal committee of the machinists' union, most of the times chairman. The laws of the union were completely rewritten during his term of office, and they are now taken as model trade union laws by many unions seeking new bases of organization.

This is the type of labor men that President Wilson is choosing to assist in putting the labor work of the United States on a sound and just footing. The Machinists' International feels a just pride in the fact that they have made this contribution of Arthur E. Holder to the common cause of labor, and the country itself is fortunate in that men of this type are being developed—men who see labor's side and who have in addition sufficient mental grasp to take hold of large matters in a large way.

"Is Mr. Littlefield in?" asked a man who rang a doorbell at 67 Eastern av. August 1, 1918. In another moment James Alexander of Camden and Miss W. Littlefield of Augusta, two old naval cronies of the Civil war, met for the first time in 53 years. They were both sailors on the monitor Monitor, which took part in the battle of Fort Fisher, and they sat down and talked over for two hours the naval incidents of 1864. Both are 75 years of age.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Michael Sabo of Goshen, Mass., and Miss Ruth Woodbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Woodbury of 44 Osgood street, were married last evening at the home of the bride, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Walter E. Woodbury, a brother of the bride and pastor of the Worthen Street Baptist church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ida Woodbury as bridesmaid and Mrs. Norris E. Woodbury as maid of honor. The best man was a brother of the bride, Mr. Norris E. Woodbury. The happy couple will make their home at Goshen, Mass.

How About Your Danger Zone?

YOU'VE got it—every human being is born with it—your large intestine, or colon. It is a large tube—a reservoir or sewer—intended to collect waste matter and remove it from the body.

Plug it up with waste, neglect it, and you're sick on your feet. The waste matter stagnates, undergoes decay, fermentation and germ action. Dangerous poisons are produced, that can easily be absorbed and carried all over the body.

Allow constipation to become established, and you are liable to become definitely and miserably sick—and not on your feet either. You have broken Nature's laws.

Better be kind to her. Keep the danger zone clean, with a regular bowel movement, and Nature will thank you, and pay you back in gold coin—health, good nature, and a feeling of eagerness for your daily task.

A large proportion of almost every form of sickness is caused or made worse by the poisons produced as a result of constipation.

Nujol has the approval of established medical practice, because it does not upset the system as do pills, castor oil and purgative mineral waters, salts, etc. It softens the contents of the colon, making them easy for the intestinal muscles to move at regular hours. Don't fight Nature. Help her. Nujol is health insurance for tens of thousands of American families today. Sold at drug stores everywhere.

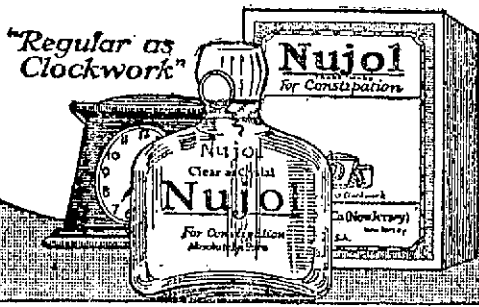

Warning:

NUJOL is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. Insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

HARBIN, Manchuria, August 16.—"Go to Siberia! Write full particulars of situation there!" In Mukden, Manchuria, I got that cable from my home office in the United States. I had been on my way to Peking. But—people ordered to Siberia always go. I went! Out of contentment into chaos.

All day I traveled northward over the fertile Manchurian plain in one of the world's finest trains, the South Manchurian express, pride of Japan's colonial railway management. Under the bright sun the Chinese farmers worked—six, eight, ten to a field. Flow peaceful that pastoral scene was!

American Outpost in Siberia.

By evening confusion and haze began. At Chang-Chun, half way to Harbin, the rain was a flood. Through it I grasped at a straw, a man in khaki, outpost of America, lieutenant in the American railway engineers corps serving in Russia.

At midnight I was on "Russian soil"—Russian railway coach under Russian sovereignty. The lieutenant had fought a way for us through the noisy, twisting mass of Chinese, Russians and Japanese jamming the dimly-lit Chang-Chun station platform. In the coach he had seized a compartment for us—fought for it.

It was almost pitch dark inside the coach. We couldn't see the lieutenant's face as we bade him goodby. A tallow candle, high in a lantern frame, cast just enough light to reveal two bare bunks. No pillows! No bedding! Plenty of dirt!

Russian Anarchy Begins

We locked the door, folded our wet raincoats into pillows, wrapped in blankets the lieutenant had given us, and lay down. Japanese and Korean trains had never been even a minute late. This train, made up here, was starting more than an hour behind time.

Japanese order had ended. Here began the Russian-run Chinese Eastern railroad, link in the Trans-Siberian. The coach was Russia, and Russia was anarchy.

Pounding at the door awakened us three times. Twice it was passport examination. Heavily-bearded Russian officials scowled over our papers. Something was wrong. They spoke no English, I no Russian. We would be arrested? Or just thrown off? They heaved back the passport. Safe again!

Then other passengers tried to force their way into the compartment. We pushed them out by force, locked

To Be Sold to the Highest Bidder

FRIDAY, SEPT. 13th, AT 11 A. M.

For the purchase of the remains of the Old Bartlett School, located at the corner of Clark Street and Hancock Avenue, which was destroyed by fire some time ago.

The building will be sold exclusive of the land and must be torn down and moved from the premises immediately. The walls are in a dangerous condition and owing to this fact it is made a condition of the sale that they be demolished during the week ending September 21st.

Each bid must be accompanied by cash or check amounting to 10 per cent of the bid as a guarantee of good faith; said amount to be forfeited to the City of Lowell should the successful bidder fail to pay the balance on or before Sept. 16th.

Per order,
FRANCIS A. WARNOCK, Commissioner.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

D. K. KEITH'S THEATRE

Dooley & Sales, that inimitable pair, are back in Lowell again with all their fascinating spirit of fun and whimsicality and they easily lead an excellent comedy bill being presented at D. K. Keith's theatre this week.

Even the casual patron of local vaudeville is quite familiar with Dooley & Sales. They are old-timers in the sense that they have been here before, but the application applies no further. Every line of their "stunt" is bright and new and pregnant with wit that is really unique. Many comedy men have said the same things, acted in seemingly the same manner as J. Francis Dooley, but not one has attained the results that Dooley has. Many

Therein lies the principal reason for the success of the pair. They are different. Last evening Dooley had a lot to say about registration day next Thursday and when Miss Sales complained in her very best Irishman that she had a sprained wrist, Dooley came back strong with the remark that she was attempting to "claim exemption." Then the couple sang—and either of them can sing—or told jokes that one never heard before and finally brought "Billy" Gilmore into the argument. Running through it all was an unmistakable vein of personality which made you feel that you had known the couple for years. That lovable, retortant phrase of Miss Sales, which has given the act its title, "Will you, Jim?" is pronounced at the appropriate moment a number of times while the couple are on the stage and each presentation draws forth a bigger laugh. If you've seen Dooley & Sales, you know what they are; if not, get busy.

The Boyer company of Russian dancers is another high light on the week's program. There are four men and three women in the company and they present one of the best Russian dancing acts that Lowell has seen for some time. Vigorous, speedy and at times approaching the seemingly impossible, the various numbers are gone through with the skill and precision that denote real artists. The native earth and appropriate scenery play no small part in the success of the affair. Incidentally the introductory singing of the septette is exceptionally well done.

Russell Mack and Blanche Vincent are somewhat along the Dooley-Sales type, but not unpleasantly so. Mack is very young and slender, has a good voice and most prominent of all, is a real "character" man. Without doubt he has made a study of those whom he imitates and happily, he has confined himself almost wholly to their lighter sides.

His Hebrew impersonations are excellent and last evening he brought down the house with his monologue about a colored soldier about to go overseas. A little bit of pathos was introduced, but merely a sprinkling. Comedy is predominant in his every move. Miss Vincent plays the piano well and makes an excellent partner for Mack.

Moran and Wiser present a comedy half-throwing act in which the people in the audience take almost as active a part as do the men themselves. They were more than enjoyed last evening.

Slagic—with its funny side uppermost—forms the nucleus of the offering of the Myrtle Hanson Trio, a man and two women. The man does the magic, talks volubly and makes himself generally likeable. The girls sing and dance.

Nora Johnson is a light-haired, slender little girl who has an excellent voice and knows how to use it. She sings classics and popular war songs and does it in a winning manner.

Reynolds & White provide an excellent opening act. Chester Conklin in "His First False Step" is the comedy picture and the B. F. Keith pictorial of current events is filled with timely views.

THE STRAND THEATRE

The big events at the Strand theatre for the first three days of the week are two of the latest film offerings by the Metro and World Film corporations, "Tother Dear Charmer" and "In Judgment Of." Louise Huff is being featured in the former, while the stellar roles in the latter are being sustained by Anna Nilsson and Franklyn Farnum.

The story of "Tother Dear Charmer" deals with a young woman who has become interested in Red Cross work and a young American aviator, who is back home recovering from wounds. The young man falls in love with the young woman, who masquerades as a young French maid in order to meet the aviator. The aviator falls in love with the French maid and she encourages his advances without once letting him know her true identity. The complications that follow are mighty interesting, and of course all ends well.

present day events, to unfold its theme would be taking away much of its entertaining power for those who anticipate a visit to the theatre. Be it said, however, that the play is a very interesting one and one that is sure to please everyone.

In addition to these highly entertaining plays there is also the Pathé Weekly, which contains pictures of the latest phases of army and navy life. The allied war pictures show actual scenes taken on the battle front in France, Belgium and Italy, and they give an intimation of the good work accomplished by the allies during the recent drive. The American soldiers are also shown to advantage.

The comedy is one of the side-splitting kind. Miss Ethel Walcott Koss is the soloist for the week and her singing is very pleasing. The bill is one of exceptional value and must be taken in to be enjoyed.

RULES OF EXEMPTIONS IN INDUSTRIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The new priorities classification of industry announced yesterday by the War Industries Board will not bind district draft boards in determining deferred classification on occupation grounds of men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, who are to register Thursday.

The boards may determine that other industries are necessary, but in granting deferred classification, they must satisfy themselves that the industry is necessary, and further, that the individual registrant is essential to the industry.

These facts were disclosed by Provost Marshal General Crowders' plans for applying a more liberal occupational exemption scheme in classifying the new registrants, which was made yesterday, with the complete text of the amended draft regulations and a supplement to the questionnaire explaining to registrants the sections in which facts relating to their classification should be noted.

The regulations provide that the advisory committee of three to each district board, one to be named by the department of labor, one by the department of agriculture, and the third by the board itself, may introduce at hearings on deferred classification, the war industries board priorities list, but adds:

"Such lists shall not be regarded as binding upon the district board in its conclusions as to whether or not any particular industry, occupation or employment, including agriculture, is a necessary industry, occupation or employment within the meaning of the law and regulations, nor shall such lists prevent the district board from holding as necessary any industry, occupation or employment, including agriculture, not contained therein. Such preference lists and other facts and information in the possession of such advisers will supplement the information in possession of the district boards, and will also be used to assist the district boards in dealing with specific cases."

Detailing the method boards are to follow, the regulations say a registrant shall be considered entitled to exemption only when "completely engaged" in an occupation the board classifies as essential; when his removal would result in substantial damage to the enterprise, and when the available supply of persons competent in the capacity is such that the registrant cannot be replaced without direct, substantial, material loss and detriment to the effective operation of the enterprise."

New Boilers

believed that the work can be completed within a month.

It was also voted to transfer the title plot of land at the junction of Nesmith and Rogers streets, which belongs to the city from the department of public property to the park department. It is planned to improve the appearance of the land.

Meeting in Detail

The meeting was called at 10.13. Commissioners Morse and Warnock were absent.

The petitions of J. E. Conant & Co. to store gasoline at 332 Central street, and that of Mary E. Renaud for gasoline at Marshall and Grand streets, were held over for a hearing Oct. 1.

Mayor Thompson then announced the lowest bidders for the installation of new boilers in the basement of city hall and said that Commissioner Warnock had drawn up contracts as he had been previously instructed. The Scannell boiler works was awarded the contract for two 72-inch boilers. A complete set of castings, fittings, etc., will be provided and the boilers will be delivered in the rear of city hall.

Farrell & Conaton were awarded the contract for steam fitting work, taking down old pipes and putting up all new pipes. The cost will be $3795.

D. H. Walker was awarded the contract for taking down the old brick work surrounding the old boilers, getting the new boilers in the cellar, removing the old ones and repairing whatever damage may be done. The cost will be $2955.

Old Bartlett School

Commissioner Warnock was granted permission to call for bids for the selling and tearing down of the old Bartlett school which was recently burned. The land is to remain the property of the city.

It was voted to transfer the plot of land at Nesmith and Rogers street from the department of public property to the park department. The mayor explained that at present the land is ill-kept and is more or less of a dumping ground. Supt. Kernan of the park department said that inasmuch as his department had no employment as his department, it would be an easy matter to have them keep it in condition.

Upon recommendation of the city solicitor and after investigation by the mayor, it was voted to pay the sum of $100 to Thomas G. Beckford of Chelmsford for personal injuries sustained Sept. 13, 1916, when he tripped over railroad ties in Chelmsford street as he was about to board a car. The ties were placed there by the city and it is claimed that there were no lights there.

An order introduced by Commissioner Donnelly calling a meeting of voters for primaries Sept. 24, for the purpose of nominating state officials was passed. The polls are to be open from noon until 9 p. m.

The petition of John Palos to store gasoline at 5 and 7 Sargent street was not granted and on recommendation of Commissioner Brown, was he was given leave to withdraw.

The report of Commissioner Morse on the petition of Max L. Cariz that a sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Highland avenue was accepted and the accompanying order adopted.

Reports from Commissioner Brown on the following petitions for garage or gasoline licenses were accepted and the licenses granted: Thompson Hardware Co., Clapp Stable & Garage Co., 506 Middlesex street; Louis Poissant, 138 Dalton street; William H. Saunders, 139 Methuen street; Alphonse Bibault, 21 Wilder avenue; Emil C. Pearson, 334 Stevens street; Charles E. Cooke, 245 Pine street.

The claim of Arthur J. Herbert for injuries sustained by his son, Arthur J. Herbert, at the Lincoln school playground Aug. 13, was referred to the law department.

Upon recommendation of Commissioner Brown, the petition of Green & Silverblatt for garage and gasoline at 756 Westford street was given leave to withdraw.

The petition of Arthur Phornari of 83 Swift street for garage which had previously been given leave to withdraw, was brought up again and granted. A mistake in the address was the cause of the original petition being given leave to withdraw. Adjourned at 10.45 until next Tuesday at 10 a. m.

SEVEN ARRESTED AT THE DEBS TRIAL

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10.—The speed with which a jury was selected and the arrest of seven persons in the court room for applauding the peroration of Seymour Stedman, attorney for the defense, were features of the opening of the trial of Eugene V. Debs yesterday on five counts of an indictment charging violation of the espionage act.

Rose Pastor Stokes was among those who admitted applauding, and was arrested on orders from the bench by Judge D. C. Westenhaver. The others were M. S. Basista, Max Slopech, Margaret Prevey of Akron, O., who is on Debs' bond, Frank Wells, Edgar Delaney and J. J. Fried.

The offenders apparently were carried off their feet by the eloquence of Stedman's opening, which in all occupied only 30 minutes.

Judge Westenhaver, however, exceedingly wrath, saw in it only a deliberate contempt of court, remarking that in all his experience he had never known so flagrant a case. Later he said that perhaps he had been unduly vexed, but even then only allowed the couplets their liberty on their personal recognition instead of on his. He ordered them to appear before him a half hour in advance of the resumption of the trial.

F. B. Kavanagh, for the prosecution, observed in his opening that the jury should judge Debs "by his works." Stedman accepted the def., saying: "The defense accepts the challenge. You shall know him by his works—by the works of his whole life." He sat down amid applause.

The judge was a full minute in grasping the incident. Then, recovering, he addressed the bailiff in a voice that quivered with anger: "Bring that man in the brown coat standing to the left of the doorway to the bench. Bring any others that you saw clapping their hands."

In a moment the seven were before the bar, among them Mrs. Stokes, the factory girl who became the wife of the millionaire socialist of New York, J. G. Phelps Stokes. She answered quietly when questioned: "Yes, I applauded." The others made various excuses.

Stedman and W. R. Cunnea argued earnestly against holding the culprits. It took only 3 hours and 15 minutes to obtain a jury, all old men and mostly men of property. Mr. Stedman said it was not the kind of jury he would have chosen, but the judge's instructions admitted of little latitude in challenging for cause. Only two men were dismissed in this manner, both confessing that it would be difficult to dislodge their prejudice against anyone opposing the government, however slightly, in any of its war measures.

In the government opening Debs was said to have held the army, the navy and the uniform up to ridicule and made remarks calculated to promote insubordination and attempted to propagate obstruction to the draft.

The case may go to the jury in a week or 10 days, as two days, it is believed, will suffice for the government witnesses. The first witnesses today will be two stenographers who took down Debs' remarks at Canton.

Seven Persons Fined

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 10.—Judge D. C. Westenhaver administered fines at the opening of the Debs trial today to the seven persons who applauded in court yesterday. Rose Pastor Stokes, Mrs. Margaret Prevey and J. J. Fried were fined $25 and the others $10. Mrs. Stokes and Mrs. Prevey at first insisted they would go to jail as a matter of principle, but friends argued them out of it.

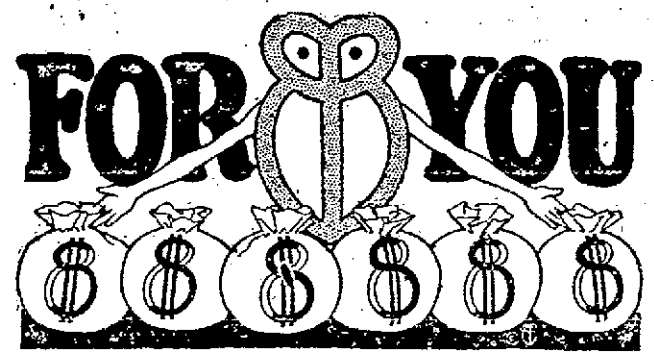

The government then began the introduction of evidence in its attempt to prove that Eugene V. Debs violated the espionage act in a speech at Canton, Ohio, June 16.

SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

Republican leaders are out to elect a majority of their party to the national house and senate in the fall campaign. Their claim is, that the republican party can conduct the war and serve the interests of the country much better than can the democratic party. The republicans lay claim to a monopoly in men of calibre and patriotism, although there is nothing in the action of their officials at Washington to support any such claim. They are still posing as the only genuinely patriotic party on account of their record in the Civil war. Most of the men who figured in the Civil war are now either dead or too old for active duty, but why not take the Spanish-American war which is more recent and the features of which are still fresh in the minds of people throughout this country.

It appears that the Spanish-American war is not put forward by the republicans as offering anything to their credit and for very good reasons. The war was won, it is true, but why should not the United States easily conquer such an impotent foe. It has not been forgotten that severe and well founded criticism was given nation wide publicity during that war. One of the things most notably complained of was the lack of sanitation which caused the death of a great many more soldiers than were killed in battle. The "embalmed beef" episode also showed the character of the policies adopted by the republican administration of that day. There was unquestionable proof of extravagance, of defective ammunition, of scarcity of equipment, want of coordination and many other evils discussed in the press at the time.

If the republican administration of that day did not cover itself with glory, why should it be expected to do so now?

So far as the Wilson administration has gone it has a record of wonderful achievement, not only since the war started but before. If the administration had not enacted many reform measures before this nation entered the war, we should never have been able to do what we have done without panics and economic upheavals of the very worst type. Thanks to the federal reserve banking law, the shipping bill which republicans opposed, and other measures of a very important character, the government has been able to command the entire resources of the nation in conducting the war. Starting without any previous preparation the progress made has astonished the world.

When Secretary Baker told the United States senate that he would have half a million men in France early last summer he was laughed at and told that he was trying to lull the country to sleep. But Mr. Baker more than made good his word and before the end of the summer he had three times that number of men in France. He got his army to France in time to meet the Germans at the Marne and to turn the tide of battle which they did in driving the enemy back at Chateau-Thierry. The achievements of the Americans since July 18 have reflected lustre upon the nation they represent and we predict that in the near future the men of the American army will bring even greater glory to themselves and the United States.

During the Spanish-American war there was a cry in favor of supporting the president and the administration. That was a patriotic cry and if applicable then it should certainly be more so in the present case, while we are involved in a war immeasurably greater than our little affair with Spain.

"Support the president" is a campaign slogan that should be given effect in all the congressional elections to take place this fall. President Wilson has proved most worthy of the nation's support and he can be safely entrusted to use the resources of the nation to the best advantage in winning the war, overthrowing the German menace and reasserting our rights upon the high seas which were so flagrantly violated by Germany.

We believe that the people of this nation are thoroughly in accord with President Wilson and that they will uphold his policies and his administration by electing members of congress who will give him their loyal support in conducting the war to a glorious finish. To do anything else, especially to send men to congress who would obstruct and offer aid and comfort to the enemy by unfair criticism, would, in our judgment, serve only to prolong the war, to weaken our efforts and make us ridiculous in the eyes of the world.

MR. McADOO'S VISIT

The flying visit of Secretary McAdoo on Saturday was rather a surprise to the people of New England. He came to get a bird's eye view of the improvements being made on the N.Y., N.H. and Hartford R.R. to inspect the Cape Cod canal and judge of its possibilities and the improvements needed, as well as to give attention to the needs of the Boston and Maine system. His announcement that the government would spend $20,000,000 for the rehabilitation of the B. & M. was welcome news to the people of New England and especially to some cities such as Lowell whose industries have been hampered by excessive freight rates and inadequate terminal facilities. We are not prepared to state whether

Mr. McAdoo's plan of financing the improvements will be satisfactory to the stockholders, but upon the face of it, it seems to be all that could be expected at this time. In the first place it has been evident for a considerable time that the state measures provided with a view to putting the Boston & Maine upon a prosperous basis were wholly inadequate. That being so, the offer of Mr. McAdoo may well be welcomed as the only available means of getting the road back to something like what it was before it was wrecked financially and perhaps making it a great deal more efficient from a business standpoint.

REVIEW OF THE WAR

In his review of the four years of war, Frank J. Simonds, the well known war correspondent, gives a keen and logical analysis of the military blunders and errors of judgment by which Germany plunged from one disaster to another.

The first battle of the Marne saved civilization from German domination, but after its consequences were fully known to Germany she repeated the blunder with the result that she met with a more crushing defeat in the second battle of the Marne.

The series of events leading up to the second battle of the Marne and in which the German machine was blocked was due to French prowess and French military genius. That is the view of Mr. Simonds and it is one in which the unbiassed will cordially agree with him.

In all the major details, according to this critic, the second battle of the Marne repeated the first. German strategy was again based upon German psychological decisions and again the German flank was exposed along the river Oureq, and again the French counter stroke ruined the German strategy.

"The Germans could understand a machine," says Mr. Simonds, "but not a man and in the final hour the man mastered the machine. That this should have twice happened at the Marne is one of the rarest of all the coincidences of written history."

As to the outcome of the present drive in which the allies maintain the initiative, Mr. Simonds says that while there is no suggestion of the capture of German armies and no prospect of a general rout the German machine seems unable to bring Foch's offensive to a halt and hold it.

But more briefly the situation is thus summed up:

"The German, after his defeat of Aug. 8, hoped to stand on the old Somme line. Two weeks later, after his defeat between Bapaume and Arras he hoped to stand at the Hindenburg line. His defeat this week destroys this hope. His next stand must be at the frontier."

It must be expected that unfavorable weather will interfere with the allied offensive; but in spite of this, it may be assumed that the drive against the enemy will continue and that before the cold weather sets in, the Germans will have been driven from all the principal strongholds yet in their possession in France, while they may also be forced to abandon part of the territory held along the Belgian coast and now utilized for naval bases. Moreover, it is predicted that a drive of large proportions will be made by the Americans under General Pershing. Just what form or direction that will take is uncertain; but with the large army now available and all made up of fresh men eager for the fray, some great achievement is expected of them in the near future.

It is not too much to expect that the Germans will have to defend their own territory before the depth of winter.

VICTORY FLOUR

"Victory Flour" is the title of the flour prepared under the government formula providing for the 20 per cent substitutes for wheat flour. Under the old arrangement, it has been found that some who did not consider the expense, used only wheat flour for bread and hoarded their substitutes. After the war they should have a large assortment of such substitutes; but the food administrators are getting wise to these slackers and for their benefit the Victory Flour has been provided. It is still permissible to buy the wheat flour and substitutes separately and mix them at home; but those who buy the Victory Flour will be saved the trouble of mixing and will never be suspected of cheating the government or the war stricken people whom we have promised to supply with bread.

SAVING GASOLINE

The conservation of gasoline has practically cleared the highways of motor traffic on the last two Sundays and those who have been accustomed to horse drawn carriages are looking around to find where such are now available. There is no prohibition upon Sunday drives behind a good old family horse or even a spirited pair such as B. B. Conant and some other prominent citizens used to bring out upon public streets.

Some of the automobile men feel that they are under unfair discrimination in losing their Sunday business while at the same time having to pay heavy taxes with still heavier in prospect. They are willing to comply with any reasonable request but hope that there will be an equitable distribution of burdens in the line of conservation as well as in the matter of taxation.

WAR FATTENED

The motormen come forward with an argument in their own defense to the effect that by abandoning motor traffic on Sunday, the people will resort to the street railways and the steam railroads, thus making a much greater draft upon the supply of coal, used to produce electricity and steam. There is a point here whose importance it is not easy to determine. It is not likely, however, that the people who have been accustomed to ride in automobiles on Sundays will deny themselves the pleasure of the modes of conveyance on which there is no interdiction. These are the various electric lines and railroads. It is possible that in this way the government might lose nearly as much as it gained by putting a stop to Sunday motoring.

THE LUDENDORFF LINE

The Hindenburg line has been crossed and the next halt for the Germans will be the "Ludendorff line." Where will that be located? Will it be at the frontier or back at the Rhine? Joshua prayed that the sun might stand until he should conquer in battle and so the allies might well pray that summer would last until they conquer the Germans. Seldom in history has an offensive been so long continued as that now in progress by the allies under the direction of General Foch. If the weather holds out long enough the allies may be able to drive the enemy to the Rhine before he can make a successful stand.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is the charitable thing if you "lay off," making any remark intended to be humorous, because one of your friends still wears his straw hat. It's not that he loves a felt hat the less but his $5 bill the more.

Now the question is whether, in the light of registration day coming upon us this week Thursday, will some of us be tagged by Uncle Sam. If the business of making wills for men will perk up.

It is coolish weather, so to speak, but our foliage is still green and the German hand of mean, old Jack Frost has not yet descended on the trees and outdoor plants although the thrifty woman, I notice, covers her beloved plants these nights.

What is one man's poison is another man's meat was never probably better exemplified than in the case of the U.S. Cartridge workers getting that 27 per cent increase which recently was granted them and is many weeks retroactive.

You want to remember, and you can take it as advice coming from all who have had experience, that when you ask a Bay State street railroad man the time of arrival or departure of some of the company's cars, his answer, although he may think of it as being so, in reality, is in the nature of a guess.

Packages for Soldiers Abroad

No packages for United States soldiers overseas are accepted except upon an order from an officer of the rank of major or above connected with the particular unit with which the soldier is serving. In order to send a package to your son in France he would have to secure such an order as referred to and have it transmitted to you. The demand for cargo space on United States transports is so great that the government has been obliged to place this restriction on packages for soldiers abroad.

Poem by a Soldier

(Reprinted from Trench and Camp)
If you think you are beaten, you are,
If you think that you dare not, you don't.
If you think you're like to win, but you don't think you can,
It's almost a cinch, you won't.
If you think you'll lose, you've lost,
For out in the world you find
Success begins with a 'fellow's will';
It's all in the state of mind.
Pull man, a race is lost
Ere even a step is run,
And many a coward fails
Ere even his work's begun.
Think big, and your deeds will grow;
Think small, and you'll fall behind.
Think that you can, and you will;
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you're outclassed, you are,
You've got to think high to rise;
Before
You can ever win a prize.
Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the fellow who thinks he can.

Remember the Sabbath

Virginia and Eldridge are being brought up to regard the Sabbath as different from other days. Boisterous, everyday games are taboo, and their activities are restricted to their own lawn and garden. Recently, however, their mother yielded to the pleadings of the children of a friend and allowed them to spend a Sunday afternoon away from home.

The friend's children were evidently not hampered by any Sabbatharian restrictions, and when playtime was over two much disheveled but radiant children rushed breathlessly home. Virginia announced as they came up the path:

"O, mother dear, Eldridge and I have had a beautifully sinful time!"—Harper's Weekly.

She Builds Ships

Mrs. G. Underwood of Vancouver, Wash., has two sons in the army. Realizing the nation's great need of ships to supply the soldiers in France, she entered a shipyard and is working there every weekday as a caller.

She is head of a group of five and directs them very efficiently. One day when her four assistants failed to put in an appearance, Mrs. Underwood operated the calking machinery alone and did so well that she almost proved her assistants to be non-essential. Rather than take another chance, they are appearing promptly every day to aid her in the work for the boys abroad.

A Very Old Alibi

Lawyers, bankers and brokers have long laughed and chuckled over the many curious and ingenious excuses given for disclaiming responsibility for notes of hand by those signing them. The excuse that one's signature was obtained through ignorance and by unlawful methods is not in any sense unique, as the following notice published in the Haverhill Gazette of July 11, 1799, proves:

Whereas
My son-in-law, Mr. Peter Whitaker, did on Friday last, obtain from me in an unlawful and unprecedented manner, a Note of hand, with my mark thereon, for Two Hundred Dollars (as he saith); nor was at that time sound in mind, which he well knew. The said Note was for no value received—I therefore am constrained in this public manner to forewarn all persons from purchasing the said Note, or having anything to do with it, as I am determined never to pay it or any part thereof.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

I know a young woman employed in one of the plants in this city engaged in war orders, whose pay is $30 a week. She works a nine hour day. Her husband is a drafted man at Camp Devens and gets his pay once in three months. Far from giving any of his pay to his wife, he is now dependent upon her for his spending money, no inconsiderable item owing to the fact that he is consuming, at every opportunity, copious quantities of rum.

Probably between now and Thanksgiving or Christmas our government will ship this young woman's husband over to France and if a shell comes toward him with his name and address on it, this young husband will never come back to Massachusetts or to his old boyhood home in a neighboring state. The two children of this couple, two fine, healthy children, now being boarded out with their board paid for entirely by the mother, will not see their daddy again. "It is war," the French say, but to my mind, blame poor satisfaction to dismiss something sad and unfortunate by crediting its inevitableness to the fact that it is a condition of war.

I congratulated the young woman that in a time when there was so much stress in her family she could earn as excellent a salary as $30 a week as a mechanical worker. "Now," I said, "this war may end as suddenly as it began, in fact there is every reason to suppose it will be so and when it does, heaven! Away will go all the $30 a week jobs for women and many of them the men now hold down. Are you going down any of this money you work so hard to earn now? Can you accumulate a fund against the time when your husband may come back maimed or blind and there will be four persons dependent on just what one little woman like you can earn?"

Here is her answer: "No, I can't save anything even on the $30 a week I earn. It takes all I can earn to support the children and keep my husband in spending money. And, besides, if I am able to save something this fall I have got to get myself some new clothes. In particular, I want a nice set of furs and I am going to get them." Ah well, here you are. The eternal feminine. Wars may come into the world and men shall freely give their blood and their lives. But Missy must have her furs and egad, she will have them if you let her earn money and there are shops where they will exchange faked rabbit skins for munition workers' money. But that is not war. No, that is the eternal feminine for you.

To my mind the best little story we have had in The Sun for quite some time in connection with what Lowell boys are doing overseas is that letter received from Miss Mary Eliza Frazier, printed Saturday. She had been working hard all night in the base hospital, I suppose, waiting on and caring for sick and wounded soldiers. The dawn broke and that part of France stirred to life again, outside the hospital. Probably the Lowell nurse was tired, perhaps homesick and lonesome. Then, as her letter tells her mother, she went to the entrance of the hospital for a breath of fresh morning air and lo and behold, who should she see there, sitting on the doorstep, waiting for the hospital to open its doors, but her brave and sturdy brother, George Frazier, come a visiting her for two days, having obtained a furlough. To my mind even the war correspondents do not send back articles containing more human interest appeal than this letter from the good Lowell nurse.

This morning one of the marble adorned corner lunch rooms here had to serve its breakfast patrons milk or tea, which the English drink with

Its coffee, three big packages of it, is supposed to be on the way here from Bridgeport, headquarters of this chain of restaurants. Presumably the coffee is bought in Bridgeport. Well, the restaurant had no coffee early this morning and many customers went away to some other luncheon because at that early hour the stores where coffee could be bought are not open. This entire paragraph might serve as an object lesson to point out the very old adage that to trade at home is best in the long run. But you can't expect a chain restaurant to do anything as regular as that, though.

MESSAGE BROUGHT BY
RETURNED SOLDIER

Over in France the soldiers of the United States army are known as the smiling Yanks. They have a wonderful spirit of confidence. They accept the fortunes of war with a gay whistle. They sing as they march forth to battle.

It is the consciousness that back home the volunteers of industry are working at full strength to supply every need that imbues the Americans with the splendid courage that makes victory certain. This is the message brought back by Private Charles C. McGonegal, who for seven months has been at the front, where he saw the hardest kind of service. Private McGonegal, Company B, 18th Infantry, which is known as General Pershing's "own," had a chance to find out just what the industrial army means to the army that bears arms. He was a mechanic before he volunteered from North Dakota, in June, 1917, and so he is fitted to pass judgment on the relation of the two armies.

Sitting on the porch of the workshop of Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., Private McGonegal talked with J. F. Hodgson, first class mechanic at the Washington navy yard. It happened that the two men, who represent combatant and non-combatant service in the war, met at the hospital, because Private McGonegal lost both hands, February 2, when he was on duty at an outpost on the French line of defense. German machine gunners made an attack, which was "unlucky," Private McGonegal thinks, for it cut short his service before he had a chance to do more than make a beginning at beating the Huns. But he is still cheerful; he has brought back with him the Yank spirit for which the workers of the country are so largely responsible. And he will soon be able to return to the ranks of the workers—why, he drove a Red Cross ambulance for three weeks before he sailed for home!

"The main idea is that American pluck has put a new slant on the war for the British, French and even the Moroccans," said Private McGonegal. "Those fellows over there have been in the war so long they had begun to think it wasn't ever going to end. Then our troops landed and it all looked different. The thing that made it look so promising was the way we were equipped. We had everything. Our regiments gave them the impression that we had endless stores to draw on and boundless supplies coming right along. Of course, we were proud to have such a welcome as they gave us, but after all it was the workers at home that made us look so good to them. They had been in the war game long enough to know just what labor means to the fighting forces.

"The French soldiers talked a great deal about what the men and women are doing in the shops and factories here in the United States. They had read about volunteers who were working for nothing as regular employees who were taking 50-cent pay and working overtime. Why, those Frenchmen couldn't do enough for us and they would have taken the coats off their backs if any of us had needed them. But we didn't need anything—that was the point. We hadn't thought much about what the hands at the looms, for instance, were doing for us, but the foreign fighters made us realize what we owe to the workers."

Private McGonegal paused to take a lighted cigarette offered by the man from the navy yard, who unconsciously drew his stalwart body to its full height with a sudden access of pride as he said:

"I'm glad to hear you talk that way, for I can tell you the fellow who sticks to his job hasn't an easy time. It takes nerve to stand the gaff when everyone is wondering why you're not in uniform. There doesn't seem to be much glory in just making guns for warships and transports—making guns instead of using them! But from what you say I feel better about it already."

"Why, if you'd been where I've been, you would know you can't lie down on your job for a minute," declared the young soldier. "It seems to me there is something wrong if everyone can't see this as it really is. While every man, woman and child in the United States is doing all that can be done the boys fighting in France can just go on feeding care-free and sure."

Private McGonegal emphasized the "sure" by a stamp of the foot. He is a tall, well-made, good-looking young man with the western freedom of manner. Since that day in February when he fell at the post of duty, he has had plenty of time to think. His

frank face shows that he has formed definite opinions.

"That sounds all right," Hodgson rose and looked out at the soldiers who were limping back and forth between the workshop and the convalescent wards. "But I would be willing to lose a leg if I could have my chance to go to France. I volunteered, of course, but they sent me back to my work."

"That is as it should be and it shows your work must be of some account. What is it?" asked Private McGonegal. Then the mechanic first-class from the navy yard, a man well educated, with the love of his special line of work that proves he has found his right place, explained how he worked in the gun shops—where the men were bending their best energies to produce the most possible in a given time. They all understood that time on some of the gun lathes was worth $100 an hour and that the man who loafed was losing much for the government. Generally, there was no trouble with slackers, although now and then a "greaser" or a "nut-splitter" would try to break in to keep out of the service at the front for which most of the skilled workers were so anxious. Then men in the navy yard, who are not permitted to fight, were saving their money to buy Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. One young fellow in the tool shop had subscribed for $1500 in Liberty Bonds and had paid up the entire amount.

"Making a good gun, it seems to me, measures up to more than one man's usefulness in handling it," commented Private McGonegal. "That's skilled labor of the highest quality."

Mechanic Hodgson agreed that there were delicate operations connected with gun-making when nickel steel was so susceptible to changes of temperature that one degree of change could produce an appreciable expansion, when they measured down to tenths of an inch.

"When I enlisted I was offered $100 a month and my expenses as an automobile mechanic," said the soldier, "and when I volunteered I hoped I might get into the mechanical line or drive a truck, but I was needed in the infantry, even though for entirely too short a time." He smiled. "It is up to the United States to use us men as it seems best and so I have no kick coming."

There was the lesson for the man who had to stick to his job. Private McGonegal, who had given both his hands in the cause of liberty, was satisfied that his country knew best about where he was needed. Mechanic Hodgson saw the point. Not only should the soldier go where he is sent, but the worker should stay where he is of the most use.

"But still I think there should be some way to show that we want to fight," he said. "It isn't right that we should be subjected to insult, or at least misjudgment, because we are not in uniform."

"When a lot more of us return wounded, the public will know where the workers get off," Private McGonegal said. "There's not a man of us on the other side who will not hurrah for labor's part in the war. You ought to see the men who are busy behind the lines. Say, the non-combatants have some dangers to face and some work to do! Right here on this side, too, the boys who are found unfit for foreign service have their chance to be heroes. They are working in munition factories and delivering the goods. Over at American University the other day a boy was making a fuss because he could not go over on account of physical disability, but he was filling gas shells and I think he was about as useful as he would be in the trenches."

It was time for mess. The convalescents, who were learning new vocations, left the shop, hastening as rapidly as was possible for men who had returned from war, because they had done their parts on the battlefields. Some of them whistled. The Yank spirit still ruled them. They had come back to work, to join the industrial army at home and the message they all brought was Private McGonegal's message—that upon the workers the soldiers rely with an abiding confidence. It is the stroke of hammer and whirr of machinery that play the necessary accompaniment to the songs the boys sing as they go forth to victory.

If Germany is boycotted after the war it will not be the first country so treated. In 1885 the British boycotted Bolivia. The then president of the South American republic ill-treated the British minister by tying him on a mule, face to tail, and parading him around the capital. For this offense official England blotted Bolivia off the map and for 35 years it remained ostracized. From a commercial point of view Bolivia was almost ruined.

CONLEY SOME LIAR,
NO DIAMOND THIEF

It was learned today that the grand jury at its recent session in this city found a no bill in the case of Fred Conley, who had been connected with the diamond theft at the restaurant of the D. L. Page Co. in this city a couple of months ago, despite the fact that Conley had confessed to the police that he had stolen the diamonds and had disposed of a part of them in Albany.

It will be remembered that the diamonds were stolen from Page's restaurant in broad daylight, while the salesman in charge of the precious stones was partaking of his dinner. Shortly after the theft, Conley wrote a letter to Supt. Welch, stating that he had the diamonds and that they might get him but they would never recover the goods.

Conley was later arrested in Boston on another charge and confessed to the larceny of the diamonds, but after conducting an investigation the district attorney came to the conclusion that Conley had nothing to do with the theft of the diamonds. Conley who is wanted in Syracuse, N. Y., on a charge of breaking and entering, was sent to that city.

FREE for THIS VISIT

Never before has such an opportunity been given the sick of this vicinity, and if you are suffering, you should not fail to take advantage of it. Those wishing to see him should remember the Days, Dates and Office Hours of his visits and call early to avoid the crowded last hours.

For nearly 15 years I have been studying the Chemistry of food and Chemistry of the human body. I have put these two sciences together and formulated the science of Applied Food Chemistry. By the application of this knowledge I cure all forms of stomach and intestinal diseases, and all other disorders that result from wrong eating and drinking. This method cannot fail because it conforms to the laws of Nature.

It is estimated that ninety-two per cent. of all diseases are caused by errors in eating. These errors are made by wrong selections, wrong combinations, and wrong proportions of food. I teach you how to correct these, how to select, how to combine and how to proportion your food according to your age and your occupation. This cures by removing causes. It gives Nature a chance. This is the true science of human nutrition, and it is governed by laws as infallible as the laws of gravitation. If you obey them you cannot be sick. If you do not obey them you cannot be well.

You have no idea what your body is capable of, until you have it perfectly nourished. You have no idea what your mind is capable of, until it lives in a perfectly nourished body.

You have no idea of the joy of living until every bone, tissue, muscle and organ of the body is brought up to 100% efficiency, which my system does.

If you are sick or have any kind of stomach or intestinal trouble it will require a short term of curative feeding—then I balance the diet so as to give to the body all the elements of nourishment it requires according to your age and your occupation.

If medicine is needed in any case I prescribe only such remedies that do not conflict with the proper diet. I get results and this ends all argument.

Dr. Naughton will positively be at the New American Hotel, Wednesday, Sept. 11th, 1918, from 10.00 o'clock in the morning until 7.00 o'clock in the evening, to consult with and examine all cases personally.

BRIEF BUT IMPORTANT
WIRE DESPATCHES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Reports received by the war council of the American Red Cross disclose that during June the American Red Cross in France distributed 30,000 magazines and 600,000 newspapers in the 130 units of the American army in France and among the hospitals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Information reached here today from a source usually reliable, that Turkey had sent a large force to the border of Bulgaria, where trouble is brewing over division of territorial spoils of war between these two allies of Germany and Austria-Hungary.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 10.—An exchange of views between the central powers and the entente was tentatively suggested by Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, in an address to visiting German newspapermen, according to a Vienna despatch today.

MEN IN DRAFT, JOY RIDE TO LOWELL

Through the kindness of their employers, 11 Lowell men who are employed in a saw mill in the woods 25 miles from Keene, N. H., came to Lowell this morning to register for the draft, which takes in all the male residents of this country between the ages of 18 and 45 inclusive.

Registration day of course has been set for next Thursday, Sept. 12, but inasmuch as the saw mill was shut down for today, the owner devised a scheme by which his employees would get ahead of other registrants and would have their names inscribed on the records of the government a couple of days ahead of the date set for such action.

It seems that there was a breakdown at the mill late yesterday afternoon and the smashup was to such an extent that the plant would have to be closed all day today. The owner of the mill, who is a patriot, called his Lowell employees, who are within the draft age, last night and submitted to them a proposition by which they would come to Lowell and register at his expense. He arranged to have two large touring automobiles convey the 11 Lowell men to this city and they all agreed to the scheme.

Early this morning the automobiles were in readiness and the trip covering a distance of between 55 and 90 miles was undertaken and the 11 men arrived safely in Lowell shortly before 10 o'clock. Upon reaching this city they all repaired to the office of Representative Henry Aclun, who cheerfully informed each member of the party as to where he was to register.

The men were later taken to quarters of the exemption boards of their respective districts and an hour later the names of 11 men from the woods of New Hampshire had been inscribed on the roll of the government and each man had in his possession his registration card. At noon the party were entertained at luncheon at the expense of the employer and early in the afternoon the trip to the New Hampshire town was undertaken.

One of the registrants was seen at city hall by a Sun reporter shortly before noon and he volunteered that the "boss" was second to none in this country. "He is a great man to work for," he continued, "and a true patriot, and such men as he had control of the help there would not be so much labor trouble in this country while the war is on."

SEVIGNY BLAMELESS IN CHILD'S DEATH

Arthur L. Sevigny of this city, was arraigned before Judge Enright at this morning's session of the police court on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mary E. Brown, which occurred Aug. 3, after the child was struck and run over by an automobile operated by Sevigny. The case was dismissed after the court was informed that the finding in the inquest, which was held before Judge Pickman, was to the effect that the death of the child was not caused through criminal negligence on the part of the automobile driver.

The accident occurred in Merrimack street in front of the Bon Marche on Saturday evening, August 3, and according to testimony offered at the inquest, the Brown girl left the sidewalk and ran right into the path of the oncoming automobile, which was being operated by Sevigny, and received injuries that soon afterwards resulted in her death.

Judge Pickman's finding closes with the following paragraph: "I find that on Saturday, the third of August last, about half past seven o'clock in the evening, that an automobile being operated by said Arthur Sevigny on Merrimack street in said Lowell, ran into said Mary E. Brown, who was crossing said Merrimack street in front of said automobile and ran over her whereby she received injuries that soon afterwards caused her death. I find that the death of said Mary E. Brown was not caused or contributed to by the criminal negligence of said Arthur Sevigny, the operator of said automobile, or by the criminal negligence of any other person or persons."

BADEN HURT'S HAND
Frank Baden of 59 South Street and employed at the Hamilton Mfg. Co. had his right hand caught in a mangle machine while at his work shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon and the member was badly mangled. The ambulance was called and the injured man was removed to the Lowell Corporation hospital.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Selling stocks was actively resumed today, increased credit restrictions provoking further liquidation and bear pressure. On individual offerings ranging from 100 to 7500 shares, U. S. Steel reacted a point to 105 1/2. Declines of 1 to 2 points marked the early course of related industrials and equipments; also shipments and speculative specialties. Losses among standard rails also approximated a point, some of these being retrieved before the end of the first half hour.

Liquidation in heavy volume continued during the first hour with U. S. Steel the overshadowing feature at an extreme decline of 1 1/2. Other industrials extended their initial losses, the setback also becoming more general among rails, where extreme losses of 1 to 2 points ruled. Coppers, oils, sugars, tobaccos and the usual minor specialties figured in the reversal. Selling abated before noon, supporting orders causing rallies of substantial fractions to a point. Bonds were not materially affected by the unsettlement of the stock list.

Aside from belated liquidation of such specialties as papers and utilities at 1 to 2 point reactions, selling seemed to expend itself in the afternoon. Recoveries among leaders were well maintained, dullness ensuing on the rally.

Rallies extending to full recoveries in U. S. Steel, Coppers and some of the rails and high priced specialties, marked the later dealings. The close was irregular.

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Most of the leading issues showed a sharp fractional decline during the early trading on the Boston market today. The money situation, particularly the requirement that loans be reported daily, was the chief cause.

LOWELL WILL MOURN
OFFICER ABBOTT

The many friends of Patrolman George S. Abbott will be grieved to learn of his death, which occurred last evening at the Blanchard hospital in Dracut after a lingering illness. He was 45 years of age and was regarded as one of the best police officers of this city. He is survived by his wife, Jennie L., a son, William, a daughter, Mrs. John Lane and his father, William Abbott. The body was removed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sarr, 34 Wilder street, by Undertakers J. P. O'Donnell & Sons.

George Samson Abbott was born in England, July 4, 1873 and came to this city while a young man. On June 15, 1893, he was appointed to the superintendency force and on October 23, 1899 he was promoted to the regular force.

PATROLMAN GEORGE S. ABBOTT

As an officer he was popular with his associates and fellow officers and his superiors found him a careful and dutiful servant in the exercise of his official work and on several occasions he was commended for efficient work. Chief of Police Redmond Walsh, commenting on the death of Patrolman Abbott this morning said he was a very efficient and capable officer. He said he was a steady worker and took great pains in the performance of his duties. He was lenient in some cases and always used the best of judgment in making arrests, and his death will be a great loss to the department.

Mr. Abbott for a great many years and up to the time of his illness several months ago, covered the upper Merrimack street route, where he made a host of friends, for he was of a genial disposition and kind to everybody. He was very fond of children and was a common occurrence to see Patrolman Abbott patrolling his beat accompanied by two or three youngsters. For several years he made his home in Moody street, Pawtucketville. He was a member of the Lowell Police Relief association.

TO STOP SPREAD OF DISEASE IN NAVY

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Naval officials said today that 1109 cases of grip had been reported among the men of the first naval district since August 28. Thirty-six of these cases developed into pneumonia and 20 men died. Every effort was being made by naval physicians the officials said, to stop the spread of the disease and the measures were apparently meeting with success.

The first appearance of the malady was at Commonwealth pier naval station, on August 28. Since then 500 cases have been reported there. The men were at first removed to the naval hospital at Chelsea, but that institution became so crowded that outside hospitals were called upon to aid in the treatment.

Today the naval radio school at Cambridge was placed under quarantine as a precautionary measure and all instruction was suspended. Commanding Officer Nathaniel F. Ayer said a number of the men had heavy colds, which had been expected with the first change in temperature from summer to fall weather.

Reports that the disease prevalent among the men was Spanish influenza was denied at the headquarters of the first naval district.

of Seven Brave Uncles

Philip P. Tibbets, son of Mrs. Mary E. Tibbets of 25 Sawtelle place, has sent word to his mother from France that he has sustained gunshot wounds in his left thigh and is at present a patient in a hospital in France, called the South African hospital.

Tibbets has been attached to the 72d Battalion, Canadian army. He joined the Canadian army, June 15, 1917. He is now 24 years old and when he was about 16 years old served a three-year enlistment in the U. S. navy. His reason for joining the Canadian army instead of the U. S. forces, was probably due in some part to the fact that his mother is a Canadian woman, although Philip was born and reared here in Lowell.

Mrs. Tibbets has also received a letter from her son, Herbert W. Tibbets, a Lowell boy, who at the present time is in the U. S. navy attached to the U. S. S. steamship Von Steuben, an army transport. He wrote from New York and said his vessel was busy going back and forth to Europe and had had wonderfully good luck so far. Herbert W. Tibbets is a man 30 years old and has a wife and two children, living at 25 Sawtelle place. He served three years with the U. S. army in the Philippines and three years with the army at different posts in this country.

These two sons of Mrs. Tibbets come of sturdy old fighting stock for Mrs. Tibbets tells The Sun that seven uncles of these boys lost their lives in the Civil war and all seven served under Gen. B. F. Butler.

RETAILERS GET NEW
FLOUR RULES

Edward Fisher, assistant food administrator of Middlesex county, today gave out the following statement regarding changes in flour rules as relating to sales by retailers. "The new regulations are effective as of Sept. 1. 'Retailers who sell wheat flour must keep on hand at all times, the following substitutes: Corn meal, corn flour, barley flour, pure rye flour. 'If the customers prefer, the retailer may sell the following substitutes: Rice flour, oat flour, potato flour, buckwheat flour, kaffir flour, milo flour, farina flour and meal, peanut flour, bean flour and sweet potato flour. 'No breakfast cereals are now substitutes.

"The proportion has been changed from 50-50 to 30-70, that is, householders may now buy on the basis of four pounds of wheat flour to one pound of substitutes instead of equal amounts as formerly, except in the case of rye flour, in this latter case with every three pounds of wheat flour there must be purchased two pounds of rye flour.

Victory Flour
"It is expected that in the future mixed and graham flours containing at least 20 per cent. of authorized wheat flour substitutes (except rye flour which must contain at least 40 per cent. substitutes), bearing this label, 'Victory Mixed Flour, or Victory Flour,' will be milled and such flour may be sold without substitutes.

REPORT U-BOAT SUNK IN BATTLE OFF COAST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—What apparently is a reliable report that an American tank submarine has sunk a German submarine in a fight off the Atlantic coast reached the navy department today and is being investigated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The claim that their gun crew sank a German submarine of large type 400 miles off Sandy Hook on Sunday morning was made by the captain and crew of an American oil tank ship which arrived here today. The U-boat, according to the mariners, was blown to pieces by a shell which landed squarely on its hull.

The submarine at first mistaken for another tanker, was sighted by the American ship's lookout. It was reported. A moment later, however, its real identity was disclosed and the tank ship, going to the attack at full speed, opened up on the German with 47 inch shells. The German closed in and a 40-minute battle followed in which the American skipper, maneuvering his vessel so as to bring his six-inch stern gun to bear on the U-boat, finally scored the direct hit which finished the enemy. Bodies of the U-boat's crew were seen, according to those on the tanker.

RIOTS IN VIENNA

Advance of Allies Makes Profound Impression on Austria-Hungary

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The continued advance of the entente lines on the battlefield in France, is making a profound impression on Austria-Hungary, says a Zurich despatch to the Evening Star. The recent departures of Austrian troops from Vienna caused riotous scenes in the Austrian capital.

Thousands of angry women, the despatch says, railed the railway stations protesting against the departure of the men.

SPANISH INFLUENZA IS NOT HERE YET

Although a number of cases of Spanish influenza have been reported in various towns and cities about Lowell, the local board of health has not yet had such a case reported and the city, so far, is happily immune. As far as is known, there are no unusual cases of grippe, of which the new disease is evidently a ramification, and there seems little chance of influenza spreading here.

The Harvard Radio school in Cambridge has been quarantined because of the disease and the thousands of men stationed at the Newport naval station will not be allowed to come to Boston because of its prevalence in that section.

Spanish influenza is thought to be merely a new name for a stiff case of what is commonly known as the grippe. It is contagious and easily spread.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN MAINE ELECTION

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 10.—The republicans won a complete victory in the biennial state election in this state yesterday. The completeness of it became more and more apparent early today as returns from isolated communities came to hand. United States Senator Bert M. Fernald, Congressman Louis B. Goodall, Wallace H. White, Jr., John A. Peters and Ira G. Hersey, and Governor Carl E. Milliken, all were re-elected over their democratic opponents by substantial pluralities and in addition the republicans made notable gains in both branches of the legislature and among the sheriffs and county attorneys. The vote for Senator Fernald was even larger than many of his supporters had hoped for and while Governor Milliken ran several thousand behind Fernald and had a plurality considerably reduced from that of two years ago, the stamp of approval placed upon his administration was declared satisfactory by leaders of his party.

With 45 small towns and plantations, largely republican communities, still to be reported today, Fernald's vote stood at 64,552 as against 52,533 for Elmer E. Newbert a plurality of 12,319. The same returns gave Governor Milliken 62,288 and Bertrand G. McIntyre 57,079, a plurality for Milliken of 5219. These figures included the vote of Maine soldiers at Camp Devens. Other army camps had not reported but their votes were expected to be light.

In the congressional contest, three of the four successful candidates made considerable gains over their pluralities of two years ago, the exception being Congressman Hersey in the fourth district. Congressman White in the second district, who was opposed by former Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy, whom he defeated two years ago, increased his plurality from 547 to well over 5500 votes and this in the face of an active democratic campaign. For the state senate, the republicans appeared to have elected 39 of their candidates as against one democrat, a net gain for the republicans of four; while the house the coming year probably will be composed of 112 republicans and 39 democrats, a net republican gain of 14. In addition, 15 republican sheriffs and 15 republican county attorneys were elected as against one democrat in each instance. In Penobscot county, T. Herbert White, who was removed as sheriff by Governor Alden some time ago, ran for the office again on the democratic ticket, but was defeated by Orman B. Fernandez.

Primaries in Vermont
MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 10.—Fair weather prevailed in Vermont today and it was expected that a record vote would be cast in the republican primary election. Three candidates have conducted energetic campaigns for the party nomination, former Lieut. Governor Frank E. Howe of Bennington, and Rufus W. Clement of Rutland. The issue of national prohibition was a factor, Darling and Howe standing for ratification of the prohibition amendment to the constitution with Clement opposed.

on the ballot at the coming state election.

Announcing his decision, however, the judge stated that the question was one which ought to go to the full court at once. He requested both parties to agree to submit briefs on or before Sept. 20 in order that the court may consider the matter when it sits Oct. 7.

He expressed grave doubt, however, whether there

BELGIANS GET NEWS

Grapevine Telegraph of Civil War Days Has Found Its Counterpart in Belgium

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The grapevine telegraph of civil war days seems to have found its counterpart in Belgium, where through mysterious agencies, the people obtain news from the battlefield even before it reaches German officials, who use the most severe repressive measures to prevent the truth being known.

An official report received here shows that the people of Brussels learned in three days of important events on the French front and from that point the news spreads among the provincial towns with marvelous speed. The allied victories cause great joy through occupied Belgium and the German troops there are disconcerted over the prospect of another winter campaign.

ALLOTMENTS

Dependents of Soldiers to Receive Allowance Until Men Officially Reported Dead

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Dependents of soldiers reported missing in action will continue to receive government remittances for allotments and allowances but until the men are officially reported dead, no payments of voluntary insurance or government compensation will be made. So far the war department has not certified any of the missing, which include prisoners taken by the enemy and those killed whose bodies are not recovered, as to be considered dead.

If the mother, father, or other dependent of a wounded or slain soldier lives in Germany, Austria, Turkey or Bulgaria, payment is made to the alien property custodian, to be held until the end of the war, when it will be forwarded.

BOLSHEVIKI IGNORANT OF IDENTITY OF OPPONENTS

ARCHANGEL, Thursday, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Many Bolsheviks engaged against the allies in the north are ignorant as to the identity of forces they are fighting, according to an American official. Some of the returned from the front. Some of the captured Bolsheviks declared their commanders claimed that the soldiers dressed in the uniforms of the allied powers, were only Russian White Guards masquerading. Another prisoner thought he was fighting against the Germans.

At one place the Bolsheviks sent a force of mere boys, 14 to 15 years old to the front under threat of death, unless they fought against the Russo-allied forces.

Fugitives arriving from Vologda after a lengthy, round-about journey brought reports that a reign of terror had been instituted by the Bolsheviks in Vologda and that many persons of the Bourgeoisie class were being executed daily. There is no confirmation of this, however.

U. S. SOLDIERS ARE FOND OF PICKLES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The soldier's fondness for pickles was made known today by the war department, which announced that while 230,000 gallons were required for shipment overseas, it had received bids of less than 100,000. There is a shortage in the sizes specified and to meet this, large pickles will be bought, pending delivery of the new crop.

Because of the vinegar shortage, the quartermaster's corps is studying the advisability of using vinegar made from watermelons, the cost of which is less than the cider brand.

WILLIAM MEEHAN'S FRIENDS GIVE PARTY IN HONOR OF HIS LEAVING FOR ARMY

A farewell party was held last Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Mary Toye, 7 Pike street, in honor of William F. Meehan who left the next day for Camp Upton, Long Island. During the evening Mr. Meehan was presented a wrist watch and a purse of money. The presentation speech was made by Thomas Conley. Mr. Meehan made a fitting reply.

There was a general good time at the party with musical selections by Miss Claire Sammy, Mary Toye and Fred Wright of Dover, N. H. and Mr. Joseph Bassett. At the end of the party all the guests sang the national anthem and shook hands with the guest of honor, wishing him the best of luck.

WILSON PEACE PROGRAM

Head of Hungarian Party Endorses President's Plan as Basis for Negotiation

BASEL, Monday, Sept. 9.—President Wilson's program as a basis for the negotiations for peace, is endorsed by Count Michael Karolyi, president of the Hungarian independent party. A despatch from Budapest, quoting from an open letter written by him to his electors to whom he recommends an early peace, says:

"A decisive military victory, despite its successes, is a dream for which it is useless to pursue. The prime condition of peace negotiations is the democratization of nations and the abandonment of imperialist theories. A second condition is that we should not become slaves to the idea of a middle Europe, either military economically or politically, and that we should not strengthen our alliance with Germany which would form the first step towards the realization of this central Europe."

"We ought to accept as a basis for negotiations President Wilson's program."

SHEA AND REDDY ARE TRAINING FOR BOUT

Tommy Shea of New Haven and Battling Reddy of Brooklyn are training hard for their 12-round bout at the Crescent A.A. on Friday night, and both promise to be in the best of condition when the bell rings for the opening round. Shea and Reddy are fine boxers, and each is qualified to deliver a sleep-producer at any moment.

Shea is extremely popular all over New England, while Reddy's popularity extends throughout the United States. Reddy has tickled all the good ones, and among his victims is Frankie Britt, the speed merchant from New Bedford. Reddy has two decisions over Britt to his credit, which is some little accomplishment.

Three other good bouts will also be on the card.

Billy Woods of Manchester, who appeared at the local club recently, added another victory to his list at Boston the other night, when he won the decision from Young Strona in a 10-round bout.

Those desiring to attend the next meeting of the C.A.A., who are not on the membership rolls may do so by applying for application blanks at the club quarters on Hurd street before Thursday night.

YOUNG MONTREAL WINS FROM OWENS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Young Montreal of Providence defeated Paddy Owens of Cambridge in a 12-round bout at the re-opening of the Trinity A. C. East Cambridge, last night. There was a good crowd on hand and they were treated to one of the best fights between bantamweights decided in this part of the country in many a day.

Tony Valian, substituting for Young Strona against Dummy Burns, defeated the latter in 10 rounds. Charley Parker added Johnny Gray to his list of victims, defeating the Chelsea lightweight in a hard-fought eight-round bout. Joe Sousa got as far as the third round with Young Marks, who was altogether too fast and hit too hard for Sousa.

Montreal recently saw the first Chinaman appointed a commissioner of the superior court, Song Foo's petition to Justice Toller for this privilege being granted him. Song Foo therefore has power now to administer oaths.

WAR TIME PROHIBITION

House Committee Favors
Bill to Make Prohibition
Effective July 1, 1919

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—War time prohibition moved a step nearer today when the house agricultural committee decided to report favorably the food production bill including the amendment added by the senate making prohibition effective July 1, 1919.

The committee inserted a provision permitting the importation of Italian wine until May 1, 1919, as requested yesterday by the Italian government through the state department. As passed by the senate the bill would stop importation immediately.

BAKER AND CLEMENCEAU
CONFER IN PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Newton D. Baker, the American secretary of war, today had a conference with Premier Clemenceau, Andre Tardieu, the French high commissioner to America and Ambassador Sharp.

Baker at Pershing's Home

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Newton D. Baker, American secretary of war, has arrived in Paris. The secretary was conducted to the city home of Gen. John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, where he will remain and hold conferences during the next few days.

It is expected his visit will permit conferences between the American and allied officials. He will visit American headquarters and the principal centers of American activities.

FEELING IS STRONG AGAINST
CONTROLLED TERRITORY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Consul General Poole at Moscow in a belated despatch received at the state department today, says he sent his staff and American civilians there out of Russia because feeling is strong in Bolshevik-controlled territory against Americans, threatening them with "dangerous reprisals" which might embarrass allied military commanders operating in Russia.

The message was dated Aug. 26, the day the special train left Moscow carrying the Americans and allied civilians and officials who arrived at Stockholm last Saturday.

PLAN FOOTBALL GAMES

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—A. A. Stagg, University of Chicago football coach, announced today that while assurance had not been given by the war department that football would be permitted, as every college student of draft age would be under the war department's jurisdiction, the "Big Ten" conference directors were going forward with their plans (though they are counting on shorter practice sessions than in former years. Practice will begin next Monday.

POWER PLANT FIRE STOP
TRAFFIC

The only available big generator at the power house of the Bay State Street Railway Co. in Middlesex street, was badly damaged by fire last evening and as a result street car traffic throughout the city was suspended between the hours of 7 and 8. Later through the courtesy of the Lowell Electric Light Corp., which connected its current to the wires of the Bay State, traffic was resumed and the street cars will operate by using the "juice" of the Electric Light Corp. until the generator is repaired.

The fire started in the pit beneath the generator in the main engine room but its cause has not yet been determined. An alarm was rung in from the private box of the company, box 419, and the department quickly responded. There was no damage to the building.

POLICE COURT DOES
QUICK WORK TODAY

Judge Enright quickly disposed of the few cases that were brought to his attention at this morning's session of the police court. Jeremiah Linnehan for drunkenness was fined $10, while Maurice Spillane who takes pleasure in disturbing the neighbors when he is under the influence of liquor, was given a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction. Joseph Baron, who imbibed a little too freely yesterday, was sent to the common jail to recuperate during the next three months.

Joseph Tessier pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping an unlicensed dog and was fined $5. William C. Smith, who was charged with drunkenness and larceny of a pipe and some money from Sam Scott, had his case continued to Sept. 16. Stanley Kuluski, who had been notified to appear in court to answer to a complaint charging him with violation of the milk laws, failed to show up and he was defaulted.

Ellen Martin, who yesterday appeared from a two-months' sentence to the common jail, changed her mind this morning and she was allowed to withdraw her appeal. Henry Winn, for violating the automobile laws was ordered to pay a fine of $10. George Donabie admitted his guilt to a complaint charging him with assault and battery upon a barber and he was fined $10. There were seven releases by the probation officer.

AUTO TURNS OVER

Arthur Hamel Injured Steering From Falling Tree

Arthur Hamel of this city, who operates a Ford truck, was injured in the hips and back this morning when his car turned turtle in Chelmsford st. The young man was operating his car through Chelmsford street at about 7:45 o'clock and when he reached a point near the hospital, where the employees of the park department were cutting down a tree, he feared the tree would fall on his car and he swung to the right into the gutter, his car turning turtle.

The ambulance was called and Hamel was removed to St. John's hospital. The automobile was damaged slightly.

HUNS FEAR NEGROES IN AMERICAN ARMY

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Sept. 9 (By the Associated Press).—The enemy heavily shelled towns in the Woerthe sector behind our lines this morning. One of his patrols attacked the American outposts, but was easily driven off.

There was considerable patrol activity in the Vosges district last night. One encounter took place, the enemy retiring with one wounded man.

Colored troops have occupied Vosges villages. Frenchmen on coming through to the American lines declared that the Germans were considerably excited at finding themselves opposed by negroes, of whom they are said to be afraid because of reports that the American colored troopers cut off the ears of their prisoners. The negro soldiers in this sector had an example of German treachery when a German patrol attacked after shouting "Kamerad." They are now thoroughly determined to have their revenge.

TRANSPORT MT. VERNON
CARRIED WOUNDED

PARIS, Sunday, Sept. 10.—The American transport Mt. Vernon, formerly the German steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which though torpedoed by a German submarine last Thursday off the coast of France, was able to make port, was carrying wounded and sick soldiers back to the United States.

Senator James H. Lewis of Chicago, Ill., who was among the passengers, all of whom were saved, is suffering from a chill resulting from exposure while carrying wounded men from their bunks. Thirty-five engine room hands lost their lives when the torpedo struck the vessel.

Congressman Thomas D. Schall and Attorney John D. Cross of Providence were among those on board. Mrs. Schall, the wife of the blind representative of Minnesota, led her husband up on deck and across the ship to their lifeboat. Both were calm and acted as though they were in no peril.

The officers and crew of the Mt. Vernon showed perfect discipline and efficiency. Most of the seamen were young, and for many it was their first trip, but they acted like old hands. In short space of time they had all the bulkheads closed and the steamcocks shut off. Sometimes they were compelled to swim through rising water in order to get at the valves.

AVIATORS KILLED
Two Fall to Death at Fort Worth, Texas

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 11.—Lieuts. A. D. Stephenson of Bristol, Conn., and W. D. Keeling of Dallas, Tex., were killed this morning when their airplane fell north of Fort Worth. Both were attached to Cutreth's field.

CONSIDER LA FOLLETTE CASE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Senator Pomeroy of Ohio announced today that a meeting of the senate elections committee will be held next Thursday to resume consideration of the alleged disloyal speech delivered by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin in St. Paul last September. Sentiment in the senate favors disposition of the case without further delay.

REVENUE BILL

Debate on Huge War Tax
Measure Resumed in the
House Today

Cong. Longworth Sounds
Taxed to Straining Point

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Wealth would be taxed to about the straining point by the new war revenue bill, Representative Longworth of Ohio declared in the house today when debate on the huge tax measure was resumed. He warned his hearers that any additional taxes levied hereafter must be borne by people purchasing articles of daily necessity and said that as the cost of the war mounted a greater proportion of it must be borne by future generations.

Pointing out that congress was about to exact from the American people a sum which would have more than paid the entire cost of the Civil war, both to the Union and the Confederacy, he said the tax of 80 per cent. on war profits and the maxima of 70 per cent. on excess profits and 77 per cent. on incomes, were "mighty near the danger mark."

"Just as surely as you impose a tax which amounts to plunder," he said, "just so surely do you overshoot the mark and render difficult, if not impossible the financing necessary to effectively prosecute the war."

Most of the coming issue of Liberty bonds, he said, would be purchased by individuals and their purchasing power would be affected directly by the taxes on their incomes.

BIG LOSS BY BAN ON MAKING BEER

Containing that the president's order stopping the manufacture of beer after next December 1, would cause a loss of $500,000,000 in revenue under the new war tax bill, Mr. Longworth said congress might be forced to impose consumption taxes sooner than had been expected. In that connection he suggested a tax of seven cents a pound on coffee, 20 per cent. on wool, 15 per cent. on hides and one cent on sugar. He estimated these would yield $240,000,000 annually.

He warned that the proposed wartime national prohibition legislation would reduce the estimated revenue returns from beverages by $1,500,000,000 which with the lost revenue on beer on Dec. 1, until the national prohibition measure became effective, would reduce the estimated revenue under the bill to $50,000,000,000.

He commended the bill as a whole, as a vast improvement over the old law.

In concluding, the speaker portrayed the condition under which the German people "gagged and bound, pay bloody tribute to the insatiable ambition of the house of Hohenzollern," and said that "no citizen of this embattled nation, not even the son of the great pacifist, Henry Ford, is more surely immune from bodily harm," than are the German emperor's six sons, "who would be preserved undamaged for posterity."

"Last of all the Wilhelms in Germany to give his life for the Vaterland," Mr. Longworth continued, "will be Wilhelm, the kronprinz; Adolbert, the August Wilhelms, the Oscars and Joachims."

Sons of a former president of the United States, he said by comparison, had been less timorous. Without mentioning by name his father-in-law, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Longworth said: "My father's sons of a former president have been at the real front, three of them married men with children, upon whom there was no possible legal obligation. One has perished gloriously on the field of honor, two have been wounded, one so seriously that he has been invalided home; the only who has escaped injury has been decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action."

He added that a son of the only other living ex-president referring to Mr. Taft was at the front and that President Wilson had been blessed with sons of fighting age, they, too, would have been on the firing line.

"Let patriotism," Mr. Longworth said, "continue to banish all selfish and partisan spirit from our deliberations and make us brothers in the cause so that we may stand shoulder to shoulder, northern and southern. Republican and democrat, united indissolubly during this war by the passionate resolve that government of the Kaiser, by the Kaiser and for the Kaiser shall perish from the earth."

TO FIX LOWER PRICE FOR
GASOLINE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Fuel Administrator Garfield announced yesterday that he expects soon to fix a price for gasoline for domestic consumers, as well as the government and the allies, at a figure lower than the present market price. He is awaiting further reports on the situation before taking definite action.

No intimation was made as to what the fixed price will be.

Dr. Garfield's announcement disclosed that for some time consideration had been given the problem of bringing the price of gasoline to a lower level. Several reports already have been made to Mr. L. R. Quinn, director of the oil division of the fuel administration. It was intimated that upon completion of the investigation now being conducted immediate action would be taken.

The disclosure of Dr. Garfield's purpose came during an informal talk with newspaper correspondents in which the stocks of gasoline in the country and the stated shortage east of the Mississippi river, which caused the administration to request that no passenger automobiles be operated Sundays in that section were discussed.

Dr. Garfield would not discuss reports that this request was based on information furnished the administration by the oil industry for the alleged purpose of maintaining the present price of gasoline in the face of a reported large supply in the country.

The senate yesterday displayed its interest in the auto-less Sunday request by adopting a resolution offered by Senator Lodge asking the administration for information as to the country's production, consumption and exportation of gasoline, with separate figures on the amount used by passenger cars.

PARTY FOR NEW GIRLS
AT Y. W. C. A. HOME

A house-warming party was held last night at the Y. W. C. A. to welcome the new girls who have come to this city to study or work during the coming winter. The affair was in charge of Miss Marion Sawyer, social secretary, assisted by Miss Frances E. MacNair, general secretary and Miss Florence Foster, physical director.

The new comers were introduced to the older girls, then all proceeded to join in the games which followed. Later they enjoyed music in Kitson hall, where they could have plenty of floor space and could join "all hands around," for an old fashioned "Virginia Reel."

Refreshments were served, and when the party broke up the young women whose homes are perhaps many miles away from Lowell, felt that they had received a real hearty welcome.

There are more girls living at the Y. W. C. A. than ever before, and it would seem that the large number of newcomers are mostly business school pupils, who have come here to study, although some are employed in the ammunition plants.

SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Tentative plans are being made so American war prisoners in Germany, who because of their geographical location would be exchanged through Sweden, may be brought back home on commercial ships having safe conducts outside the war zone instead of being shipped on transports taking the risk of submarine destruction.

Some American war prisoners in Germany will be exchanged through Switzerland but many others can be relieved of long railroad journeys and perilous ocean passage. The Berne conference this month, which is to discuss the handling of American and German prisoners probably will take up the subject.

"HELL, HEAVEN OR HOME"
BY XMAS," SAY TROOPS

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—"Hell, Heaven, or Home by Christmas" is the motto of the boys of the 101st Regiment, according to Capt. J. J. O'Brien of E. Company, who returned from the front yesterday and held a reception during the day at the banking rooms of Richardson, Hill & Co., 50 Congress street, where he was employed for 20 years up to the time he went to the Mexican border with his command.

"The 26th division," he said, "is regarded by the French as the premier division in France."

Capt. O'Brien left France two weeks ago, and will be assigned to a new division being organized, and will be promoted to a higher rank in recognition of his valiant services.

"The regiment is now at a rest camp back of the line," he said, "and the boys are being given their first furlough (seven days) since they went to France. Co. E of the 101st is composed of Co. E of the old 9th of Boston and Co. E, the Lawrence Light Guards, of the old 5th of Medford."

"Col. Logan is in great spirits and has handled the regiment in a very efficient manner," said Capt. O'Brien. He has just taken his first furlough (five days) since he arrived in France and he spent that going about visiting the sick and wounded of his regiment in the hospitals. All the officers and men greatly admire and respect Gen. Edwards.

"The losses by the 101st were the highest of any regiment in the division. We were in the fighting in the big drive from July 18 to 25 inclusive. My company has lost only three men in the year of service. All the remaining boys are fine, with the exception of a few who are in hospitals with slight illnesses. All the boys are anxious to 'clean up the fight,' as they call it, and to get back home and to business again."

"The weather in France has been fine, but the rainy season is due about now. The boys have been getting good food and they are all in high spirits. Until May the mail service was pretty prompt and the letters and newspapers from home brought great cheer to all of us, but since then the service has been a little slow."

"However, everybody is happy and feeling fine, and I want the parents and friends of the boys of Co. E to rest assured all are being well cared for."

IS DEAD

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 10 (Havas).—Gaston Dumesnil, member of the French chamber of deputies, died early today in a hospital near the front. Shortly before his death he was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by Premier Clemenceau.

Deputy Dumesnil was 40 years old. He had been wounded twice and was cited in orders six times. He is the 15th deputy to be killed at the front.
